

Educational Attainment in the United States (Update)

Population Characteristics

March 2000

Issued December 2000

P20-536

DATA HIGHLIGHTS

Detailed tabulations are now available which provide statistics on educational attainment of the noninstitutional population of the United States, based on the March 2000 Current Population Survey (CPS). These tables provide information such as:

- Eighty-four percent of all adults ages 25 and over had completed high school and 26 percent had completed a bachelor's degree or more.
- The high school completion level of young adults (ages 25 to 29) was 88 percent, while the college completion level was 29 percent.
- Among women ages 25 and over, 84 percent had earned a high school diploma, and 24 percent had completed a bachelor's degree or more.
- College completion rates for young women (ages 25 to 29) exceeded those for young men, 30 percent and 28 percent, respectively.
- For White non-Hispanics ages 25 and over, 88 percent had completed high school and 28 percent had a bachelor's degree or more.
- Annual average earnings in 1999 for those ages 18 and over who had completed high school only was $24,572; for those with a bachelor's degree it was $45,678.
- Ninety percent of the employed civilian labor force ages 25 and over had a high school diploma.
- High school completion levels for those ages 25 and over were highest for the Midwest (87 percent) and lowest for the South (82 percent).

DETAILED TABULATIONS

The set of newly revised detailed tabulations consists of 16 tables from the March 2000 CPS and 3 historical tables. The electronic version of these tables is available on the Internet at the Census Bureau's World Wide Web site (www.census.gov). Once on the site, go to "Subjects A-Z," then click on "E," and then on "Educational Attainment."

An abbreviated paper version of these tables is available as PPL-140 for $34.00. To receive a paper copy, send a request for "PPL-140, Educational Attainment in the United States: March 2000," along with a check or money order in the amount of $34.00 payable to "Commerce-Census-88-00-9010," to:
