

Instructions for Form 4684

Casualties and Thefts

General Instructions

Paperwork Reduction Act Notice

We ask for the information on this form to carry out the Internal Revenue laws of the United States. You are required to give us the information. We need it to ensure that you are complying with these laws and to allow us to figure and collect the right amount of tax.

The time needed to complete and file this form will vary depending on individual circumstances. The estimated average time is:

Recordkeeping	1 hr., 12 min.
Learning about the law or the form	10 min.
Preparing the form	58 min.
Copying, assembling, and sending the form to the IRS	35 min.

If you have comments concerning the accuracy of these time estimates or suggestions for making this form more simple, we would be happy to hear from you. You can write to both the IRS and the Office of Management and Budget at the addresses listed in the instructions for the tax return with which this form is filed.

Purpose of Form

Form 4684 is used to report gains and losses from casualties and thefts. If you had a gain or loss from a casualty or theft, you must use Form 4684 to figure the amount to report. Attach Form 4684 to your tax return.

Deductible Losses

You may deduct losses from fire, storm, shipwreck, or other casualty, or theft (for example, larceny, embezzlement, and robbery).

If your property is covered by insurance, you must file a timely insurance claim for reimbursement of your loss. Otherwise, you cannot deduct the loss as a casualty or theft loss. However, the portion of the loss that is not covered by insurance is still deductible.

Related expenses.—The related expenses you have due to a casualty or theft, such as expenses for the treatment of personal injuries or for the rental of a car, are not deductible as casualty or theft losses.

Costs for protection against future casualties are not deductible but should be capitalized as permanent improvements. An example would be the cost of a levee to stop flooding.

Gain on Reimbursement

If the amount you receive in insurance or other reimbursement is more than the cost or other basis of the property, you have a gain. If you have a gain, you may have to pay tax on it, or you may be able to postpone reporting the gain.

Do not report the gain on damaged, destroyed, or stolen property if you receive property that is similar or related to it in service or use. Your basis for the new property is the same as your basis for the old property.

Generally, you must report the gain if you receive unlike property or money as reimbursement. But you can choose to postpone all or part of the gain if, within 2 years of the end of the first tax year in which any part of the gain is realized, you purchase:

1. Property similar or related in service or use to the damaged, destroyed, or stolen property, or
2. A controlling interest (at least 80%) in a corporation owning such property.

To postpone all of the gain, the cost of the replacement property must be equal to or more than the reimbursement you received for your property. If the cost of the replacement property is less than the reimbursement received, you must report the gain to the extent the reimbursement exceeds the cost of the replacement property.

For details on how to postpone the gain, get Pub. 334, Tax Guide for Small Business.

Which Sections To Complete

Section A, page 1, is for figuring casualty or theft gains and losses to property that is not used in a trade or business or for income-producing purposes.

Section B, page 2, is for figuring casualty or theft gains and losses to property that is used in a trade or business or for income-producing purposes.

If property is partly used in a trade or business, and partly for personal purposes, such as a personal home with a rental unit, figure the personal part in Section A and the business part in Section B.

Additional Information

Get the following publications for more information:

Pub. 225, Farmer's Tax Guide.

Pub. 525, Taxable and Nontaxable Income.

Pub. 529, Miscellaneous Deductions.

Pub. 534, Depreciation.

Pub. 547, Nonbusiness Disasters, Casualties, and Thefts.

Pub. 550, Investment Income and Expenses.

Pub. 551, Basis of Assets.

Pub. 584, Nonbusiness Disaster, Casualty, and Theft Loss Workbook.

When To Deduct a Loss

Deduct the part of your casualty or theft loss that is not reimbursable. Deduct it in the tax year the casualty occurred or the theft was discovered. However, a disaster loss and a loss from deposits in insolvent or bankrupt financial institutions may be treated differently. See Disaster Losses below, and Special Treatment for Losses on Deposits in Insolvent or Bankrupt Financial Institutions on page 2.

If you are not sure whether part of your casualty or theft loss will be reimbursed, do not deduct that part until the tax year when you are reasonably certain that it will not be reimbursed.

