COMMISSION ANNOUNCEMENTS

COMMISSION STAFF ISSUES ACCOUNTING BULLETIN ON SELECTED LOAN LOSS ALLOWANCE METHODOLOGY AND DOCUMENTATION ISSUES

On July 6, the Office of the Chief Accountant and the Division of Corporation Finance of the Securities and Exchange Commission released Staff Accounting Bulletin (SAB) No. 102, which provides certain views of the staff on the development, documentation, and application of a systematic loan loss allowance methodology. The Commission previously issued guidance on this topic in December 1986 through Financial Reporting Release No. 28 (FRR No. 28). The SAB applies to registrants that are creditors in loan transactions that, individually or in the aggregate, have a material effect on the registrant's financial statements.

This SAB was prepared as a result of the March 10, 1999 Joint Interagency Letter to Financial Institutions signed by the SEC, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Federal Reserve Board, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, and the Office of Thrift Supervision. In that Joint Letter, the agencies agreed to provide parallel guidance on loan loss allowance methodologies and supporting documentation. On July 6, the banking agencies also issued their guidance through the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council as interagency guidance, "Policy Statement on Allowance for Loan and Lease Losses Methodologies and Documentation for Banks and Savings Institutions."

The staff views in the SAB are based on the premise underlying FRR No. 28, that loan loss estimates developed without a disciplined methodology or adequate documentation can undermine the credibility of an institution's financial statements. Since the issuance of FRR No. 28, the Commission's staff has continued to observe, from time to time, a lack of discipline in the establishment of allowances for loan losses and situations in which companies may have weaknesses in their documentation related to loan loss allowances. The General Accounting Office has made similar observations about the loan loss allowance practices of depository institutions, as it reported in its October 1994 Report to Congressional Committees, Depository Institutions: Divergent Loan Loss Methods Undermine Usefulness of Financial Reports. The SAB provides guidance to registrants to assist them in improving both their systematic methodologies for estimating loan loss allowances and their supporting documentation.

This SAB does not change any of the accounting profession's existing rules on accounting for loan loss provisions or allowances. As agreed in the March 1999 Joint Letter, the SEC and the federal banking agencies continue to support and encourage the Accounting Standards Executive Committee of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants in its work of developing additional guidance on the accounting for loan losses.

SABs are not rules or interpretations of the Commission. Rather, they are interpretations and practices followed by staff of the Office of the Chief Accountant and the Division of Corporation Finance in administering the disclosure requirements of the federal securities laws.
