The increased use of antibiotics fed to healthy animals poses a serious threat to the continued efficacy of the drugs since the microbes will in time mutate to a form which is resistant to the antibiotic. eg the tuberculosis agent.

Please do what you can to reduce this use and prolong the useful life of the medication.

Be firm with the drug companies - tell them that their profits will continue longer if there are no immune "super<sup>459</sup> bugs which will negate the success of their products.

Sincerely,

Horace H. Coburn
