Conversation: BPA concerns

Subject: BPA concerns

I've read about the Bisphenol A affecting lab-animals and 'am concern about the effects in humans. I would like to know why not all plastics have "recycling numbers". And what should be done about those plastics without numbers.

Also, others that don't have a numbers like plastic hangers, dose cups, plastic flatware, zip closures bags, what should be done with those? Are they safe to use?

A very concern homemaker.
