

- <sup>1</sup> NRIC Network Interoperability: The Key to Competition, July 15, 1997.
- <sup>2</sup> NCS report
- <sup>3</sup> Testimony of Dr. Judith List, July 31, 1998.
- <sup>4</sup> The President's National Security Telecommunications Advisory Committee, The Network Group Report on Y2K & Telecommunications, September 10, 1998, page 2.
- <sup>5</sup> Year 2000- The Enemy within the Network (GSA Conference Presentation November 1998) Steve Prentice.
- <sup>6</sup> NRIC Network Interoperability: The Key to Competition, July 15, 1997.
- <sup>7</sup> Assessment of the Year 2000 Impacts on the Public Network, The National Communications System, October 1998.
- <sup>8</sup> Letter from Senator John Kyl (R-AZ) to FCC Chairman William Kennard, March 30 1998.
- <sup>9</sup> Testimony of Gerard Roth before the Special Committee on the Year 2000 Technology Problem, July 31, 1998.
- <sup>10</sup> In April 1998, the Minnesota Department of Public Service surveyed 100 telephone utilities and received 84 responses. The results were encouraging: 75% had a Y2K project manager and 55% had developed detailed plans. Scott Reiter, National Telephone Cooperative Association, GSA Conference, October 21, 1998.
- <sup>11</sup> Ramu Potarazu, INTELSAT, Testimony before the Special Committee on the Year 2000 Technology Problem, July 31, 1998.
- <sup>12</sup> Ibid.
- <sup>13</sup> Louis Lavelle, "Programmers Racing to Head Off Computer Doomsday;" The Bergen Record, Bergen, New Jersey, Sunday, January 25, 1998. "Our customers have a lot to worry about," he said. "The thing about this whole year 2000 problem is we can get it right. But if everybody else doesn't get it all right, what is the point? We are only one link in the chain...we all have to get it right." (John Pasqua, AT&T.)
- <sup>14</sup> The President's Commission Critical Infrastructure Protection, October, 1997.
- <sup>15</sup> Ibid.
- <sup>16</sup> Ibid.
- <sup>17</sup> The JTRB membership includes senior staff from the FCC, NCS, Department of Defense, State, Commerce, Federal Emergency Management Agency, and General Services Agency.
- <sup>18</sup> Dr. Judith List, Bellcore.
- <sup>19</sup> Jack Grubman, "Financial Analyst See End to Market Turmoil," Communications Daily, October 7, 1998, pp. 7-8.
-