The data compilation and documentation necessary to conform the Model Gram and Nutrient Composition Data Tapes to the specifications of the Health and Nutrition Examination Survey Data Tape Release Program were done by Dale Hitchcock, Connie Dresser, Margaret Carroll, Everette Collins, Evelyn Stanton and Rita M. Weinberger of the Division of Health Examination Statistics, National Center for Health Statistics. A special note of gratitude is due Darian Varga who patiently typed and retyped this material.

MODEL GRAM AND NUTRIENT COMPOSITION DATA TAPES

Health and Nutrition Examination Survey, HANES I, 1971-1975

Description of Survey: A detailed description of the design, content and operation of HANES I is provided in the following reports: 'Plan and Operation of the Health and Nutrition Examination Survey, DHEW Pub. No. (HSM) 73-1310, Series I, Nos. 10a and 10b, Public Health Service, Washington, D. C., U. S. Government Printing Office, February 1973. Also provided is a draft report on the augmentation survey of adults describing the relevant field work conducted between July 1974 and October 1975.

Target Population: HANES I was conducted on a nationwide probability sample of approximately 28,000 persons, ages 1-74 years, from the civilian, noninstitutionalized population of the coterminous United States, excepting those persons residing on Indian reservations. The survey started in April 1971 and for many survey components was completed in June 1974. The HANES I sample was selected so that certain population groups thought to be at high risk of malnutrition (persons with low incomes, preschool children, women of childbearing age and the elderly) were oversampled at known rates. Adjusted sampling weights were then computed within 60 age, sex and race categories in order to inflate the sample in such a manner as to closely reflect the noninstitutionalized population, ages 1-74 years, of the United States at the midpoint of the survey.

Although the main emphasis of HANES I was on nutrition, a subset of those sample persons aged 25-74 received a more detailed health examination which was continued through October 1975. No particular oversampling of subgroups of the population was done in this subsample (e.g. women of childbearing age were not oversampled as they were for the major nutrition component of HANES I). This subsample is also representative of the United States population aged 25-74 during the time of HANES I.

After the nutrition survey was completed, the detailed examination given to the 25-74 age group was continued until the total number of examined persons was approximately double the number of examinees who received the detailed examination during the nutrition survey.

Data Collection: Information for all examined sample persons in HANES I was obtained by means of a household interview, a general medical history, a 24-hour dietary intake recall interview, a food frequency interview, a food program questionnaire, a general medical examination, dental, dermatological and ophthalmological examinations, anthropometric measurement, hand-wrist x-rays (of those ages 1-17 only) and 24 hematological, blood chemistry, and urological laboratory determinations.

In addition to the information received on all examined persons by means of the above questionnaires, procedures and measurements, the following data were gathered on the subsample of adults aged 25-74: a medical history supplement; supplementary questionnaires concerning arthritis, respiratory and cardiovascular conditions (when applicable); a health care needs questionnaire; a general well-being questionnaire; an extended medical examination; x-rays of the chest and hip and knee joints; audiometry; electrocardiography; goniometry; spirometry; pulmonary diffusion and tuberculin tests; along with additional laboratory determinations.

Use of HANES Data

With the goal of mutual benefit, NCHS requests the cooperation of recipients of data tapes in certain actions related to their use:

- A. Any published material derived from the data should acknowledge the National Center for Health Statistics as the original source. It should include also a disclaimer which credits any analyses, interpretations, or conclusions reached to the author (recipient of the tape) and not to NCHS, which is responsible only for the initial data.
- B. Consumers who wish to publish a technical description of the data will make a reasonable effort to insure that the description is not inconsistent with that published by NCHS. This does not mean, however, that NCHS will review such descriptions.

Errors in the Data Sets

The data users' tapes have been subjected to a great deal of careful editing. However, due to the large volume of data in the series, it is likely that a small number of errors or discrepancies remain undetected. We would appreciate if any such errors are detected that they should be brought to our attention so that new corrected copies of the tape can be created and errata sheets be issued to previous purchasers.

General Notes

Model Gram and Nutrient Composition Tapes: Information on each sample person's usual pattern of food intake was obtained during the first National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey (HANES I) conducted by the National Center for Health Statistics from April 1971 through June 1974 on a national probability sample of persons 1-74 years of age in the U. S. civilian noninstitutionalized population. A dietary interview, conducted by professional dietary staff, consisted of a 24-hour recall and food frequency questionnaire. The dietary data bank and information derived from interviewing techniques are available on three sets of data tapes: (1) the Model Gram and Nutrient Composition Tapes; (2) the 24-Hour Food Consumption Intake Tape; and (3) the Dietary Frequency and Adequacy Tape.

