MEMORANDUM FOR BUREAU CHIEF PROCUREMENT OFFICERS

FROM:

Thomas A. Sharpe, Jr.
Senior Procurement Executive
Office of the Procurement Executive

SUBJECT:

Required guidance for structuring and formatting Interagency Acquisitions and compliance with Section 801 of the National Defense Authorization Act when purchasing supplies or services for the Department of Defense (DoD)

Purpose: To provide guidance from the Office of Management and Budget on how to structure and format interagency acquisitions that have the primary purpose of obtaining services or products from contractors; and to require compliance with Section 801 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008 when purchasing supplies or services via interagency agreements for the Department of Defense (DoD).

Effective Date: October 1, 2008

Expiration Date: This AB will expire when cancelled or superseded.

Background: ABs 02-21 and 07-03 are still in affect, since they apply to all types of intragovernmental transactions (e.g. intragovernmental fiduciary activities, such as those with the Office of Personnel Management (e.g., USAJOBS) or the Department of Labor (e.g., Workers' Compensation), etc. This is additional guidance for interagency acquisitions that have the primary purpose of obtaining services or products from contractors. The attached document provides guidance to help agencies (1) make sound business decisions to support the use of interagency acquisitions; and (2) strengthen the management of assisted acquisitions. Particular emphasis is placed on helping requesting agencies and servicing agencies manage their shared fiduciary responsibilities in assisted acquisitions. The guidance includes a checklist of roles for each responsibility in the acquisition lifecycle and a model interagency agreement to reinforce sound contracting and fiscal practices.

In accordance with Section 801 of the 2008 National Defense Authorization Act, Treasury's Senior Procurement Executive has signed the required certification mandating Treasury compliance with defense procurement requirements for fiscal year 2009 contract actions that will be taken on behalf of the DoD. Attached is memorandum dated September 17, 2008 to Bureau Chief Procurement Officers from the Senior Procurement Executive requiring Bureau compliance with Section 801 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008 when procuring property and services in excess of the simplified acquisition threshold.

Required Actions: Beginning on October 1, 2008, and thereafter, Treasury Bureau Chief Procurement Officers (BCPOs) shall ensure that decisions to use interagency acquisitions are supported by best interest determinations, as described in the attached guidance. BCPOs shall further ensure that new interagency agreements for assisted acquisitions entered on or after November 3, 2008, contain the elements enumerated in Appendix 2 or follow the model agreement in Appendix 3. BCPOs shall use the checklist at Appendix 1 to facilitate the clear identification of roles and responsibilities. BCPOs shall also consider modifying existing long-term interagency agreements for assisted acquisitions in accordance with this guidance, as appropriate and practicable.

When procuring property or services for the DoD in excess of the simplified acquisition threshold, interagency agreements will comply with Section 801 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008 and attachment 2 of this memorandum.

Questions about this AB may be directed to Karen Davis at Karen.davis@do.treas.gov or (202) 622-2092.

SUBJECT:

Improving the Management and Use of Interagency Acquisitions

Interagency acquisitions offer important benefits to federal agencies, including economies and efficiencies and the ability to leverage resources. The attached guidance is intended to help agencies achieve the greatest value possible from interagency acquisitions.

Effective management and use of interagency acquisitions is a shared responsibility, especially for assisted acquisitions. Lack of clear lines of responsibility between agencies with requirements (requesting agencies) and the agencies which provide acquisition support and award contracts on their behalf (servicing agencies) has contributed to inadequate planning, inconsistent use of competition, weak contract management, and concerns regarding financial controls.

This document provides guidance to help agencies (1) make sound business decisions to support the use of interagency acquisitions and (2) strengthen the management of assisted acquisitions. Particular emphasis is placed on helping requesting agencies and servicing agencies manage their shared fiduciary responsibilities in assisted acquisitions. The guidance includes a checklist of roles for each responsibility in the acquisition lifecycle and a model interagency agreement to reinforce sound contracting and fiscal practices. The guidance reflects comments provided by Chief Acquisition Officers, Senior Procurement Executives, and Chief Financial Officers. The document was also shared with other interested stakeholders, including the Chief Information Officers and the Government Accountability Office (GAO), and reflects comments received from those parties as well.

Beginning on October 1, 2008, and thereafter, agencies shall ensure that decisions to use interagency acquisitions are supported by best interest determinations, as described in the attached guidance. Agencies shall further ensure that new interagency agreements for assisted acquisitions entered on or after November 3, 2008, contain the elements enumerated in Appendix 2 or follow the model agreement in Appendix 3. Agencies shall use the checklist at Appendix 1 to facilitate the clear identification of roles and responsibilities. Agencies shall also consider modifying existing long-term interagency agreements for assisted acquisitions in accordance with this guidance, as appropriate and practicable.

