NUMBER OF MEMBERS OF HOUSE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

To accomplish its designated tasks, the House Judiciary Committee currently has 35 members assigned to it. Although the Legislative Reorganization Act specified 27 members, it has been recognized that more are necessary to properly perform committee duties. At the time of its creation, the committee consisted of seven members,<sup>11</sup> and continued to be composed of this number until 1833.

In the 1st session of the 23d Congress, on Thursday, December 5, 1833, the following is stated:

Committees of the House, Mr. Hubbard again moved his amendments to the 55th rule, which fixes the number and size of the standing committee of the House, so as to make those formerly containing only 7 members now to contain 9, and those consisting of 3, now to consist of 5 members. The amendment was carried and the rule as amended was adopted. An order was passed for the appointment of standing committees. December 9 committee appointed.

The number remained at nine until 1869, when in the 2d session of the 41th Congress on December 9 (Congressional Globe, p. 62) Mr. Welker introduced a resolution authorizing the Speaker to assign Representatives admitted since organization of the present Congress to any of the committees as additional members.

On March 3, 1873, 3d session of the 42d Congress, a resolution was introduced by Mr. Banks amending the Rules of the House so that the standing committees with 9 members are to have 13 members (Congressional Globe, p. 2132).
