

Steve Ritz: What I remember really loving in science classes is when there was a lecture demonstration. And, I remember very well when there was a surprise. And, I remember that wonderful feeling of excitement, almost disorientation for a minute, wonder, that we could find out new things about the world, surprising things, through scientific investigation.