Providing for the sound management and use of interagency acquisitions is a key step for realizing the intended efficiencies of interagency contracts. Improving the governance structure for creating and renewing these vehicles is equally important, especially for multi-agency contracts. We have made important strides to leverage the government's vast buying power under the Federal Strategic Sourcing Initiative (FSSI) and to identify suitable executive agents that can manage government-wide acquisition contracts (GWACs) on behalf of customers across government. We must build on these efforts in order to maximize the contribution of interagency contracts to mission success. I intend to work with members of the Chief Acquisition Officers Council, including its Strategic Sourcing Working Group, to design a business case review process similar to that currently used for the designation of executive agents for GWACs and to define the structure required to support such a process.

Please have your acquisition officials work with program managers, contracting officers technical representatives, finance officers, information technology officers, legal staff and others involved in your agency's interagency acquisitions to ensure the effective implementation of this guidance and compliance with its requirements. Questions may be referred to Mathew Blum at (202) 395-4953 or mblum@omb.eop.gov.

Thank you for your attention to this important subject.

Introduction

This guidance is intended to help agencies achieve the greatest value possible from interagency acquisitions. Interagency acquisition is the term used to describe the process by which one agency (requesting agency), uses the contracts and/or contracting services of other agencies (servicing agencies) to obtain supplies and services.

Materials in this document are presented in a question and answer format for easy reference. Both requesting agencies and servicing agencies should review and refer to this guidance with the goal of improving the management and use of interagency acquisitions and mitigating associated risks.

What's in this guidance document

- Background on the purpose and structure of interagency acquisitions (pp. 2-3).
- Steps for maximizing value from interagency acquisitions (pp. 4-12).
- Supplemental materials to help requesting agencies and servicing agencies manage their shared responsibilities for assisted acquisitions, including:
 - ✓ a checklist for establishing clear lines of responsibility between the agencies (pp. 13-30);
 - ✓ the required elements for an interagency agreement (pp. 31-35);
 - ✓ a model interagency agreement (pp. 36-45); and
 - ✓ an example of a completed interagency agreement (pp. 46-65).

This guidance does not address all interagency business transactions, only those that are undertaken for the primary purpose of obtaining services or products from contractors. Accordingly, this document does not address intragovernmental fiduciary activities, such as those with the Office of Personnel Management (e.g., USAJOBS) or the Department of Labor (e.g., Workers' Compensation), reimbursable work performed by federal employees (other than acquisition assistance), or interagency activities where contracting is incidental to the purpose of the transaction (e.g., activities performed under the Environmental Protection Agency's Cooperation Authority). In addition, assisted acquisitions associated with government-wide programs that are centrally mandated and/or managed (e.g. e-government) are also not addressed.

Interagency acquisitions are a type of intragovernmental transaction. Accordingly, agencies should also refer to the Business Rules for Intragovernmental Transactions, found in the Treasury Financial Manual, Volume 1, Bulletin 2007-03 (<http://www.fms.treas.gov.tfm.voll/07-03.pdf>).

I. Background

What is an interagency acquisition? Interagency acquisition is the term used to describe the procedure by which an agency needing supplies or services obtains them using another agency's contract, the acquisition assistance of another agency, or both. Interagency acquisitions typically involve two government agencies: the requesting agency, which is the agency with the requirement, and the servicing agency which provides acquisition support, administers contracts for other agencies' direct use, or both. In some cases, more than one servicing agency may be involved in an assisted acquisition.

What are the benefits of an interagency acquisition? Both requesting agencies and servicing agencies can benefit from well-executed interagency acquisitions. Requesting agencies benefit from the capabilities or expertise of the servicing agency and the efficiencies and economies associated with leveraging resources and requirements. Servicing agencies benefit from the improved pricing and terms and conditions they can negotiate when consolidating, in a justified manner, other agencies' needs with their own and among requesting agencies.

