Subject: [Fwd: MS Scripting License]

Bob,

We are getting screwed from Microsoft on this scripting license. We couldn't include the engine in beta2 of PE and now we are at risk of not getting it in the final product. The net result is that we can't have Sprynet on the reg. server.

Seems like the next step would be for Mike or Jim B. to call Silverberg. Any other suggestions?

Dave

Hi Roberta,
There hasn't been any new developments on the scripting license from Microsoft. I've called Ed Mitchell almost every day and he still says "no updates and I'll keep badgering folks for you."

Not only does this setback impact Dial-Up Kit and ISP business, but our new deal to have Sprynet on our Netscape Internet account server for Personal Edition customers is also at risk since they require Win 95 scripting.

Any advice or thoughts on this mess?

Thanks,
- John
