

SUMMARY – H.R. 3430: “The Mental Health in Schools Act of 2007”

Background & Purpose:

- The Mental Health in Schools Act, H.R. 3430, was introduced on August 3, 2007 by Rep. Grace F. Napolitano (D-CA), Co-Chair of the Congressional Mental Health Caucus, with 64 original cosponsors, including Rep. Tim Murphy (R-PA), also Co-Chair of the Congressional Mental Health Caucus.
- The House bill builds on the foundation of S.1332, introduced by Senators Kennedy, Enzi, Domenici, and Dodd, and includes new input from educators, school psychologists, school administrators and mental health advocates.
- Both the House and Senate bills authorize competitive grants to local education agencies in order to assist them in providing comprehensive school-based mental health programs for students (K-12) in communities across America. The bill increases opportunities for our nation’s 95,000 public schools grades K-12 and provides better access to mental health services for the approximately 53 million school children in our country.

How are we going to do this?

- By broadening the scope of the Safe Schools-Healthy Students program, which currently focuses on helping children deal with violence to include services and supports for (1) students in need of immediate mental health supports, (2) students at-risk of behavioral mental health disorders, and (3) all students to promote positive mental health..

What this legislation will do?

- Provide schools with the flexible use of funds to expand their current mental health programs.
- Increase collaboration between schools, families, media entities, and their communities’ resources through partnerships to provide and sustain more comprehensive mental health programs in schools.
- Require schools to apply a public health approach that incorporates positive behavioral interventions and supports to mental health programs in schools, which emphasizes promotion and prevention in addition to treatment.
- Require schools to provide culturally and linguistically appropriate comprehensive staff development to all school personnel (including ancillary staff and volunteers) in the techniques and supports in:
  1. Early identification of children with, or at risk of, mental illness,
  2. The use of effective referral mechanisms to ensure treatment intervention services for such children, and
  3. Strategies that promote a school-wide positive environment.
  4. School system organization and operation
  5. Models for school collaboration, coordination, and consulting
- Provide support and training for parents, other family members of students, concerned members of community, and children with mental health disorders
- Provide a broad needs assessment of youth who drop out of school
- Require schools to thoroughly document measures of outcome and demonstrate the actions they are taking to sustain the program independently of grant funds.

How much will this legislation cost?

- $200,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2008 through 2012 to support 200 grants to local educational agencies nationwide.

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Colleague,

We respectfully request your support by becoming a cosponsor of the Mental Health in Schools Act of 2007, aimed at providing mental health assistance to our nation's public schools.

The Mental Health in Schools Act of 2007 builds on the foundation of S.1332 (also named the Mental Health in Schools Act of 2007), introduced by Senators Kennedy, Enzi, Domenici, and Dodd. Our House version, H.R. 3430, includes input from educators, psychologists, school psychologists, school administrators and mental health advocates. Both the House and Senate bills expand access to school-based mental health services by broadening the scope of the Safe Schools-Healthy Students program.

This legislation proposes to:

- Provide competitive grants to local school districts in order to assist them in implementing comprehensive school-based mental health programs for students (K-12) administered by qualified mental health professionals who are state licensed or certified. These mental health programs have demonstrated their effectiveness through pilot projects in several communities.
- Increase collaboration between schools, health providers and their communities through coalitions as applicants for grant funding.
- Identify and support students in need of immediate mental health care and those at-risk for behavioral mental health disorders, allowing teachers to concentrate on teaching.
- Promote positive mental health education and training to all students, parents, siblings of students, and concerned members of the community.
- Require schools to apply a public health approach that incorporates positive behavioral interventions and supports, targeting all students.
- Require schools to provide culturally and linguistically appropriate comprehensive staff development for school and community service personnel.
- Require schools to thoroughly document measures of outcome and demonstrate the actions they are taking to sustain the program independently of grant funds.
- Account for the needs of youth who drop out of schools due to “zero tolerance policies,” and those who have been incarcerated or are emancipated as foster youth.

Childhood mental illnesses affect nearly 1 in 5 adolescents and left untreated can lead to academic failure, family conflict, substance abuse, violence, incarceration and alarming rates of suicide. We must work hard and begin to remove the stigma of mental health treatment and provide our children with the support and services they need to thrive as productive citizens.

