

Dear Commissioner Friedman,

I am very concerned about the testing of products on animals being done by companies - especially Procter and Gamble. It seems that they use a lot of animals. It's so cruel and useless. From what I understand our Government supports this. Is this right? I hope not.

If the product is to be used by humans - test on humans - not animals. We want true results and I do not believe you are getting them with animals. Believe it or not - we are not the same. Even two humans may have different results from a drug - but at least it's better than animal testing.

Animal testing is the cruelest treatment possible on innocent creatures. Even if you do not like animals, and I know this isn't so, if you seen how these animals are used and treated - will you would have to have no feelings of compassion at all - to be able to allow it. Please help them.

Maybe - you can't help - but if you can't please find someone who can. Please call Proctor + Gamble and get them to stop using even one animal. They will tell you they have cut back -
but they haven't.

Again please help and Thank you.

Yours truly