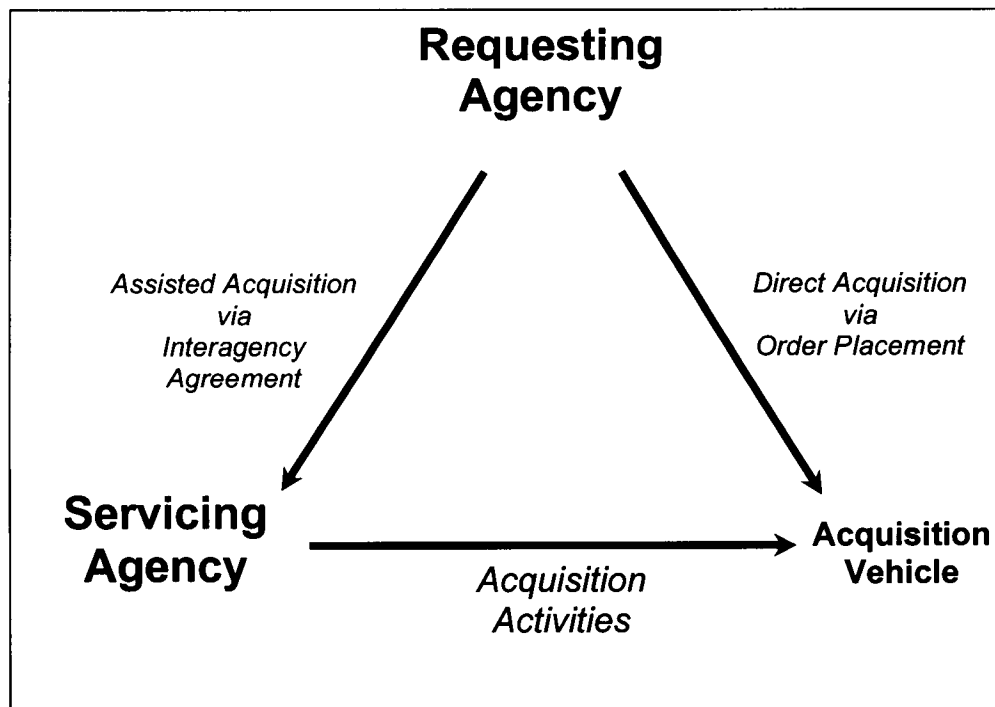

How are interagency acquisitions formed? Interagency acquisitions are commonly conducted through indefinite delivery vehicles (IDVs), such as task and delivery order contracts. The structure of these vehicles is well suited to the efficiencies and economies that agencies seek through interagency acquisitions. IDVs permit the issuance of orders for the performance of tasks or the delivery of supplies against prepositioned contracts and agreements during the term of the vehicle. The IDVs used most frequently to support interagency acquisitions are Multiple Award Schedules (MAS), government-wide acquisition contracts (GWACs), and multi-agency contracts (MACs).

Types of Interagency Acquisitions

There are two types of interagency acquisitions: direct acquisitions and assisted acquisitions.

- In a direct acquisition, the requesting agency places an order directly against the servicing agency's IDV. The servicing agency manages the IDV but does not participate in the placement of an order.
- In an assisted acquisition, the servicing agency and requesting agency enter into an interagency agreement pursuant to which the servicing agency performs acquisition activities on the requesting agency's behalf, such as awarding a contract, task order, or delivery order. In many assisted acquisitions, the servicing agency also manages the IDV against which orders are placed. For example, the General Services Administration's Federal Acquisition Service will typically place orders against a MAS contract or a GWAC on behalf of its requesting agencies. Sometimes, a servicing agency may find that another agency's IDV can better serve the requesting agency's needs, in which case two servicing agencies would be involved in the interagency acquisition.

What is the authority for an interagency acquisition? A variety of laws authorize interagency acquisitions. The Economy Act, 31 U.S.C. 1535, provides general authority to undertake interagency acquisitions that is available to agencies when more specific statutory authority does not exist. An increasing number of interagency acquisitions are falling outside the Economy Act because many of interagency contract vehicles that are widely used today, such as the MAS and GWACs, are not governed by the Economy Act. Instead, these vehicles are governed by more specific statutory authority. For example, the MAS is governed by Title III of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (41 U.S.C. 251, et seq.) and Title 40 U.S.C. 501, Services for Executive Agencies. GWACs are authorized by section 5112(e) of the Clinger-Cohen Act (40 U.S.C. 11302(e)).

As a general matter, laws and regulations give agencies the discretion to determine whether to use an interagency acquisition. This guide discusses how agencies can exercise sound business discretion to maximize benefits when using interagency acquisitions to meet their mission needs.¹ Section II describes how agencies can help ensure decisions to use direct acquisitions achieve best value. Section III describes the steps agencies should take to achieve the greatest value from assisted acquisitions.

