Episode Intro/Preview

Gizmo Robot	I Need Supplies This is a story about helping your teacher get some supplies for all the students. There are many supplies that you will recognize, but you may not know how to ask for them in English! You will need to learn how to describe and ask for several items. It's a big job and Teacher Wang is counting on you. Here are some words and phrases you will hear in the story. (In English w/ Chinese text under English text) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • I want a notebook • I need a yellow pencil. • Do you have a pen? • How many do you need? • Nice job. • What do you want? • What color do you want? • Thank you. Thanks. • You're welcome. • blue • colors • dictionary • eraser • green • here • not • one - ten • paper • pen • pencil • red • supplies Click on Your Mission to begin.	Episode Intro / Episode Preview Helper is on a screen, giving a brief description of what learners are about to see in English. GRAMMAR LINKS
Here they are/ Here it is	When someone says, "Here they are," they are presenting you with multiple things or ideas, as in "I am giving these things/ideas to you." Use "it" instead of "they" for a single thing/idea: "Here it is" means "I am giving you this one thing/idea."
one	Often, "one" substitutes for the most recently mentioned noun. In this case, the noun is "dictionary."
they are/it is	"They are" is the third person plural of "to be." The third person singular of "to be" is the word "is."
pens	Most nouns can be made plural by adding "s." But be careful: many require "es" and some are altogether irregular; for example, "supplies" is the plural of "supply."
a, an	"a" is an article signifying a single, unspecified one of the noun to which it refers: "a notebook" means any one of the available notebooks. "An" means the same thing as "a," replacing "a" when the next word begins with a vowel.
I need / I want	"I want" is the present tense of "to want." "I need" is the present tense of "to need." "I want" is used to indicate desire: "I want my team to win." "I need" is used to indicate necessity: "I need a doctor."
CULTURE LINKS
to/too/two	Some words in English sound exactly the same, but are spelled differently and have different meanings, such as "to," "too," and "two."
Thank you.	You say "Thank you" after someone does something positive for you. It is very common expression, used many times a day, in both formal and informal situations. A more casual version of "thank you" is "thanks." You can also say, "Thanks a lot."

You're welcome	After someone says to you, "Thank you," you say, "You're welcome." This phrase is used many times a day. Americans generally use courtesy words and phrases to their family members and friends, just like they do to strangers.

COACHING 1 & 2

BE THE COACH 1
Fei and Ping are sitting at a table outside. Ping is lifting papers looking for something. Fei looks at the camera and makes a puzzled questioning face. Robot appears on screen.
Gizmo	Look, there is Ping. She needs something. What should Fei ask her? (Answers are in English) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Where are you from? ▪ What do you need? ▪ How much is a stamp? 	User watches the intro movie. Helps carry the story mission along through the episode. User answers question. If correct, advance to next scene. If incorrect 1st time, gets a “try again” If incorrect 2nd time, program auto answers the question sending the user back to practice. User will not advance on the map.
Closing Scene
Fei	What do you need?	Fei smiles at the user then turns to Ping and says.
Ping	I need a pencil.
Fei	Here it is.
BE THE COACH 2
Scene opens inside the camp store. Zooms in on supply keeper as if the user and Lu are approaching the counter. Maybe we see Ping and Fei approach the counter.
Supply keeper	Hello. What do you need?	User listens to the scene then responds to Gizmo’s question.
Gizmo	Time to be the coach! Ping and Fei need two green notebooks. What should she say? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ I need a friend. ▪ Do you have apples? ▪ I need two green notebooks.
Ending – Play when user answers correct.
Supply Keeper	Hello. What do you want?
Ping	Do you have two green notebooks?
Supply Keeper:	Yes. Here they are.
Fei:	Thank you.
Supply Keeper:	You’re welcome.	Ping and Fei turn and nod to the camera. Exit back to the map.

Courtesy words	Americans typically use courtesy words and phrase with their family members and friends; just like they do with strangers. In China, courtesy phrases such as “thank you,” “your welcome” or “would you please” are usually considered too formal and not used with close friends or family members with elderly people. Many of these courtesy words have become shortened or abbreviated over time. You will often hear “thanks,” rather than “thank you” and even a simple “welcome” over “your welcome” Also, while it is common to hear “excuse me” in America, it more often is said as “ ‘suze me”. It notice many Americans cover their mouths with a hand when coughing and yawning, saying “bless you” when someone sneezes, and even “excuse me” they burp in public! Another courtesy phrase, “pardon me”, is used when trying to get someone’s attention that you don’t know. Like “Pardon me. Do you know what time it is?”
Colors	Colors in Language Over time the English language has expanded to include idioms, or colorful expressions that a commonly understood meaning among a shared culture. There are many idioms using the names of color. Red: To “see red” is to be angry. A “red herring” is a distraction, intended to pull your attention in a different direction. If you are “taking the red eye” you are on an overnight airplane flight. If a business is “in the red,” it is losing money. Blue: “Blues” is a style of music that began in the Delta area of the Mississippi river. A “blue blood” is a person of wealthy or noble decent. If you are “feeling blue” you are sad, but if you are “true blue” you are a loyal and faithful friend. Green: A “greenback” is slang for a US dollar bill. The “green room” is where performers wait before going on stage or on television. “Green-eyed monster” is a term for jealousy. A “greenhorn” is a newcomer lacking certain skills and a “green thumb” means you are good a making plants grown and flourish. Purple: If you are “turning purple” you are probably very angry about something. A “purple heart” is US military honor for soldiers wounded or killed in battle. Purple is considered a royal color. Yellow: If someone is told they have a “yellow streak” they are being called a coward. “Yellow journalism” is a term to describe irresponsible reporting habits. White: To “whitewash” something is to downplay the seriousness

	of it or to make something presentable that isn't. A "white sale" means that sheets, towels and other bed or bath items are highly discounted. "White lightning" is a slang term for highly potent, homemade liquor. A "whiteout" can occur during a blizzard making visibility impossible. Black: If a business is "in the black" it is making money. "Blackmail" means to threaten someone for money. "Blacklisted" is a list of persons or organizations to be boycotted or punished. A "black sheep" is an outcast.
