Essayons Forward

From the Editor...

For eighteen months, the men and women serving in the Gulf Region Division have been working side-by-side their local counterparts to build a better Iraq, and thereby a safer world.

Built on the shoulders of legacy organizations such as the Iraq Provisional Command, Task Force Restore Iraqi Oil, Task Force Restore Iraqi Electricity, Task Force Fajr, and forward engineering support teams spread throughout the Iraqi theater, the division was established on January 25, 2004 and has maintained the record of excellence for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. To date, nearly 3,000 employees from districts and divisions around the globe have served in Iraq and Kuwait as part of ongoing operations. In many cases, those here serving are on their second and third deployments.

By managing a construction program of more than $12 billion, Corps Civilians and Soldiers have helped restore and improve infrastructure systems in oil, electricity and water. Where dilapidated and unreliable systems once struggled to operate, new and ever improving networks now stand.

Since last year, more than 2,600 projects have been started by the GRD, Iraqi ministries, and other federal and non-federal agencies. Of those, nearly 1,500 are complete, or soon to be completed.

Throughout Iraq new and renovated schools, medical clinics, fire and police stations, military training facilities and border forts now provide a higher quality of life for all Iraqis.

Despite ongoing struggles in this global war against terrorism, the brave men and women of the Gulf Region Division have answered the call, buckled on their chin strap and proven once again that the Corps is indeed the world's premier engineering organization.

This special ESSAYONS FORWARD Commemorative Edition has been produced to salute those who have made a difference in Iraq.

"April Fools" Day is a Home Run in Baghdad dirt by Oney Pruitt, Memphis District

When you first meet Lt. Col. William F. Foos, you come away with the impression of a very serious officer. That's exactly what he is, but he has a fun, sly side too. He came up with a very short thought-out plan to improve morale, provide exercise and have fun in a very short time frame. So called "April Fools" Day is now a forever known in the GRD as April Fools Day—the tournament began. Each team played the other twice with the results being forever argued in history and lore. The effects on those who played and those who watched will always be remembered with pride, smiles and BenGay!

The Sewer Princess Diaries

by Danielle Stephens Walla Walla District

Hello everyone... long time no write and I know it's my fault. Things here are incredibly busy but I have found a few minutes to catch you up on what's been going on only 12 hours. It makes the time fly by and before I know it a week has passed and I do list is still growing larger instead of shrinking. My job is more defined now than the last time I wrote. I am the construction manager for the sewer projects in Baghdad. This includes all the projects that were directly funded to the Corps and my program involving about 13 contracts worth more than $125 million. There are an estimated $3 billion in projects ranging from country compared to what I'm managing now. No. 1 priority and get visibility on a daily basis. I've also managed to place to a great learning experience and challenge. There are some perks to the job and working in the ground. It's been able to take several weeks of work. The best part is that I can really be in the best of both worlds. I can be in the field or in the office. I can be in the field or in the office. I can be in the field or in the office.

Danielle Stephens, Walla Walla District, shares her focus in Baghdad.

Oney, on Ogden
by Oney Pruitt, Memphis District

First saw Lt. Col. Jeffery Ogden's name when I arrived at the Gulf Region Division and assumed the role of mail handler. I was assigned to restore Iraq. As he approached me like a man with a stretched hand and I hear I have some mail here this morning as he drove by power projects and people. Ogden saw a woman and her husband and I heard I have some mail here this morning as he drove by power projects and people. Progress too, exists in Iraq
by Art Bennett, Jacksonville District

Enclosed some more hot and sunny days in southern Iraq this week. The wind is stronger long trip this week, as I find several others traveled to meet with the local Provincial Councils. It affords me an opportunity to meet more of the people of the area, waving with all their might at our passing vehicles, with uncombed hair, and very dirty clothes. Poverty binds the people of the area, waving with all their might at our passing vehicles, with uncombed hair, and very dirty clothes. Milestones
by Paul A. Kerl, P.E., Los Angeles District

Sometimes you just never know where your career will take you, and what opportunities lie ahead. After working for the US Army Corps of Engineers in Phoenix AZ for all of a day, my supervisor mentioned in my first staff meeting that the Corps was looking for personnel interested in working in Iraq. At the time, two folks from our office were already deployed forward and were sending back great information on their experiences. Wouldn't that be a rare opportunity, I thought, but surely I can't leave my brand new job and deploy! Some eight months later I found myself in Baghdad supporting the USAID Agency for International Development (USAID) Project Office Team. After a week of overlap with my successor, I found myself as the Water and Sanitation Sector Manager, responsible for the design and construction (or rehab) of water treatment plants and distribution systems, wastewater treatment plants and collection systems, as well as landfills. USAID's infrastructure mission largely supports our nation's foreign policy, developing critically needed infrastructure in foreign and often war-torn lands in sectors such as surface transportation, ports, airports, railways, water and sanitation, and power generation and distribution. Our Corps of Engineers Project Office supports this program by providing much needed technical expertise and quality assurance oversight. Nationwide, the Water and Sanitation Sector has approximately $272 million worth of projects underway, with more projects to come. All of these projects are greatly needed by the people of Iraq. Initially, most of our projects addressed rehab of existing infrastructure. Nearly every facility had been neglected for years and in most cases afforded little, if any, water treatment. Nearly all mechanical and electrical components were worn out, out of service, or had been looted. In some cases, Saddam Hussein stored diesel fuel in sludge digesters! Our new construction helps close the gap between Iraq's societal needs and the existing infrastructure. Perhaps the most interesting component of my work has been my travels outside of Baghdad. I've been able to fly Blackhawks to numerous project sites and C-130's to more remote regions. One particularly memorable trip was to the Dead Sea in Jordan, where I attended the International Water Demand Management Conference with several Iraqi Ministers for a week. Naturally, Iraq is not alone in its struggles to provide potable water to its people, and emphasis at the conference was placed on reducing water demand, versus expanding water supply systems, especially in the Middle East. While in Jordan, I was also able to meet the King of Jordan and see his private auto collection. I also viewed the Dead Sea Scrolls, visited ancient Roman and Byzantine ruins, and saw a real Roman "milestone." Now that was an unexpected enrichment experience! By the way, I really hadn't anticipated meeting Ministers and Kings when I deployed from home, so I made this trip with a few borrowed jackets and ties! As I approach the end of my deployment, I can begin to reflect on how gratifying this experience really is. It has been rewarding and educational to work with such a diverse team of Corps employees, and I'm proud to serve the Iraqi people with them. The Iraqi personnel we have on staff are truly dedicated to the reconstruction mission, and remain one of our greatest assets. The many conversations I've had with Iraqis provide great insight into the history, life and future of Iraq. This personal perspective, coupled with the gratification of improving the infrastructure that serves millions of Iraqis, has made for a memorable experience beyond compare, a true milestone in my career.

Paul Kerl, normally a Project Manager from the Los Angeles District, is currently serving as the Lead Project Manager for the USAID Project Office in Baghdad, Iraq. The Saddam Copter
by Eric Aubrey, Rock Hill District

Although the Corps mission in Iraq is a long, challenging and rewarding one, it's times like these that push a person close to their limits. One of the most interesting and fascinating sights I've seen here for the first time is a helicopter. It's so different from anything I've ever seen before. It's so different from anything I've ever seen before. It's so different from anything I've ever seen before. It's so different from anything I've ever seen before. It's so different from anything I've ever seen before. It's so different from anything I've ever seen before.

Roman milestones that once marked the road to Mount Nebo from Jerusalem gave me a historical perspective on a term I use daily in my construction projects.
