The programs of the Economic Development Administration (EDA) provide grants for public works and development facilities, other financial assistance, and the planning and coordination needed to alleviate conditions of substantial and persistent unemployment and underemployment in economically distressed areas and regions. In 1998, EDA will continue to encourage development that maximizes the utilization of the Nation's manpower and capital, protects the environment, and alleviates the adverse impact caused by technological changes, structural decline, economic dislocation, and natural disasters.

Within the areas served, EDA strives to meet its program objectives through the use of a broad range of activities.

Planning grants.—Support the design and implementation of effective economic development policies and programs by local organizations.

Technical assistance grants.—Provide for local feasibility and industry studies, natural resource development and export promotion. In addition, provide funding for a network of university centers that assist public bodies, nonprofit organizations and businesses to plan and implement activities designed to generate jobs and income in distressed areas.

Public works grants.—Provide for infrastructure projects that foster the establishment or expansion of industrial and commercial businesses generating employment in communities experiencing high unemployment, low per-capita income, and out-migration.

Economic adjustment grants.—Provide a package of assistance tools, including planning, technical assistance, revolving loan funds and infrastructure development, to help communities counteract either a gradual erosion or a sudden dislocation of their local economic structure.

Research, evaluation and demonstration.—Funds are used to support studies about the causes of economic distress and approaches to alleviating and preventing such problems as well as the dissemination of economic development information.

Defense economic investment.—Provide communities impacted by DOD and DOE downsizing, as well as defense contract reductions, with tools for developing integrated plans to adjust to economic dislocations and assist in the implementation of these plans.

Trade adjustment assistance.—Provides technical assistance, through a national network of 12 Trade Adjustment Assistance Centers, to certified U.S. manufacturing firms and industries economically injured as the result of international trade competition.

The activities of this appropriation provide for the collection, compilation, and publication of a broad range of current statistics dealing with economic, demographic, and social data.

Current surveys and statistics.—

Current economic statistics.—The business statistics program provides current information on sales and related measures of retail and wholesale trade and selected service industries.

Construction statistics reports are provided on significant construction activity such as housing permits and starts, value of new construction, residential alterations and repairs, and quarterly price indexes for new single-family houses.

Manufacturing statistics survey key industrial commodities and manufacturing activities, providing current statistics on the quantity and value of industrial output.

General economic statistics provide a Standard Statistical Establishment List (SSEL) of all U.S. business firms and their establishments, uniform classification data, annual county business data, and corporate financial data. The 1998 program will continue efforts to implement the new North American industry classification system (NAICS). NAICS will restructure the existing Industry Classification System. The program will continue other efforts involving industry classification, such as developing ways for recognizing emerging industries and technologies.

Foreign trade statistics provide for publication of monthly, cumulative, and annual reports on the quantity, shipping weight, and dollar value of imports and exports, by mode of transportation, detailed commodity category, customs districts, and country of origin or destination. This program covers the Census Bureau responsibilities under the Trade Act of 1974.

Government statistics reports are published annually regarding the revenue, expenditures, indebtedness and debt transactions, financial assets, employment, and payrolls of State and local governments. The Census Bureau provides quarterly information on State and local tax revenue on the national level by type of tax and governmental level, and provides information on financial assistance programs of the Federal government.

Current demographic statistics.—Household surveys provide information on the number, geographic distribution, and the social and economic characteristics of the population.

Population and housing analyses provide current demographic reports on the geographic distribution and on the demographic, social, and economic characteristics of the population, as well as current estimates and future projections of the population of the United States, and special analyses of demographic, social and economic trends. International statistics provide estimates of population, labor force, and economic activity, including spatial distribution, and analyses concerning aspects of demographic policies, economic policies, and trends for various countries. The Census Bureau compiles housing statistics on the Nation's housing inventory and provides national and regional estimates of housing vacancy rates.

Survey development and data services.—The Statistical Abstract that the Census Bureau prepares annually summarizes Government and private statistics of the industrial, social, political, and economic activities of the United States. The Bureau conducts general research on survey methods and techniques to find ways of improving the efficiency, accuracy, and timeliness of statistical programs. Data systems development provides advanced data capture, data processing, and information retrieval technology to meet Census Bureau program requirements.