¹ The guidance in this document applies to both Economy Act and non-Economy Act transactions. It is intended to provide overarching principles for exercising sound judgment irrespective of the particular law governing a given acquisition. Over the years, however, a number of requirements have been developed in the Federal Acquisition Regulation \(FAR\) to implement the Economy Act. References are made in this guide to these FAR provisions to remind readers of specific additional requirements that must be met where the Economy Act applies.

II. Direct acquisitions

Key Points to Remember About Direct Acquisitions

Description

- A direct acquisition is a type of interagency acquisition where the requesting agency acquires goods or services through another agency's indefinite delivery vehicle (IDV) by placing an order directly against the IDV.

Steps for maximizing value

- Requesting agencies should ensure use of another agency's IDV is in the best interest of the government taking into account factors such as:
 - the suitability of the vehicle,
 - the value of using the vehicle, and
 - the requesting agency's ability to use the vehicle effectively.
- Requesting agencies must be prepared to take on the various responsibilities in the acquisition lifecycle, from acquisition planning and contract execution to contract administration.

A. Best interest determinations

What should a requesting agency consider before entering into a direct acquisition? Before placing an order directly against another agency's IDV, the requesting agency's contracting officer, or other official designated in accordance with agency procedure, should ensure that an interagency acquisition is in the best interest of the government, taking into account factors such as:

- Suitability – whether the IDV that would be used can satisfy the agency's schedule, performance, and delivery requirements, including any statutory, regulatory, and policy requirements.
- Value – whether the IDV's pricing, including vehicle access fees (sometimes referred to as an "industrial funding fee"), is fair and reasonable and comparable to what the agency is likely to secure by creating its own contract, and structured to allow the agency to obtain the best value for its needs.
- Expertise – whether the agency's contracting office personnel have the appropriate experience and training to properly place an order on a timely basis, take advantage of beneficial features, such as discounts, and effectively administer the order.

What presumptions may be made if using an FSSI vehicle, the SmartBuy Program, the Schedules Program or a GWAC? Agencies may presume that direct acquisitions made by qualified individuals are in the best interest of the government if the vehicle was established under the Federal Strategic Sourcing Initiative, the SmartBuy Program, the Federal Supply Schedules Program, or is a government-wide acquisition contract (GWAC) operating pursuant to Executive Agent designations granted by OMB under the Clinger-Cohen Act. However, documentation in the contract file should still establish that the acquisition vehicle is suitable for the agency's needs. This information could be documented as part of the agency's planning documents. A formal Determination and Finding (D&F) or Justification and Approval (J&A) is not required.

B. Executing responsibilities

How are responsibilities managed in a direct acquisition? In a direct acquisition, the burden falls largely on the requesting agency to satisfy the various responsibilities in the acquisition lifecycle, including the determination that the agency's requirement falls within the scope of the IDV. The servicing agency, as the IDV owner, manages the IDV but does not participate in the placement of the order.

Responsible Stewardship in a Direct Acquisition

Requesting agencies should . . .

- review materials about the IDV and contact the servicing agency, as "owner" of the IDV, for any special requirements (e.g., requirements related to appointment of contracting officer technical representatives (COTRs)), training opportunities, and questions about the vehicle, such as scope, terms and conditions, competition requirements, and ordering procedures.

Servicing agencies should . . .

- post information on use of its vehicle, including competition requirements and ordering procedures, make training available to requesting agency users, and provide sufficient points of contact to address questions from users in a timely manner.

III. Assisted acquisitions

Key Points to Remember About Assisted Acquisitions

Description

- An assisted acquisition is a type of interagency acquisition where the parties enter into an interagency agreement pursuant to which the servicing agency performs acquisition activities on the requesting agency's behalf, such as awarding a contract, task order, delivery order, or blanket purchase agreement.

Steps for maximizing value

- Requesting agencies should choose a servicing agency that can provide the necessary assistance by giving consideration to factors such as:
 - the servicing agency's authority, experience, and expertise;
 - the servicing agency's ability to comply with the requesting agency's laws and policies;
 - customer satisfaction with the servicing agency's past performance; and
 - reasonableness of the servicing agency's fees.
- Requesting and servicing agencies need to develop clear and complete interagency agreements that:
 - establish general terms and conditions to govern the relationship between the agencies, including each party's role in carrying out responsibilities in the acquisition lifecycle; and
 - provide information required to demonstrate a bona fide need and authorize the transfer and obligation of funds.

