QuickDOC For Windows

Latest Update Info:

The QDPortal Program. We're now using version 1.1.4 of QDPortal with the latest DOCLINE 3.4 (released in July, 2008). Everyone should now be using this version (check the Setup Screen next to the Finished button in QDPortal to see if yours is up to date).

(Receipts and Status/Cancel displays in DOCLINE 3.4 won't be saved in versions of QDPortal earlier than 1.1.4, so this a required update.)

Plans are to integrate QDPortal into QuickDOC, as you may know, within the next few months.

The QuickDOC Program. The official QuickDOC version is version 2.1.8. Version 2.1.8 differs from 2.1.7 primarily with the addition of the OCLC Import capability, although other, minor fixes are included as well. Since version 2.1.7 will also work with DOCLINE 3.4, there is no need for libraries not using OCLC to rush to update, but be aware that any new installations will be made with version 2.1.8. If you add a new machine, consequently, that machine will be running 2.1.8 and you should upgrade any other machines from 2.1.7 to 2.1.8 at the same time. Changes from version 2.1.7 include:

1. OCLC Import Function.

    a. Using the end-of-month OCLC Reports, QuickDOC will import items from both the Lending and Borrowing Reports.

    b. OCLC symbols added to Library records as they are encountered.

    c. Items paid via IFM are marked Paid at the time of import.

2. As a preparation for providing access to more than one database from within the QuickDOC program, the database LIBID and Location are now listed in a file called MyLibraries.txt rather than hard-wired into the Registry (since 2.1.4). While 2.1.8 will only recognize one database here, for now, version 2.2 will give you a list of databases and LIBIDs so that you can choose the one to log onto.

Many of the changes in 2.1.4-2.1.8 have been made in preparation for the joining together of QDPortal and QuickDOC. Because these changes aren't all complete and tested as yet, we'll still be using QDPortal Version 1.1.4 (which also allows running QuickDOC on computers with no C: drive---a rarely used situation that we're basically against as inefficient). Version 2.2 will be the one joining them together.

Next step: Version 2.2. Once QDPortal is integrated into QuickDOC, a number of new capabilities will emerge. Because we'll have access to the QuickDOC.MDB database while online, items saved will go right into the database (instead of being saved temporarily and imported later). We can call up full Patron or Library records when needed on DOCLINE; we can import updated journal info on the fly, etc. It will be a true change of paradigm. Target date is the end of the summer.
