Dear Sirs,

6279 '01 FEB 26 10:37

Thank you for the opportunity to communicate with you. I appreciate this very much.

I am very concerned about the flood of genetically engineered / modified products on our store shelves. I am on different medications because of my allergies, and they are becoming worse because the foods I eat (corn, tomatoes, potatoes, etc.) are GMO foods. My list of "safe" foods is shrinking all the time.

It is about time that food manufacturers are required to label their products which have genetically modified ingredients in them. I urge the FDA to look into this and to do something to make our foods safer and also, so that consumers can make an informed choice about the food we buy.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
N. McDonald
