To Whom It Concerns within The F. T. Commission

I have learned that the rules for being able to put a "MADE in USA" label are being possibly changed. It appears that companies want looser regulations which is what they always want.

I do not think the regulations should be made any looser. In fact, I think they should be stricter. If an item is made in the USA that's great. If it isn't we shouldn't lie to ourselves just to make a company who has moved most of its operations to a foreign country to avoid paying a living wage to people and doesn't want to follow environmental precautions, look good.

Those same companies know there are lots of people out there, in the U.S., that try to buy "made in USA".

Myself included. They want that market, but they want to lie about where it's made so they can make even greater profits.

Please do not make the "MADE IN USA" rules meaningless. Make them stronger.

Sincerely,
