Lorraine Hunt:

I object to this administrations' policy to proclaim me as only 67% of a citizen when considering cost benefit analyses in determining public health impact. At age 77 and in good health, to date, I am a peer of Allan Greenspan, Ronald Reagan as president, Sister Teresa and many other productive citizens and valued for our well honed contributions to our society.

Simply because we have a President who refuses to face the facts of ways we impact our environment disastrously, is not reason enough for the OMB to go along with him.
