Generally the workers in the Estirk (district) were of the opinion that President Kennedy was murdered because he was a supporter of peace; because he was one of the first to sign the Moscow (test-ban) treaty; and because he took steps against racial discrimination in the United States. Many workers had arrived at the conclusion that the assassination was carried out by racial fanatics. Among older residents of the Estirk, the murder of Kennedy was compared to the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand in Sarajevo. There were also those who were worried about the new President, Johnson, and how he will act toward the question of relaxation of tensions, peace, and racial discrimination.

In the last few hours, effects of the class antagonists' activity have already become evident. There has been further discussion to the effect that the murder was committed by Communists. In several residents stated that the assassin spent many years in the USSR, stayed next in Cuba, and then was sent to the US with the mission to kill Kennedy.

Western broadcasts, and such arguments were them-pointed out: 'It's sorrowful that such things as the assassination of the President occur in the so-called country with the unlimited possibilities.'

"The assassination was discussed right at the start of work-day with the colleagues [REDACTED] from the trade organizations of the [REDACTED] enterprises, and it was generally stated that it's shocking that in the USA the President was assassinated and a statesman is pushed aside in such a way. [REDACTED] from the trade organization [REDACTED] especially expressed her extreme indignation over such a thing.

[REDACTED] from the Department of Labor of the [REDACTED] is of the opinion that Kennedy had become troublesome for some people because he had to advocate even more the policy of peaceful coexistence, due to public pressure, and on the basis of the peace offensive of the Soviet Union. And this didn't agree with some people.

That Kennedy took such a stand did not suit some right-wing military circles in the USA, especially with regard to the Cuba question. Now, it is to be feared that, with Johnson taking over as President of the United States, the world at large has to suffer, in that new contacts have to be made again so that the policy of peaceful coexistence can continue."
