SBA Improves HUBZone Program

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) is changing its Historically Underutilized Business (HUBZone) program to help small businesses create more jobs in economically distressed communities.

"These pivotal changes to the HUBZone program expand its reach dramatically and will create more jobs and economic growth in economically depressed areas for small businesses, and stimulate growth in the nation's economy," said Administrator Hector V. Barreto.

Under recent legislation, a small business applying for HUBZone certification no longer needs to be owned and controlled exclusively by U.S. citizens. Now, the level of required ownership by U.S. citizens is 51 percent. Also, agricultural cooperatives have joined community development corporations and Indian tribes as entities that can participate in the HUBZone Program.

Tribally-owned small businesses also have new options regarding the HUBZone employment requirement, one of four basic eligibility criteria. A tribal business can choose to meet the 35 percent residency at the time of application or wait until the firm actually receives a HUBZone contract. If this latter option is cho-relative to either the state's annualized unemployment rate or the national unemployment rate. Previously, the only comparison was permitted against the state level

Finally, small businesses that either were terminated or are facing imminent termination from the HUBZone Program because the areas where the firms are located are no longer considered to sen, the business will be required to ensure that 35 percent of those working on the contract reside in a reservation area controlled by the tribe, or an adjoining HUBZone.

Another change permits a rural county to qualify for HUBZone status if its local unemployment rate is high be economically distressed will retain the ability to participate in the HUBZone Program until the results of the next census data collection, scheduled for 2010, is analyzed and released to the public.

It's been said that the fastest way to go out of business is by going into the restaurant business. But don't tell that to Jaime and Marilyn Arias who opened Chips and Salsa, a Mexican/American food restaurant, in 1999. Going into business for themselves is a decision the Arias' have never regretted, although they're glad that their four year old business has gotten through the was created in 1997 and has more than 11,000 participants. The program provides certified firms an opportunity to compete for federal contracts and provides local employment in distressed communities. start-up phase.

Jaime Arias and his wife have spent the majority of their lives as Brawley Residents. Chips and Salsa had been in the Brawley area for four years and had experienced a decline in profit. Mr. Arias came to the Imperial Valley Small Business Development Center (IVSBDC) because he wanted to move his business to El Centro. The IVSBDC counselor assisted Mr. Arias in developing a business plan, which included various strategies to reach his new goal. Chips and Salsa has now been relocated to the Vacation Inn in El Centro and has been successfully operating there for the past two years.

Mr. Arias recently opened another location, Chips and Salsa II, on the campus of Imperial Valley College. This opportunity came about, again, with the assistance of the IVSBDC. The IVSBDC informed Mr. Arias that the Imperial Valley College (IVC) was seeking proposals for food service vendors to provide cafeteria and catering services beginning July 1, 2004. They then explained the proposal process and requirements and helped him prepare the proposal to obtain the bid. Chips and Salsa II is now the main foodservice provider, within a five-mile radius, to 7,000 Imperial Valley College enrolled students and 350 faculty and staff.

CHIPS AND SALSA is located at 2015 Cottonwood Circle, El Centro, CA 92243, (760) 337-8333. CHIPS AND SALSA II is located on the Imperial Valley College Campus.

SBA and HP Foundation Kickoff 2005 Business Matchmaking Season

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) and the HP Small Business Foundation, a non-profit subsidiary of HP, officially announced the Business Matchmaking schedule of both one-on-one and online matchmaking events for 2005.

Business Matchmaking is a public-private sector contracting initiative made possible through a cooperative agreement between the SBA and the HP Small Business Foundation. The program works by matching small companies with government agencies and private sector corporations including Fortune 500 companies. The small business and the buyer then have a chance to meet one-on-one or via phone and negotiate a business deal for potential contracts.

"Small businesses make up 99 percent of all U.S. businesses, employ nearly 56 million people and account for more than twothirds of all new jobs," said SBA Administrator Hector V. Barreto. "The SBA and the HP Small Business Foundation are committed to supporting the success of these companies by enabling them to meet and negotiate contracts with government agencies and corporations. Business Matchmaking gives small business owners opportunities they may not otherwise have."

"Helping small businesses thrive is vital to jumpstarting the economy, and until now, entrepreneurs in pursuit of government and large-company contracts have often had to learn by trial and error, sometimes at great expense, and for mixed results at best," said Robyn West, Vice President,
Small and Medium Business, HP.

West continued,
"Business Matchmaking
streamlines this process, helping them find the right buyer at the right time. To date, the program has created nearly 23,000 appointments for small business owners throughout the U.S. to meet with buyers from government agencies as well as the country's largest corporations – resulting in more than $26 million in new business for small businesses."

The 2005 Business Matchmaking one-on-one schedule includes an event scheduled locally for June 7 and 8, 2005 in Los Angeles, CA, at the Pasadena Center. Business Matchmaking regional face-to-face events bring together over 1,000 small business owners and managers with procurement representatives from federal, state, and local governments as well as major corporations. The events are free to attend for both buyers and sellers and include an Introduction to Business Matchmaking Workshop featuring presentations from small business experts, the SBA, SCORE, SBDC, and procurement representatives.