Survey of Program Dynamics.—The Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act of 1996 required that the Survey of Income and Program Participation be expanded to evaluate the impact of welfare reforms made by this Act. The Survey of Program Dynamics will collect data necessary to determine the impact of these provisions. $10 million per year for 7 years (1996-2002) was made available for this study.

Reimbursable program.—The Bureau of the Census undertakes work for specific individuals, groups or organizations,

State and local governments, and other Federal agencies when it is more appropriate or efficient to have the work performed by the Bureau. Significant work includes collection of labor force and consumer expenditure data for the Bureau of Labor Statistics, national education and health program data for the Department of Education and the Department of Health and Human Services, and annual housing data for the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

This appropriation funds legislatively mandated censuses of economic and demographic areas once or twice each decade and other authorized periodic activities.

Economic statistics programs.—

Economic censuses.—The economic censuses provide data on manufactures, retail and wholesale trade and service industries, construction, and transportation. The censuses are taken every fifth year, covering calendar years ending in two and seven. 1998 is the fourth year in the six year cycle of the 1997 Economic Census. Being the data collection and processing year, it is the most important and resource-intensive year in the cycle. Major activities will include: mailing five million report forms, follow-up activities for the late respondents, and data collection and management.

Census of governments.—This census collects State and local government data on taxes, tax valuations, governmental receipts, expenditures, indebtedness, and number of employees. This census is taken every fifth year for calendar years ending in two and seven. 1998 is the fourth year and most important, resource-intensive year in the five-year cycle of the 1997 Census of governments. The focus for 1998 is the collection and processing of data on state and local governments.

Demographic statistics programs.—

Intercensal demographic estimates.—This program develops updated population estimates, in years between decennial censuses, for states, counties, metropolitan areas and urban places; and, prepares a variety of data to meet diverse legislative needs.

Decennial census.—1998 is the fourth year of the cycle for operational preparation for the 2000 Decennial Census. The focus of these activities is on the preparatory work required for the census. The 1998 decennial program covers a broad range of activities, such as a full scale dress rehearsal, addressing list development, conducting tests and planning for the data collection and processing facets of the Census. These and other activities help ensure that the Bureau is fully prepared for conducting the Census in the year 2000.

Continuous measurement.—The Continuous measurement program will allow the Census Bureau to collect and disseminate, on an annual basis, the types of data collected on the Decennial census long-form. The Continuous measurement program will make the Census Bureau the premier source for current population and housing data needed for both near and long-term economic development. The Bureau will continue developing and testing the program in 1998.

Sample redesign.—This program provides for revisions to all of the monthly, quarterly and annual household survey samples to conform to the redistribution of population measured in the decennial census. This is done to update the accuracy of the ongoing surveys.

Computer assisted survey information collection (CASIC). CASIC is the Bureau's program to transform the Bureau's business processes—the collection, processing, and dissemination of information. Making the greatest possible use of automation and telecommunications, CASIC seeks to provide the tools and systems to deliver to our customers accurate information, quickly and efficiently, with as little burden as possible on those who provide the data to us.

Geographic support.—The activity's goal is to determine the correct location of every business establishment, farm, and residence in the U.S. and its territories. The activity's major components include the Topologically Integrated Geographic Encoding and Referencing (TIGER) data base and the Master Address File (MAF). TIGER provides maps and other geographic information; MAF provides residential addresses for the nation. TIGER and MAF are important because they provide essential information and products for conducting many of the Bureau's programs.

Data processing systems.—This activity provides for the purchasing or renting of hardware and software needed for the Bureau's general purpose computing facilities. In 1998, data processing systems will continue to provide automated systems support for the 1997 Economic Censuses and the 2000 Decennial Census.

Bureau of Economic Analysis.—The Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA), a principal Federal statistical agency, provides the most comprehensive statistical picture available of U.S. economic activity. It prepares, develops, and interprets the national, international, and regional economic accounts of the United States. These accounts provide key information on economic growth, regional development, and the Nation's position in the world economy.

