FIRE AT NEVADA TEST SITE 100% CONTAINED

As of last night, the fire burning at the Nevada Test Site (NTS) is now 100% contained. Activities are currently underway to curtail the fire fighting activities over the next several days. Hot spots, identified through thermal infrared imaging data collected Wednesday night, will be investigated to ensure no further threats exist in the area.

The fire, started by lightning, Friday, June 3, burned more than 21,000 acres on the NTS and Nellis Air Force Range. Estimates are that about 6,000 acres of NTS land was burned in the fire.

There were no facilities or infrastructure damaged on the NTS as a result of the fire. More than 490 personnel provided ground and air support during this effort.