The need for comprehensive school-based mental health services has never been greater. Society and our communities will greatly benefit from the reduction of untreated mental deficiencies afflicting our children.

A BILL

To amend the Public Health Service Act to revise and extend projects relating to children and violence to provide access to school-based comprehensive mental health programs.

2

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives
2 of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

4 This Act may be cited as the "Mental Health in
5 Schools Act of 2007".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

7 Congress makes the following findings:

8 (1) Approximately 1 in 5 children have a
9 diagnosable mental disorder.

10 (2) Approximately 1 in 10 children have a seri-
11 ous emotional or behavioral disorder that is severe
12 enough to cause substantial impairment in func-
13 tioning at home, at school, or in the community. It
14 is estimated that about 75 percent of children with 15 emotional and behavioral disorders do not receive
16 specialty mental health services.

17 (3) Only half of schools across the United
18 States report having formal partnerships with com-
19 munity mental health providers to deliver mental
20 health services.

21 (4) If a school is going to respond to the mental 22 health needs of its students, it must have access to
23 resources that provide family-centered, culturally
24 and linguistically appropriate supports and services.

1 (5) Effective school mental health programs re-
 2 flect the collaboration and commitment of families,
 3 students, educators, and other community partners.

4 (6) Many schools have school-employed mental
 5 health providers supporting student's social, emo-
 6 tional, and behavioral health needs in schools. The
 7 most common types of staff providing mental health
 8 services in schools were school counselors, followed
 9 by school nurses, school psychologists and school so-
 10 cial workers. Three-quarters of schools had at least
 11 one school counselor on staff, over two-thirds had a
 12 school psychologist or school nurse, and 44 percent
 13 had a school social worker.

14 (7) Although it is well recognized that mental
 15 health directly affects children's learning and devel-
 16 opment, in a recent study one-third of school dis-
 17 tricts reported decreased funding for school mental 18 health services, and at the same time two-thirds of 19 school districts reported increased need for such 20 services.

21 SEC. 3. PURPOSES.

22 It is the purpose of this Act to—

23 (1) revise, increase funding for, and expand the 24 scope of the Safe Schools-Healthy Students program

1 in order to provide access to more comprehensive
 2 school-based mental health services and supports;

3 (2) provide for comprehensive staff development
 4 for school and community service personnel working
 5 in the school; and

6 (3) provide for comprehensive training for chil-
 7 dren with mental health disorders, for parents, sib-
 8 lings, and other family members of such children,
 9 and for concerned members of the community.

10 SEC. 4. AMENDMENTS TO THE PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE

18 “PART VII—SCHOOL-BASED MENTAL HEALTH”.

August 3, 2007

The Honorable Grace Napolitano
U.S. House of Representatives
1610 Longworth House Office Building
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Representative Napolitano:

The undersigned organizations applaud your introduction of the Mental Health in Schools Act of 2007 and pledge our support for passage of this initiative. We share your vision in expanding the availability of comprehensive school-based mental health services for students in communities across America. Undoubtedly, healthier students learn and perform better and a key component of academic success is addressing students' mental health.

Sparked by the final report of the President's New Freedom Commission on Mental Health and a November 2005 national survey released by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), efforts to enhance interventions for children's mental health must involve schools. Given the Virginia Tech tragedy and students returning soon for the new school year, the timing could not be better for taking a new look at the role of schools as part of our efforts to transform the mental health system and the delivery of mental health services.

The Mental Health in Schools Act of 2007 – similar to the Senate companion bill, S. 1332 – is important legislation not only because it emphasizes early interventions and referrals for treatment, but it also includes programs and services that promote positive mental health and prevent mental health problems. This comprehensive approach is needed in order to stem the cycle of failure that is a result of ignored mental health problems.

We commend you for introducing the Mental Health in Schools Act of 2007. Your bill recognizes that mental disorders are prevalent among our nation's youth and the introduction of your bill is an important step in addressing our nation's mental health crisis among youth. We strongly urge the House to pass this legislation as soon as possible.