BEA's statistics are used in formulating and evaluating national economic policy; in Federal budget planning and formulation; and in the allocation formulae for over $90 billion in Federal funds annually. They are used by state and local governments for a variety of planning and analytical activities. Because they can have a major impact on interest rates, exchange rates, and cost-of-living adjustments, they are also of vital interest to businesses for market analysis and decisionmaking and to households for financial planning.

To prepare the accounts, BEA assembles thousands of monthly, quarterly, and annual economic data series—ranging from construction spending to retail sales—produced largely by other government agencies and trade sources, and combines them into consistent and comprehensive sets of accounts.

National economic accounts.—The national accounts are a system of economic accounts that detail the relationship between production and the incomes generated in production and trace the principal economic flows among the major sectors and industries of the economy. They are best known by the summary measure gross domestic product (GDP). In addition, they provide information on the U.S. capital stock by type and industry; GDP-by-industry; and through the input-output accounts, information on how industries interact—providing inputs to, and taking outputs from, each other to produce GDP. The national accounts statistics are the mainstay of macroeconomic analysis.

International economic accounts.—The international transactions accounts are a system of economic accounts that provide information on international transactions in goods, services, investment income, and government and private financial flows. They are best known by summary measures such as the current account balance. In addition, the accounts provide information on the U.S. international investment position, which measures the value of U.S. international assets and liabilities and changes in those values. The international transactions accounts and the international investment position are critical statistical tools used in formulating and evaluating international economic policy. BEA's data on direct investment—the most detailed data set on the operations of multinational companies available among the major industrialized nations of the world—are used to assess the vital role these companies play in the global economy.

Regional economic accounts.—The regional accounts are consistent with the national accounts, but provide detail on economic activity by region, state, metropolitan area, and county. More specifically, they provide data on total and per capita personal income by region, state, metropolitan area, and county and on gross state product.

Analysis and dissemination of data on economic trends.—This work consists of the analysis of BEA data on the economic situation, the publication of the Survey of Current Business and other BEA publications, the electronic dissemination of data, and the provision of customer information.

Policy support.—This program brings together two major statistical agencies, BEA and Census, and uses their and other statistical information to assess economic developments and to assist Commerce and other Executive Branch officials in meeting their policy responsibilities.

In 1998, BEA's focus is on implementing the next steps in its Mid-Decade Strategic Plan for maintaining and improving GDP and related economic accounts data and on moving from its 1970's vintage mainframe computer to an integrated microcomputer network environment for the year 2000.

Next steps in BEA's Mid-Decade Strategic Plan.—BEA plans to continue work in all three areas outlined in its Mid-Decade Strategic Plan: Improved measures of output and prices to better reflect changes in the nature of output and the organization of production; better measures of investment, saving, and wealth to increase the understanding of the sources of economic growth and the returns to, and adequacy of, various types of public and private investment; and improved coverage of international trade and finance to reflect better the U.S. role in the rapidly changing and increasingly integrated world economy.

Move to a new computer environment for the year 2000.—BEA is in the process of moving from its old, inefficient, and unreliable mainframe computer to a new, integrated local area network (LAN) environment, and plans to release the old mainframe by the end of 1997. In 1998, BEA will focus on re-engineering its work processes on the LAN to take full advantage of the efficiencies of the new micro-computer environment. The new environment and the re-engineering of BEA's data collection, processing, estimation, and dissemination systems will increase the accuracy, reliability, and timeliness of its data and will improve the accessibility of its data to its customers through expanded use of the Internet and other electronic gateways.

Reimbursable.—ESA provides economic and statistical data and analyses on a reimbursable and advance payment basis to other Federal agencies, individuals, and firms requesting such information. Funds received for these services cover the cost of performing this work.

The activities of the International Trade Administration in the Department of Commerce are intended to develop the export potential of U.S. firms in a manner consistent with national security and foreign and economic policy and to promote an improved trade posture for U.S. industry.

Working as a key part of the Government-wide Trade Promotion Coordinating Committee, the International Trade Administration (ITA) will accomplish this objective by achieving its five major Strategic Objectives.

