

ATTENTION CELLULAR PHONE SERVICE CUSTOMERS

If you receive cellular phone service and have an older, analog-only handset, beginning at midnight on February 18, 2008, your service may be affected. As of this date, cellular phone companies are no longer required to provide analog cellular service. If you have a handset with advanced features such as text or instant messaging, Internet browsing, or an integrated camera, then you do not have an analog handset. Handsets with these features are digital handsets. Customers with digital handsets will not be affected by this change.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) requires cellular phone companies to notify their customers at least four months before they plan to discontinue analog cellular service, and again at least one month before discontinuing analog service. Customers who receive a discontinuance notice from their cellular phone company and still have questions, or who want to know whether their coverage may be affected when they "roam" into another provider's service area, can call their cellular phone companies.
