Join Us!

The schedule inside lists a variety of ranger-led programs, from easy walks and evening talks, to all-day hikes and boat tours. Special Native American events, outdoor education programs, and interpretive boat tours are also presented by our park neighbors and partners.

Are You Prepared for a Hike?

Sandals may be fine for walking around the campground, but they can be brutal on your feet if you hike a long distance in them. The National Park Service advises to always wear the appropriate foot gear while hiking. Good hiking boots with strong ankle support will make a big difference as you travel on some of the steeper and rockier trails in Glacier National Park.

Also, BRING WATER on all hikes! It can be quite hot in the summer and many small creeks and streams, where people have traditionally filtered water in the past, may have dried up. Don't count on finding water along the trails. If you do obtain water from creeks and streams, always be sure to filter it first. Parasites may be present in surface water throughout the park.
