How To Figure AMT

- Step 1. Modify regular taxable income to get alternative minimum taxable income
- Step 2. Subtract AMT exemption amount and figure tentative minimum tax (limits some credits)
- Step 3. Subtract regular tax (with some adjustments) to get alternative minimum tax

Step 1. Alternative Minimum Taxable Income

- Begin with regular taxable income
- Add or subtract AMT adjustments (IRC sections 56, 58, and 59)
- Add AMT tax preference items (IRC section 57)
- Equals alternative minimum taxable income

Major Adjustments and Preferences

- Taxes itemized on Schedule A
- Job expenses and certain miscellaneous itemized deductions subject to 2% floor
- Medical expenses (\uparrow AGI limit)
- Private activity bond interest
- Certain home mortgage interest
- Depreciation
- Passive activity income or loss
- Disposition of property
- Incentive stock options

Step 2. Tentative Minimum Tax

Credit for Prior Year Minimum Tax

- AMT is caused by (a) deferral items (e.g., depreciation) that generally do not cause permanent differences and (b) exclusion items (e.g., exemptions) that do cause permanent differences
- Credit is for AMT from deferral items
- Use Form 8801 to figure the credit. Carry unused credits forward indefinitely
- For tax years beginning after 2006, the credit for prior year minimum tax cannot be less than the AMT refundable credit amount. The additional credit allowable under this provision is refundable.

If the long-term unused minimum tax credit is:	Then the tentative AMT refundable credit amount is:
Less than $5,000	The long-term unused minimum tax credit
At least $5,000, but not more than $25,000	$5,000