If you are reimbursed for a loss you deducted in an earlier year, include the reimbursement in your income in the year you received it, but only to the extent the deduction reduced your tax in an earlier year.

See Pub. 547 for special rules on when to deduct losses from casualties and thefts to leased property.

Disaster Losses

A disaster loss is a loss that occurred in an area determined by the President of the United States to warrant Federal disaster assistance.

If your home was located in a disaster area and your state or local government ordered you to tear it down or move it because it was no longer safe to use as a home, the loss in value because it is no longer safe is treated as a disaster loss. The order for you to tear down or move the home must have been issued within 120 days after the area was officially declared a disaster area.

Use the value of your home before you moved it or tore it down as its fair market value after the casualty for purposes of figuring the disaster loss.

You may elect to deduct a disaster loss in the prior tax year as long as the loss would otherwise be allowed as a deduction in the year it occurred.

This election must be made by filing your return or amended return for the prior year, and claiming your disaster loss on it, by the later of the following two dates:

1. The due date for filing your original return (without extensions) for the tax year in which the disaster actually occurred.

2. The due date for filing your original return (including extensions) for the tax year immediately before the tax year in which the disaster actually occurred.

You may revoke your election within 90 days after making it by returning to the Internal Revenue Service any refund or credit you received from the election. If you revoke your election before receiving a refund, you must repay the refund within 30 days after receiving it.

The return claiming the disaster loss should specify the date(s) of the disaster and the city, town, county, and state in which the damaged or destroyed property was located.

Note: To determine the amount to deduct for a disaster loss, you must take into account as reimbursements any benefits you received from Federal or state programs to restore your property.

Special Treatment for Losses on Deposits in Insolvent or Bankrupt Financial Institutions

If you are an individual who incurred a loss from a deposit in a bank, credit union, or other financial institution because it became insolvent or bankrupt, and you can reasonably estimate your loss, you can choose to deduct the loss as:

- A casualty loss to personal use property on Form 4684, or
- An ordinary loss (miscellaneous itemized deduction) on Schedule A (Form 1040), line 20. The maximum amount you can claim is $20,000 ($10,000 if you are married filing separately). Your deduction is reduced by any expected state insurance proceeds and is subject to the 2% limit.

If you choose, you can wait until the year of final determination of the actual loss and treat that amount as a nonbusiness bad debt. A nonbusiness bad debt is deducted on Schedule D (Form 1040) as a short-term capital loss.

If you are a 1% or more owner, an officer of the financial institution, or related to any such owner or officer, you cannot deduct the loss as a casualty loss or as an ordinary loss. See Pub. 550 for the definition of "related."

You cannot choose the ordinary loss deduction if any part of the deposits related to the loss is federally insured.

If you decide to deduct the loss as a casualty loss or as an ordinary loss and you have more than one account in the same financial institution, you must include all your accounts. Once you make the choice, you cannot change it without permission from the IRS.

To choose to deduct the loss as a casualty loss, complete Form 4684 as follows: On line 1, show the name of the financial institution and write "Insolvent Financial Institution." Skip lines 2 through 9. Enter the amount of the loss on line 10, and complete the rest of Section A.

If, in a later year, you recover an amount you deducted as a loss, you may have to include in your income the amount recovered for that year. For details, see Recoveries in Pub. 525.

Specific Instructions

Section A—Personal Use Property

Use a separate column for lines 1 through 9 to show each item lost or damaged from a single casualty or theft. If more than four items were lost or damaged, use additional sheets following the format of lines 1 through 9.

Use a separate Form 4684 through line 12 for each different casualty or theft occurrence involving property not used in a trade or business or for income-producing purposes.

Do not include any loss previously deducted on an estate tax return.

If you are liable for casualty or theft losses to property you lease from someone else, see Pub. 547.

Line 2.—Cost or other basis usually means original cost plus improvements. Subtract any postponed gain from the sale of a previous main home. Special rules apply to property received as a gift or inheritance.

