

Tribal Leaders Diabetes Committee: Guidance and Leadership on American Indian and Alaska Native Health

The Tribal Leaders Diabetes Committee provides leadership, guidance, and recommendations to the Indian Health Service (IHS) and other government agencies on issues related to diabetes and related chronic health conditions among American Indians and Alaska Natives.

The creation of the Tribal Leaders Diabetes Committee

The Director of the IHS established the Tribal Leaders Diabetes Committee in 1998 in response to the successful partnership between IHS and Tribal Leaders in establishing the process for distributing the Special Diabetes Program for Indians funds. By creating this committee, the Director sought to foster an ongoing dialogue between IHS and Tribal leadership on matters related to diabetes, chronic health conditions, and other health issues in American Indian and Alaska Native communities.

The role of the Tribal Leaders Diabetes Committee

As an advisory body to the IHS Director, the Tribal Leaders Diabetes Committee:

- ❖ Makes recommendations on diabetes-related policy and advocacy issues.
- ❖ Provides advice and guidance to ensure that appropriate cultural traditions and values are incorporated in program development, research, and community-based activities.
- ❖ Offers guidance to other organizations—such as Federal agencies and organizations, states, Tribal epidemiology centers, institutions of higher learning, and private health organizations—on how they can help address diabetes and related chronic health conditions among American Indians and Alaska Natives.
- ❖ Serves as a Tribal advisory committee to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Native Diabetes Wellness Program.

The Tribal Leaders Diabetes Committee is an important outcome of the Special Diabetes Program for Indians and demonstrates the true spirit of ongoing partnership between Tribal and IHS leadership.