A. Best interest determinations

What should a requesting agency consider before entering into an assisted acquisition? Before requesting the assistance of a servicing agency to perform acquisition activities, the requesting agency should determine that acquisition assistance is needed (e.g., expertise or acquisition resources are not readily available within the agency) and a servicing agency can provide the assistance required.

In choosing an appropriate servicing agency, the requesting agency should give consideration to:

- the servicing agency's authority, experience, and expertise in entering into a contract or order for the required products or services;
- the servicing agency's ability to comply with the requesting agency's statutes, regulations, and policies, including any unique acquisition and fiscal requirements;
- customer satisfaction with the servicing agency's performance, both in terms of responsiveness and results achieved; and
- reasonableness of the servicing agency's fees.

If the assisted acquisition is subject to the Economy Act, a warranted contracting officer or another official designated by the agency head must approve a D&F. See Subpart 17.5 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation.

For assisted acquisitions outside the Economy Act, agencies shall ensure that the individuals who establish the need for assistance and select a servicing agency have the necessary expertise to make these business decisions. Individuals who establish the need for acquisition assistance from an acquisition office outside of their agency must have the necessary expertise to make this business decision. Agencies shall take the following steps to ensure the acquisition office within the requesting agency is appropriately involved in these decisions:

- Interagency acquisitions over $200,000. The requiring office (e.g., the program office) shall provide notice of a planned interagency acquisition to the head of the acquisition office within the requesting agency that is responsible for providing assistance to the requiring office. The notice shall include a brief description of the service or product, estimated dollar amount, and the name of the external acquisition organization that will provide acquisition assistance. Notice shall be sent by electronic mail with return receipt to provide a record for management reviews and audits. Before the request is sent to the outside servicing acquisition office, the notifier shall allow its internal acquisition office one week to respond to the notice.
- Interagency acquisitions over $500,000. The notifier from the requiring office shall take the same steps as described for interagency acquisitions over $200,000, except that instead of simply requesting a response from the in-house acquisition office, the notifier shall seek its concurrence and allow one week for response. Non-concurrences shall be presented to the requesting agency's Senior Procurement Executive and resolved within one week of the non-concurrence.

Agencies shall not split requirements to avoid carrying out the responsibilities described above. However, they may address multiple orders in one notice if the underlying needs are related, especially if they are of a repetitive nature. Where multiple orders are addressed in one notice, the description should be sufficiently clear so that the in-house contracting office may consider the relative benefits of having needs met through an interagency acquisition versus through the agency's own support structure and contract vehicles.

B. Interagency agreements

When is an interagency agreement required and what purpose does it serve? All assisted acquisitions must be supported by an interagency agreement (IA). An IA serves two purposes in an interagency acquisition. First, the IA establishes the general terms and conditions that govern the relationship between the requesting agency and the servicing agency. Second, the IA provides information that is required to demonstrate a bona fide need and authorize the transfer and obligation of funds.²

How is an IA structured? There are two main parts to an IA for an assisted acquisition, corresponding to each of the purposes described above.

The Key Parts of an Interagency Agreement for an Assisted Acquisition

Part A: General terms and conditions. Part A describes the general terms and conditions that will govern the relationship between the requesting agency and the servicing agency. Part A includes the responsibilities and respective roles that each party must carry out to ensure the effective management and use of an interagency contract.

Part B: Requirements and funding information. Part B provides specific information on the requesting agency's requirements sufficient to demonstrate a bona fide need. It also includes financial information that is required to authorize the transfer and obligation of funds for both the acquisition and the assistance provided by the servicing agency in connection with the acquisition.

All IAs must have clearly enumerated terms and conditions, requirements information, and funding information. However, the level of detail will vary based on the breadth of acquisition assistance to be provided (e.g., the period over which assistance will be provided, the number of offices requiring assistance) as well as the complexity and dollar value of the requesting agency's individual requirements.

For example, a one-time request for assistance associated with a simple, small dollar acquisition of commercial items would likely have less detail and,

² 31 U.S.C. 1502(a), sometimes referred to as the "bona fide needs statute," states that "[t]he balance of an appropriation or fund limited for obligation to a definite period is available only for payment of expenses properly incurred during the period of availability or to complete contracts properly made within that period of availability and obligated consistent with section 1501." To determine whether appropriated funds are being used only for legitimate needs arising during their period of availability requires that the description of goods or services for acquisition be specific, definite, and clear. A description meeting these parameters is required to demonstrate a bona fide need and support a binding agreement that can be recorded as an obligation in the fiscal year that the funds are available for obligation.

perhaps, fewer terms than a request for ongoing assistance to carry out a series of complex acquisitions for services. Unlike a one-time request for assistance, a long-term agreement would require the parties to identify the organizations and types of products and services that could be covered in future requests for assistance and to periodically review terms and conditions.

