Affordable Graduate School – You’ve Earned It!

The Peace Corps’ Fellows/USA graduate school program encompasses more than 50 universities. The universities provide you with financial aid, and you put the skills learned in Peace Corps to work at home, through internships in underserved American communities. With degree programs ranging from agriculture to urban studies, and university partners located across the country, Fellows/USA more than likely has the degree you want, where you want it.

Successful completion of your Peace Corps service entitles you to lifetime eligibility for the Fellows/USA program. Consider the benefits of becoming a Peace Corps Fellow:

- Earn an advanced degree at reduced cost and help a U.S. community at the same time.
- Learn valuable skills during a “hands-on” internship that can easily be applied to a career in the United States or abroad.
- Study and exchange ideas with other returned Peace Corps Volunteers (RPCVs) who share your interests.
- Gain strong personal and professional support through access to a broad network of professionals in your field of study.