Strengthen trade advocacy, trade promotion, and the Trade Promotion Coordinating Committee (TPCC).—Through the Advocacy Center, which is the “nerve center” of the TPCC’s advocacy network initiative, ITA leads the Government-wide effort to develop and to implement interagency strategies to help U.S. firms win bids for major projects and commercial transactions in foreign markets. In 1998, ITA plans to broaden the involvement of TPCC agencies in advocacy activities. ITA also plans to continue to focus its programmatic activities and resources on select trade promotion functions identified in the TPCC’s National Export Strategy. The efforts of the TPCC are assisted by the TPCC Secretariat—located in the office of the Under Secretary in ITA. The Secretariat is responsible for coordinating the implementation and oversight of the National Export Strategy.

Increase trade assistance targeted to small and medium-sized businesses.—ITA will continue to provide export assistance to small and medium-sized enterprises through a network of domestic and overseas field offices.

More closely align trade objectives with U.S. foreign policy.—Our trade and commercial efforts frequently support our foreign policy goals. Trade and investment flows can play a significant role in facilitating incentives for peace and prospects for sustained economic growth and stability. ITA will continue its efforts to provide economic incentives to promote these ends.

Expand trade law enforcement and compliance monitoring.—ITA’s Import Administration unit impartially enforces U.S. antidumping and countervailing duty laws. Our Market Access and Compliance (MAC) unit ensures market access, assures full compliance with agreements, and identifies priority market access problems, bilaterally or multilaterally.

Continue emphasis on trade with the “Big Emerging Markets” without losing focus on mature markets.—ITA continues to emphasize field export development planning and initiatives in major emerging growth markets. In addition, ITA will focus on U.S. companies that are already exporting to Western Europe and Canada and assist them in expanding their markets.

These five major strategic objectives will be accomplished within the four major subdivisions of ITA and through a reimbursable program as follows:

Trade Development.—The trade development program assesses the competitiveness of various U.S. industries and performs trade and investment analyses; works with manufacturing and service industry associations and firms to identify and to capitalize on trade opportunities and to pinpoint and to overcome obstacles to increased U.S. exports; articulates U.S. industries’ needs, interests and concerns to American negotiators of international trade agreements and assists in the preparation and implementation of negotiating strategies; and conducts export promotion programs directed toward industry sectors. Increased emphasis will be placed on sector-specific initiatives to improve market access and to ensure compliance with international trade agreements.

Market Access and Compliance.—The Market Access and Compliance Unit (MAC) is the U.S. Government’s front-line offensive team working to unlock foreign markets for American goods and services country-by-country and region-by-region. MAC underwent a significant restructuring in 1996, and refocused its goals to concentrate on market access issues and the development of strategies to overcome market access obstacles faced by U.S. businesses. MAC maintains in-depth knowledge of the trade policies of our trading partners. It monitors foreign country compliance with numerous multilateral and bilateral trade-related agreements, identifying compliance problems and other market access obstacles. MAC's specialists work with other Government agencies to address barriers rapidly, and to ensure that U.S. firms know how to use the market opening agreements. It provides information on foreign trade and business practices to U.S. firms and works to find opportunities and to develop market strategies in traditional markets, the emerging markets and, in particular, those identified as the most promising, the Big Emerging Markets. MAC's objective is to develop and to update continuously current and long-term market access strategies, including developing the information needed to conduct trade negotiations to open markets. MAC's specialists work hand-in-hand with U.S. business, trade associations and other business organizations, Commerce's industry and technical specialists, and the U.S. Commercial Services domestic and overseas offices. This unit will continue to provide support for the operation of the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Import Administration.—Import Administration investigates antidumping and countervailing duty cases to ensure compliance with applicable U.S. statutes and administers certain other statutory programs relating to imports and foreign trade zones.

U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service.—The U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service counsels U.S. businesses on exporting through offices in the United States and overseas countries. The program's goals are to increase the number of U.S. firms that export and the number of foreign markets to which they export; to provide export market information; to promote and facilitate participation of U.S. firms in trade shows; and to encourage and sponsor additional involvement by private, State and local organizations.

