As part of a series of orientations to libraries and information centers, FLICC is offering an opportunity for federal librarians to become acquainted with the National Gallery of Art Library. Founded in 1941, the library is a major national art research center. The collection of more than 350,000 resources on the history, theory and criticism includes monographs on artists as well as international exhibition, museum, and private collection and auction catalogues, and comprehensive holdings of auction catalogues from all major American and European auction houses from the seventeenth century to the present. The program will highlight distinctive aspects of the NGA Library's Collections and