Each part of the IA is discussed in greater detail below. Agencies should carefully review their IAs for assisted acquisitions in conjunction with the guidance below to ensure they are clear and complete. Agencies are encouraged to use the model IA in Appendix 3 and, at a minimum, should ensure that their IAs contain the elements enumerated in Appendix 2.

1. Part A: General terms and conditions.

What information must be included in Part A of the IA? The individual elements that make up Part A are described in Table A of Appendix 2. Table A identifies the party responsible for providing the necessary information for each element and a cross-reference to language in the model IA in Appendix 3. For an example of how a completed "Part A" of an IA might read, see Appendix 4.

The delineation of roles and responsibilities is a critical component of the terms and conditions in the IA. Subsection III.C, below, and Appendix 1 provide guidance to help requesting agencies and servicing agencies establish clear lines of responsibility.

As explained in subsection C, the checklist in Appendix 1 is designed to help servicing agencies and requesting agencies think about their respective roles for each responsibility in the acquisition lifecycle. The IA must document the understandings reached by the parties after they have reviewed and discussed the checklist. For an example of how such understandings may be documented, see section A.6 of the completed IA in Appendix 4.

The effective execution of an assisted acquisition is the shared responsibility of both the servicing agency and the requesting agency. Accordingly, the parties must work together in developing the terms and conditions that will govern their relationship and ensure their stakeholders – program, acquisition, financial, legal, and other interested personnel – understand how assisted acquisitions will be managed.

Is Part A designed to cover only a single assisted acquisition or may it cover multiple assisted acquisitions? Part A may cover a single assisted acquisition but will more typically serve as an umbrella document to cover multiple assisted acquisitions. If multiple assisted acquisitions are anticipated, Part A should identify the period over which the servicing agency is authorized to provide assistance, the organizations that may request assistance, the organizations that may provide assistance, the general types of services and/or products that the requesting agency may need, unique terms and conditions, and restrictions, if any (e.g., funding restrictions). The scope and performance period may be amended by mutual agreement of the parties.

Describing Products and Services in Part A of the Interagency Agreement

- The purpose of describing products and services in Part A is to establish a general understanding between the agencies, where there will be an ongoing relationship, of the types of services and products that management in the requesting agency is authorizing its personnel to acquire (e.g., information technology but not construction) and the types of needs the servicing agency is prepared to acquire on behalf of the requesting agency.
- The description of products and services in Part A is not intended to establish a bona fide need and therefore may be as general or specific as the parties deem appropriate.
- Individual acquisitions conducted under the IA must fall within this described scope, which may be amended by the parties. In addition, before the servicing agency can undertake an acquisition, the requesting agency must provide information on its requirements in Part B of the IA in a specific, definite, and clear manner.

When does Part A become effective? Part A becomes effective when it is signed by authorizing officials of both agencies or such later date as specified in the agreement. However, a fiscal obligation is not created until the parties execute Part B, which requires the requesting agency to describe a bona fide need and to prepare funding documentation which must then be accepted by the servicing agency.

Responsibilities for Maintaining Part A of the Interagency Agreement

- Part A should be maintained by both the requesting agency and the servicing agency in the offices that signed the document.
- The document should be made available to officials within the agency who may be involved in executing Part B.
- Agencies should review the terms and conditions annually for IAs that are longer than one year in length and execute amendments as necessary. They should also periodically review performance under the IA to determine if expectations are being met (e.g., is each party carrying out its respective responsibilities in a timely manner) and document a summary of their assessment. The assessment should be signed and dated by each agency's reviewing official and maintained in the IA file.

2. Part B: Requirements and funding information.

What is the purpose of Part B of the IA? Part B serves multiple purposes. It is a requirements document to demonstrate a bona fide need. It is also an obligating document. Its execution authorizes the transfer and acceptance of funds for an assisted acquisition.³

What information must be included in Part B of the IA? Part B must provide specific information on the requesting agency's requirements sufficient to demonstrate a bona fide need. It also must include financial information that is required to authorize the transfer and obligation of funds for both the acquisition and the assistance provided by the servicing agency in connection with the acquisition.

The individual elements that make up Part B are described in Table B of Appendix 2. Table B identifies the party responsible for providing the necessary information for each element and a cross-reference to language in the model IA in Appendix 3. For an example of how a completed "Part B" of an IA might read, see Appendix 4.

