--->It appears to me you have listed all the reasons why I would never want spent fuel in our region and I can't imagine the people who utilize the power generated by nuclear plants would be so eager to have that power if the waste products were stored in their respective communities or "back yards" for the next 10,000 years. I am no more eager to have a by-product shipped to my back yard that I haven't even received the advantage of having powered my home or business, not to mention the land technically belongs to the Western Shoshone Indians. Yucca Mountain is just as a completely bad an idea as was the Ghosute Site--Utah and Nevada are not the nations DUMPING ground.