Line 3.—Enter on this line the amount of insurance or other reimbursement you received or expect to receive for each property. Include on this line your insurance coverage, whether or not you are submitting a claim for reimbursement. For example, your car worth $2,000 is totally destroyed in a collision. You are insured with a $500 deductible, but decide not to report it to your insurance company because you are afraid the insurance company will cancel your policy. In this case, enter $1,500 on this line.

If you expect to be reimbursed, but have not yet received payment, you must still enter the expected reimbursement from the loss. If, in a later tax year, you determine with reasonable certainty that you will not be reimbursed for all or part of the loss, you can deduct for that year the amount of the loss that is not reimbursed.

Kinds of reimbursements.—Insurance is the most common way to be reimbursed for a casualty or theft loss, but if:

- Part of a Federal disaster loan under the Disaster Relief Act is forgiven, the part you do not have to pay back is considered a reimbursement.
- The person who leases your property must make repairs or must repay you for any part of a loss, the repayment and the cost of the repairs are considered reimbursements.
- A court awards you damages for a casualty or theft loss, the amount you are able to collect, minus lawyers' fees and other necessary expenses, is a reimbursement.
- You accept repairs, restoration, or cleanup services provided by relief agencies, it is considered a reimbursement.
- A bonding company pays you for a theft loss, the payment is also considered a reimbursement.

Lump-sum reimbursement.—If you have a casualty or theft loss of several assets at the same time and you receive a lump-sum reimbursement, you must divide the amount you receive among the assets according to the fair market value of each asset at the time of the loss.

Grants, gifts, and other payments.—Grants and other payments you receive to help you after a casualty are considered reimbursement only if they are specifically designated to repair or replace your property. Such payments, if so designated, will reduce your casualty loss deduction. If there are no conditions on how you have to use the money you receive, it is not a reimbursement.

Use and occupancy insurance.—If insurance reimburses you for your loss of business income, it does not reduce your casualty or theft loss. The reimbursement is income, however, and is taxed in the same manner as your business income.

Line 4.—Even though you cannot deduct a loss for any part of a casualty or theft for which you did not claim reimbursement to which you are entitled, you cannot realize a gain from a reimbursement you did not claim. Therefore, in figuring a gain on line 4, subtract your cost or other basis in the property (line 2) only from the amount of reimbursement you actually received. Enter the result on line 4, but do not enter less than zero. If you filed a claim for reimbursement but did not receive it until after the year of the casualty or theft, see Pub. 547 for information on how to report the reimbursement.

Lines 5 and 6.—Fair market value is the price at which the property would change hands between a willing buyer and a willing seller, each having a knowledge of the relevant facts. The difference between the fair market value immediately before the casualty or theft and the fair market value immediately after represents the decrease in fair market value because of the casualty or theft.

The fair market value of property after a theft is zero if the property is not recovered.

Fair market value is generally determined by competent appraisal. The appraiser's knowledge of sales of comparable property about the same time as the casualty or theft, knowledge of your property before and after the occurrence, and the methods of determining fair market value are important elements in proving your loss.

The appraised value of property immediately after the casualty must be adjusted (increased) for the effects of any general market decline that may occur at the same time as the casualty or theft. For example, the value of all nearby property may become depressed because it is in an area where such occurrences are commonplace. This general decline in market value is not part of the property's decrease in fair market value as a result of the casualty or theft.

Replacement cost or the cost of repairs is not necessarily fair market value. However, you may be able to use the cost of repairs to the damaged property as evidence of loss in value if:

- The repairs are necessary to restore the property to the condition it was in immediately before the casualty;
- The amount spent for repairs is not excessive;
- The repairs only correct the damage caused by the casualty; and
- The value of the property after the repairs is not, as a result of the repairs, more than the value of the property immediately before the casualty.

To figure a casualty loss to real estate not used in a trade, business, or for income-producing purposes, measure the decrease in value of the property as a whole. All improvements, such as buildings, trees, and shrubs, are considered together as one item. Figure the loss separately for other items. For example, figure the loss separately for each piece of furniture.