The requesting agency and servicing agency must work together to ensure the IA provides requirements information that is specific, definite, and clear to demonstrate a bona fide need. In addition, the funding information must demonstrate that the amounts being transferred for obligation are for the purpose designated, meet time restrictions, and are legally available.

It is important that the terms and conditions established in Part A either be incorporated by reference or attached to Part B, irrespective of whether the parties use the sample IA or an alternate agency form for interagency transfers, such as DD Form 448, "Military Interdepartmental Purchase Request (MIPR) and DD Form 448-2, "Acceptance of MIPR."

When does Part B become effective? Part B becomes effective when it is signed by authorizing officials of both agencies. The requesting agency incurs a fiscal obligation when Part B is accepted by the servicing agency.

When might an addendum to Part B be appropriate? Appropriate documentation must accompany each transfer of funds. In some cases, the documentation may take the form of an addendum to Part B, as opposed to the issuance of a new Part B. For example, an addendum may be sufficient to address the ongoing transfer of funds in relation to a requirement for which incremental funding has been authorized. The addendum in this circumstance might document purpose, obligation amount, and requesting agency and servicing agency funding information, with signatures of authorized servicing and requesting agency officials (see sections B.1, 11, 12, 13, and 18 of Part B of the model IA). By contrast, an addendum would not be sufficient to support the transfer of funds to cover a new requirement.

Maintaining Part B of the Interagency Agreement

- Part B should be maintained by the contracting office in the servicing agency that is responsible for providing acquisition assistance.
- Each contract or task/delivery order file that is established under the IA must either include or incorporate by reference a copy of the entire IA, including reference numbers, location, and execution dates for Part A and each Part B (including addenda, if any).
- Part B should also be maintained by the cognizant program office in the requesting agency.
- Part B should be forwarded to the financial offices of both the requesting and servicing agencies to ensure the proper transfer, obligation, collection, and accounting of funds.

C. Executing responsibilities

What responsibilities are associated with an assisted acquisition and who is responsible for carrying them out? Achieving success on an assisted acquisition requires effective execution of the same basic responsibilities that must be carried out when an agency acquires a product or service for itself or through a direct acquisition, including acquisition planning, contract execution, and contract administration. However, in an assisted acquisition, most acquisition responsibilities are shared. For this reason, the role each agency plays in meeting these responsibilities must be clearly understood by the respective parties to mitigate risk and achieve the best results possible from the assisted acquisition.

May roles be negotiated between the parties? Most of the roles each agency plays in meeting responsibilities in the acquisition lifecycle may be negotiated, consistent with applicable laws, regulations, and policies. There are some exceptions where certain roles must be performed by the same party in every assisted acquisition. For example, the requesting agency must:

- establish a bona fide need in terms that are specific, definite and clear;
- certify that funds are appropriate for the designated purpose, meet time limitations, and are legally available for the specified acquisition;
- identify any acquisition laws, fiscal laws or related policies that are unique to, or that restrict, the agency; and

- provide the servicing agency with the correct funding agency code needed for accurate reporting to the Federal Procurement Data System (FPDS).

What steps must requesting agencies and servicing agencies take to ensure clear lines of responsibility? Requesting agencies and servicing agencies must carefully delineate their roles and responsibilities in the IA. Appendix 1 provides a checklist of the responsibilities in an interagency acquisition to help requesting agencies and servicing agencies define their respective roles in the IA. For each responsibility, the checklist describes roles for the requesting agency and the servicing agency.

Circumstances underlying individual IAs will vary. For this reason, the description of certain roles has been generalized in the checklist. Accordingly, the parties will need to definitize their respective roles in the IA after reviewing the checklist.

Where can an example be found showing the documentation of roles and responsibilities in an interagency agreement? For an example of how understandings between the parties may be documented, see section A.6 of the completed IA example in Appendix 4.

Appendix 1Checklist of Roles and Responsibilities in Assisted Acquisitions

To ensure sound management and use of interagency acquisitions and maximize their impact on agency effectiveness, requesting and servicing agencies must establish clear lines of responsibility for each step in the acquisition lifecycle, from planning to contract closeout.

This Appendix is designed to help requesting and servicing agencies define their respective roles in the IA. It identifies 16 basic responsibilities in an interagency acquisition. For each responsibility, the appendix describes associated roles for the requesting agency and the servicing agency.