The Model Gram Tape, which is the first of the HANES I dietary data bank tapes, consists of food items in numeric order with designated food group numbers, food codes, alphanumeric descriptions, preferred model codes and their gram conversion factors. This section is the basis for coding all reported food items for the 24-Hour Recall Intake Tape.

The Nutrient Composition Data Bank Tape is the actual nutrient analysis in 100 gram edible portions of all codes listed in the Model Gram Section. Tape I is essential for recording and analyzing the actual 24-Hour Recall Intake data.

The 24-Hour Recall Intake Tape provides such information as specific food items and their quantities ingested for all regular meals, between meal foods or snacks consumed on the day, midnight to midnight, preceding the interview for each sample person interviewed.

The first half of the Dietary Frequency and Adequacy Tape consists of the food frequency data. The frequency of consumption of foods from 18 groups ingested daily and/or weekly in the usual pattern (taken as being that which had prevailed over the three-month interval prior to the nutrition interview) accounted for all regular meals eaten as well as for between meal foods or snacks, Monday through Sunday, weekends and holidays. The food frequency method served as a quality control technique for the 24-hour recall method of obtaining data while depicting diet profiles over a longer period of time.

The adequacy portion of the tape summarizes the total nutrient intake from the 24-hour recall record by selected nutrient for each sample person and evaluates that nutrient intake in relation to selected dietary intake standards used in HANES I. (These standards were developed with the advice from an ad hoc group which considered standards from the World Health Organization, Interdepartmental Committee on Nutrition for the National Defense Manual, the Food and Nutrition Board, National Research Council's Recommended Dietary Allowances, and those used in the Ten-State Nutrition Survey.)

Formats of the 24-Hour Recall and the three-month Food Frequency questionnaires are in the Vital and Health Statistics Series 1, No. 10b.

The measure model and the gram conversion factor in columns 76-80 indicates specifically the gram equivalent of one ounce for that food code. The first letter of the model gram information indicates the preferred measure model used when recording quantities; e.g. 01 01320 milk, whole, 3.5% fat C00030 This line of information states that code 01320 is the code for whole milk in the dairy group 01, that C (cups) is the preferred measure model, and that one fluid ounce of this milk has a gram equivalent of 30. The preferred measure models used were: C - cup  W - weight  U - unit  X - grams

75		1	Continued When the letter "C" starts the model gram, "C" refers to liquid measure or cup measure. "C" cannot be interchanged with a "W" value which refers to weight measure or "X" which refers to foods only reported in UNITS. There is one exception to the "U" value. This value was also used as a weight measure when reporting two pounds of meat or a portion thereof. The "C" Value allows foods to be reported in cups, glasses, spoons, mounds or bottles only. The "W" value allows foods to be reported in weights, discs, square, pats, and pie models only.
76-80		5	Gram Conversion Factor or model gram is a five-digit number which represents the gram equivalent of one ounce of that particular food code.

DETAILED NOTE #1

Section A. The first 200 records on the model gram tape contain all model codes available to the dietary interviewers for recording the size of the edible portion of each food consumed by the sample person.

1. The name of each Preferred Model Code (cols. 5-9) includes all alphabetic data and sign symbols (+, -, =). These symbols are used whenever the respondent uses two models to describe the size serving. Section B.2.

= is used when the respondent states the serving size is between two models.

+ is used when the respondent ate the equivalent of two models.

- is used when the respondent served one model and had the equivalent of the latter model left over.
2. Numeric Equivalent for each Preferred Model Code in ounces (cols. 10-13). All numeric data is in a format as listed in Section B.1.
3. Type of Measure Model used (cols. 14-15). "C" refers to cup; "W" refers to weight; "CW" refers to cup or weight; "U" refers to unit. (When Measure Model GM or GMS is used, column 10-13 and 14-15 are blank.) Measure models are described in Section C.
4. For models applied to specific foods, refer to GUIDE FOR USE OF FOOD MODELS in Section D.
5. A listing of the food model code name records on the model gram tape is contained in Section B.2.