Line 15.—If there is a net gain on this line, combine your short-term gains with your short-term losses, and enter the net short-term gain or loss on your Schedule D. Combine your long-term gains with your long-term losses and enter the net long-term gain or loss on your Schedule D. In both cases, write "Form 4684, Section A."

The holding period for long-term gains and losses is more than one year. For short-term gains and losses it is one year or less. To figure the holding period, begin counting on the day after you received the property and include the day the casualty or theft occurred.

Line 17.—Estates and trusts figure adjusted gross income in the same way as individuals, except that the costs of administration are allowed in figuring adjusted gross income.

Section B—Business and Income-Producing Property

Use a separate column of Part I, lines 19 through 27, to show each item lost or damaged from a single casualty or theft. If more than four items were lost or damaged, use additional sheets following the format of Part I, lines 19 through 27.

Use a separate Section B, Part I, of Form 4684 for each different casualty or theft occurrence involving property used in a trade or business or for income-producing purposes. Use one Section B, Part II, to combine all Sections B, Part I.

For details on the treatment of casualties or thefts to business or income-producing property, including rules on the loss of inventory through casualty or theft, see Pub. 334.

Note: A gain or loss from a casualty or theft of property used in a passive activity is not taken into account in determining the loss from a passive activity unless losses similar in cause and severity recur regularly in the activity. See Form 8582, Passive Activity Loss Limitations, for details.

Line 20.—Cost or adjusted basis usually means original cost plus improvements, minus depreciation allowed or allowable (including any section 179 expense deduction), amortization, depletion, etc. Special rules apply to property received as a gift or inheritance. See Pub. 551 for details.

Line 21.—See the instructions for line 3.

Line 22.—See the instructions for line 4.

Lines 23 and 24.—See the instructions for lines 5 and 6 for details on determining fair market value.

Loss on each item figured separately.—Unlike a casualty loss to personal use real estate, in which all improvements are considered one item, a casualty loss to business or income-producing property must be figured separately for each item. For example, if casualty damage occurs to both a building and to trees on the same piece of real estate, measure the loss separately for the building and for the trees.

Line 26.—If you have business or income-producing property that is completely lost (becomes totally worthless) because of a casualty or theft, figure your loss without taking into account any decrease in fair market value.

Line 28.—If the amount on line 28 includes losses on property held one year or less, and on property held for more than one year, you must allocate the amount between lines 29 and 34 according to how long you held each property. Enter on line 29 all gains and losses to property held one year or less. Enter on line 34 all gains and losses to property held more than one year, except as provided in the instructions for line 33 below.

Part II, Column (a).—Use a separate line for each different casualty or theft.

Part II, Column (b)(i).—Enter the part of line 28 from trade, business, rental, or royalty property (other than property you used in performing services as an employee). Enter in column (b)(ii) the part of line 28 from property you used in performing services as an employee.

Part II, Column (b)(ii).—Enter the part of line 28 from income-producing property and from property you used in performing services as an employee. Income-producing property is property held for investment, such as stocks, notes, bonds, gold, silver, vacant lots, and works of art.

Line 31.—If Form 4797, Sales of Business Property, is not otherwise required, enter the amount from this line on page 1 of your tax return, on the line identified as from Form 4797. Write "Form 4684."

Line 32.—Estates and trusts, enter on the "Other deductions" line of your tax return. Partnerships, enter on Form 1065, Schedule K, line 11. S corporations, enter on Form 1120S, Schedule K, line 10. Write "Form 4684."

Line 33.—If you had a casualty or theft gain from certain trade, business, or income-producing property held more than one year, you may have to recapture part or all of the gain as ordinary income. See the instructions for Form 4797, Part III, for more information on the types of property subject to recapture. If recapture applies, complete Form 4797, Part III, and this line, instead of Form 4684, line 34.

Line 38a.—Taxpayers, other than partnerships and S corporations, if Form 4797 is not otherwise required, enter the amount from this line on page 1 of your tax return, on the line identified as from Form 4797. Write "Form 4684."