12. Determine when contract modifications are required
13. Prepare contractor performance evaluations
14. Review and approve invoices and make payment
15. Perform contract closeout & retrieve unexpended funds

Other Responsibilities

16. Track contract activity

This checklist should be used only as a starting point. The description of certain roles has been generalized in the checklist, because the nature and circumstances underlying an IA will vary, as will the needs and internal policies of the agencies involved. For example, IAs will need to establish:

- which agency prepares the statement of work, performance work statement, or statement of objectives;
- the required level of contract administration, the type of official required, and the agency that will provide the official;
- which agency is responsible for establishing acceptance of deliverables; and
- if the requesting agency intends to use direct fund cite.

Accordingly, requesting and servicing agencies should work together to definitize their roles in the IA (see section A.6 of the model IA), so that accountability is effectively established. A sample IA is provided at Appendix 4, using the model IA, so readers may see one example of how roles identified in this appendix might be delineated in the model IA.

The Requesting Agency shall be responsible for interest owed under the Prompt Payment Act except that the Servicing Agency shall be responsible for interest owed to the contractor due to delays created by actions of the Servicing Agency.

A.9. Contract Termination, Disputes and Protests

If a contract or order awarded pursuant to this IA is terminated or cancelled or a dispute or protest arises from specifications, solicitation, award, performance or termination of a contract, appropriate action will be taken in accordance with the terms of the contract and applicable laws and regulations. The Requesting Agency shall be responsible for all costs associated with termination, disputes, and protests, including settlement costs, except that the Requesting Agency shall not be responsible to the Servicing Agency for costs associated with actions that stem from errors in performing the responsibilities assigned to the Servicing Agency. If the IA is terminated, the agencies shall specify the terms of the termination, including costs attributable to each party and the disposition of awarded and pending actions.

If the Servicing Agency incurs costs due to the Requesting Agency's failure to give the requisite notice of its intent to terminate the IA, the Requesting Agency shall pay any actual costs incurred by the Servicing Agency as a result of the delay in notification, provided such costs are directly attributable to the failure to give notice.

A.13. Interpretation of IA

If the Servicing Agency and Requesting Agency are unable to agree about a material aspect of either Part A or Part B of the IA, the parties agree to engage in an effort to reach mutual agreement in the proper interpretation of this IA, including amendment of this IA, as necessary, by escalating the dispute within their respective organizations.

If a dispute related to funding remains unresolved for more than sixty (60) calendar days after the parties have engaged in an escalation of the dispute, the parties agree to refer the matter to their respective Agency Chief Financial Officers with a recommendation that the parties submit the dispute to the CFO Council Intragovernmental Dispute Resolution Committee for review in accordance with Section VII of Attachment 1 to the Treasury Financial Manual, Volume 1, Bulletin No. 2007-03, Intragovernmental Transactions, Subject: Intragovernmental Business Rules, or subsequent guidance.

Memorandum for BCPOs dated 9/17/2008 from the Director, Office of the Senior Procurement Executive,
Subject: Compliance with Section 801 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20220

SEP 17 2008

MEMORANDUM FOR BUREAU CHIEF PROCUREMENT OFFICERS

FROM: Thomas A. Sharpe
Director, Office of the Senior Procurement Executive

SUBJECT: Section 801 of the National Defense Authorization Act
for Fiscal Year 2008

DoD can procure property and services in excess of the simplified acquisition threshold through civilian agencies only if: (1) the civilian agencies agree to adhere to defense procurement requirements; and (2) the Under Secretary of Defense (AT&L) determines that the procurement is in the best interest of the Department. DoD must issue guidance on interagency contracting within 6 months of enactment of the Act.

To ensure compliance with Section 801 of the Act, the Director, Defense Procurement Acquisition Policy, and Strategic Sourcing for DoD has requested that the Senior Procurement Executive of the Department of the Treasury (Treasury) certify that all acquisition conducted on behalf of DoD by Treasury in FY2009 will comply with defense procurement requirements for FY2009.

Based on the system of record for procurement data (the Federal Procurement Data System – Next Generation), the Bureau of the Public Debt is the only Treasury bureau currently providing procurement services to the DOD.

However, all BCPOs are directed to follow applicable defense procurement requirements when conducting acquisition for DoD in FY 2009.

Section 801 of the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) for Fiscal Year (FY) 2008 requires joint reviews by the Department of Defense (DoD) Inspector General and the inspectors general of non-defense agencies such as: GSA, Treasury, Interior, NASA, Veterans Affairs, and NIH. The reviews must determine whether the civilian agencies' procurement requirements in carrying out procurements on behalf of DoD are compliant with DoD's practices.

Please acknowledge your understanding of this requirement and confirm that you will comply.