Additionally, Online Business Matchmaking, a new and innovative expansion announced earlier this year promises to greatly extend the reach of the current matchmaking program by enabling small business owners to participate in a virtual matchmaking process without having to travel to one of the above events. Online Business Matchmaking is scheduled start in 2005, initially as a pilot Phoenix, AZ; Albuquerque, NM; Kansas City, MO; Tampa, FL; and Denver, CO.

Small Business owners interested in learning more about Business Matchmaking or participating in the upcoming events are encouraged to visit the Business Matchmaking web site at www.businessmatchmaking.co om.

Women's Business Center of California Offers Certificate Programs for Women

The Women's Business Center of California (WBCC), an affiliate of National University's School of Business and Management, was founded in 2003 with a grant from the Small Business Administration. Since then the WBCC has become San Diego's trusted educational resource for women entrepreneurs who want to develop the skills and confidence needed to open and run a successful venture. The WBCC presents dozens of educational seminars and certificate programs every year, and has trained more than 3,500 women on topics ranging from accounting basics to marketing, and from technology skills to effective growth strategies.

The Women's Business Center of California will present two certificate programs in 2005. The first program, scheduled for every Thursday in May from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m., is titled "Accounting Basics 101.". Students will gain a solid understanding of accounting practices, reports and software required to run a small business.

Mastering basic business accounting practices is critical to business planning. Whether students are opening a new venture or expanding an existing business, a clear understanding of accounting basics will assist in estimating the financial risks and potential outcomes for decisions small business owners must make everyday. The Accounting Basics 101 program will train entrepreneurs to project profit and loss, manage cash flow, analyze financial reports and make the IRS an ally in their business.

In September, the Women's Business Center of California will present "Technology to Build Your Business." Through this certificate program, students will gain in-depth knowledge of technology tools that will help them to build a successful company.

Technology consistently presents small business owners with tremendous challenges and opportunities. It's difficult for busy entrepreneurs to keep up with technology advancements and often impossible for early stage companies to hire professional information technology consultants. This program will provide students with an understanding of hardware, software, and Internet options, as well as present invaluable technology tips and tricks that will provide a real advantage in today's competitive market.

Every student successfully completing the 12 hours of instruction will receive a certificate of completion from the Women's Business Center of California.

Specific topics for each program are listed below. Certificate programs presented by the WBCC are held at National University's Spectrum Academic Center. The Women's Business Center of California urges those interested in attending the certificate programs to register early – seating is limited. For more information visit the Women's Business Center of California's web site: http://wbcc.nu.edu or register by calling (619) 563-7118.

Reducing Marginal Tax Rates Increases Entrepreneurship

Reducing marginal income tax rates on entrepreneurs increases entrepreneurial entry, decreases exit from entrepreneurship, and lengthens the duration of entrepreneurial ventures, according to a study released today by the Office of Advocacy of the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA).

"This study shows how tax rates directly impact entrepreneurship," said Thomas M. Sullivan, Chief Counsel for Advocacy. "Reducing marginal tax rates on entrepreneurial income provides a clear incentive for entrepreneurial activity. Policy makers who understand the importance of increasing entrepreneurship and economic growth should use this study to guide their policy decisions."

The study, Taxes and Entrepreneurial Activity: An Empirical Investigation Using Longitudinal Tax Return Data written by Donald Bruce and Tami Gurley with funding from the Office of Advocacy, offers several specific findings including:

- A marginal tax rate reduction of one percent on entrepreneurial income increases the probability of entrepreneurial entry by 1.42 percent for single filers and 2.0 percent for married filers.
- A marginal tax rate reduction of one percent on entrepreneurial income decreased the probability of exiting entrepreneurial activity by 17.32 percent for - single filers and by 7.81 percent for married filers.

- A marginal tax rate reduction of one percent on entrepreneurial income lengthens the duration of entrepreneurial activity by 32.5 percent for single filers and 44.8 percent for married filers.
- Higher marginal tax rates on wage-andsalary income also increase entrepreneurial activity as they provide incentives for workers to start their own businesses.

The study was released at a panel discussion entitled "Tax Policy and the Entrepreneurial Sector," sponsored by the Small Business & Entrepreneurship Council. It analyses tax return data from 1979-1990. This period encompasses the tax policy changes of the 1980s, which allowed the authors to closely examine the effects of tax rate changes on entrepreneurship.

The Office of Advocacy, the "small business watchdog" of the government, examines the role and status of small business in the economy and independently represents the views of small business to federal agencies, Congress, and the President. It is the source for small business statistics presented in user-friendly formats and it funds research into small business issues. For more information and a copy of the report, visit www.sba.gov/advo.

Created by Congress in 1976, the Office of Advocacy of the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) is an independent voice for small business within the federal government. Appointed by the President and confirmed by the U.S. Senate, the Chief Counsel for Advocacy directs the office. The Chief Counsel advances the views, concerns, and interests of small business before Congress, the White House, federal agencies, federal courts, and state policy makers. Economic research, policy analyses, and small business outreach help identify issues of concern. Regional Advocates and an office in Washington, DC, support the Chief Counsel's efforts.
