

16 American Bar - Home site of Claude Bell, an early Salmon River gold miner.

14.8 Rice Creek Bridge - The stream here may have gotten its name from Chinese mining in the area.

15 Long Class II Rapids - Requires maneuvering at low flows.

13.5 The Maze - Shallow, hidden rocks and ledges from here to the Rice Creek Bridge require maneuvering and make motorized passage impossible at low water.

13.4 Cooper Bar - Named for Ben and Frances Cooper, who settled here in 1908 and operated a ranch and ferry. Water was transported here in a 6-mile ditch from Rice Creek, built by Chinese laborers. The ditch, an engineering marvel in its time, is still visible from the river.

13.4 Rock Creek (also known as Graves Creek) - In the early 1900s, the old Boise Trail forded the river and a ferry operated at this site. Today, the county road from Cottonwood enters the canyon here. Self-issue permits are located in a box approximately 1/4 mile up the road.
