Dear Dr. Henney,

I am very concerned about the use of antibiotics on farm animals to enhance their growth.

This is a dangerous practice, and put us all at risk. More and more of our new antibiotics are becoming ineffective for human patients from indiscriminate use. This can bring death to many who would otherwise recover from illnesses.

Please use your power to stop this practice. We need regulations which prohibit the use of these drugs in any way on animals that will be used as human food.

Thank you for your attention to this.

Sincerely yours,

Anne B. Johnston
