Join Thousands of Peace Corps Alumni to Help "Bring the World Together"

by RPCV Cori Welbourn Bassett (Sri Lanka, 1994-96)
NPCA Special Events Director

The National Peace Corps Association (NPCA)—the organization for Peace Corps alumni and friends—will hold its conference honoring the 41st Anniversary of the Peace Corps from June 20-23, 2002, in Washington, D.C. Conference planners have been busy creating an occasion that will make lasting memories. Check the NPCA Web site at <www.rpcv.org> and click on "Honor the 40th" to get updated information about the conference.

Opening Events

The conference starts on Thursday, June 20, with Advocacy Day which will link Peace Corps alumni with their Congressional representatives. The event is capped off by a Congressional Reception at the Library of Congress.

Also on that day, the second annual Business Symposium will focus on the connection between Peace Corps service and business values. Featured speakers include RPCV Robert Haas (Cote d'Ivoire), chairman of Levi Strauss and RPCV Sandra Jaffee (Ethiopia-Eritrea), executive vice president of Citibank.

On Friday, June 21, Peruvian President Alejandro Toledo Manrique will give the keynote address. Toledo, an economist whose ancestry is Indian, was taught in his youth by Peace Corps Volunteers.

Later in the morning, the NPCA will present the Shriver Award for Humanitarian Service and the Loret

Miller Ruppe Award for Outstanding Community Service to individuals and groups who best exemplify the work and ideals of former Volunteers.

This ceremony is followed by the Host Country Awards that honor host country nationals whose association with Peace Corps has allowed them to have an impact in their home communities. The afternoon includes panel discussions on topics such as RPCVs in public service, public health and humanitarian service, and bridging divides that are cultural, digital, racial, and religious.

The evening ends with Country of Service dinners at various embassies and restaurants. Additionally, a Peace Corps Staff Reunion dinner will take place at the National Museum for the Women in the Arts from 6 to 9 p.m. (a special ticket is required for this event).

Career Fair and Workshops

One of the highlights of every NPCA Conference is the Career Fair where recruiters for companies and organizations that value the Peace Corps experience set up shop and talk to prospective employees. In addition to the fair, workshops will focus on career change strategies, retirement careers, and post-Volunteer job-search strategies.

This year, the Career Fair and workshops are free to all conference registrants and only $35 for non-registrants. The employer booths will be open on Friday, June 21 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The career workshops will run Friday, June 21 and Saturday, June 22. About 30 employers and 14 graduate schools are scheduled to participate. Additionally, over six career workshops will take place.

Additional Activities

On Saturday morning, Volunteers will wake up early to help revitalize area parks for Volunteer day, then head to the Smithsonian National Zoological Park for a world music concert and exhibits. Some of the embassies will be opening their doors to welcome the Volunteers who served in their country.

The highlight of Saturday evening will be a "Dinner Salute to Peace Corps Giants" honoring Sargent Shriver and hosted by Bill Moyers at the Omni Shoreham, the conference hotel. Africare Founder C. Pane Lucas and Shriver Award winner Marjorie May will also be honored. The event is in memoriam of the late former Peace Corps Directors Carolyn Payton, Loret Miller Ruppe, and Paul D. Coverdell. Proceeds from this event go to the NPCA and its programs, such as the Emergency Response Network.

Throughout the weekend, RPCV authors will read their works and participate in writers's workshops on topics such as writing about the Peace Corps experience, poetry, and travel writing.

The World Bazaar will be open on Friday and Saturday for the sales of handicrafts and Peace Corps alumni group merchandise as well as conference t-shirts and NPCA memberships.

Another conference tradition takes place Sunday morning. Peace Corps alumni from around the country gather early near the Lincoln Memorial under the flags of the countries in which they served. They will march across the Memorial Bridge to Arlington Cemetery, file past President John F. Kennedy's grave, then walk on to the Memorial Amphitheater for an inspiring and hope-filled remembrance of those who died in Volunteer service and a look ahead to new challenges for the whole former Volunteer community.

Everyone then heads back to the Lincoln Memorial area for a Peace Corps family picnic and games co-sponsored by the Peace Corps' Rosslyn Recruiting office from 12 noon to 4 p.m. near the National Mall (at 23rd Street and Constitution Avenue). This event is free and open to all (lunches must be purchased from the NPCA one day in advance).

For Additional Information

To join the festivities, register now online for the NPCA's National Conference at: <www.rpcv.org/pages/celebrate.cfm> or contact Custom Conference Solutions and request a paper registration packet toll-free at 866-324-7103.

For those who aren't registered, the NPCA is looking for hundreds of on-site volunteers to do everything from check name badges at the doors to help direct people across the Memorial Bridge during the procession. Volunteers get in free to whatever event they volunteer for.
