A SENSE OF PLACE

PRESERVING THE MANHATTAN PROJECT AT LOS ALAMOS

The Atomic Heritage Foundation Presents
A Sense of Place

The Manhattan Project was one of the most important developments of the 20th century, yet sixty years later, our links to this history are in danger of being lost. The V Site (on the cover) and the Oppenheimer House (above) have been restored, but others remain. The Gun Site, the Pond Cabin, the Quonset Hut, the Slotin Accident Building, and the Concrete Bowl each played a key role in the production of the world's first nuclear weapons, and each is in need of preservation.

In A Sense of Place, author and historian Richard Rhodes takes you behind the fence to see where the scientists of the Manhattan Project lived and worked, and what is being done to save these historic landmarks.