Reimbursable program.—This account includes receipts for services rendered to other Federal agencies and receipts received on a cost recovery basis from private entities for trade events and export information services.

The activities of the Bureau of Export Administration (BXA) are designed to enforce U.S. export trade laws consistent with national security, foreign policy, and short supply objectives. The program strives to achieve a balance between the interests of U.S. exporters, the U.S. economy and U.S. national security requirements.

Management and policy coordination.—The management and policy coordination program controls the development, analysis, coordination, and consolidation of policy initiatives and responses within the BXA. Under BXA's nonproliferation and export control cooperation mission, BXA works directly with government leaders in the Newly Independent States (NIS) to develop effective controls on their strategic commodities and data.

Export administration.—The export administration program assures that export activity is consistent with national security and foreign policy requirements. An increase is requested to administer and enforce the complex inspection and reporting requirements imposed on commercial chemical manufacturing facilities under the Chemical Weapons Convention (CWC). An increase is requested for the administration of a new and complex Presidential initiative to encourage the use of strong encryption in electronic commerce and private communication while protecting the public safety and national security.

Export enforcement.—The export enforcement program detects and prevents the illegal distribution of controlled U.S. goods and technical data in violation of the export administration provisions of the U.S. Code. Responsibilities also include enforcement of prohibitions against participating in unsanctioned boycotts against countries friendly to the United States. The program enforces the Fastener Quality Act and U.S. obligations under the Chemical Weapons Convention; and implements counterterrorism initiatives as they relate to strategic goods.

The Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA) has the lead role in the Federal Government of coordinating all minority business development programs. The mission of the Agency is to build and to expand minority owned businesses which is critical to the national economy. The agency was created to promote private and public sector investment in the development of competitive minority-owned businesses in this country.

Minority Business Development.—This activity provides a variety of direct and indirect business services through public/private partnerships. MBDA coordinates and leverages resources, expands domestic and international market opportunities, collects and disseminates vital business information, and provides management and technical assistance. MBDA also provides support for research, advocacy, and technology to reduce information barriers and improve the participation rate of minority-owned businesses in the United States.

In 1996, MBDA used a variety of delivery mechanisms to deliver services, including the Community Based Enhanced Services (CBES) concept. CBES is a new delivery vehicle that is designed to enhance, rather than compete with, services already available in local communities. The Business Resource Center in Baltimore, Maryland is an example of this approach. MBDA partners in this venture include NationsBank, AT&T, and the Small Business Administration.

Included in 1998 program activities are funds that would allow MBDA to continue to test and refine the CBES program. In addition, MBDA will continue to utilize the Minority Business Development Centers and the Minority Business Opportunity Committees and enhance the Agency's performance data collection and measurement system in 1998.

National Ocean Service.—These programs provide scientific, technical, and management expertise to (1) promote safe and efficient marine navigation; (2) assess the health of coastal and marine resources; (3) monitor and predict the coastal ocean and global environments; and (4) protect and manage the Nation's coastal resources. An increase is proposed for NOAA's participation in the clean water initiative. The proposed funding will support the Community-Right-to-Know Project on toxics, Coastal Zone Management matching grants, and Coastal Zone Management grants for demonstration projects and technical assistance. The Administration proposes to transfer NOAA's Office of Aeronautical Charting and Cartography to the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). As a first step, NOAA will operate the program for the FAA in 1998 on a reimbursable basis, with the program being completely transferred to the FAA in 1999.

National Marine Fisheries Service.—These programs provide for the management and conservation of the Nation's living marine resources and their environment, including marine mammals and endangered species. Through conservation and wise use, these resources can be managed to benefit the Nation on a sustained basis. Increases are proposed to carry out the legislative mandates of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act, the Endangered Species Act, and the Marine Mammal Protection Act. These increases will support the NOAA Strategic Plan goals to build sustainable fisheries, recover protected species and promote healthy coastal ecosystems.

Office of Oceanic and Atmospheric Research.—These programs provide: the understanding and technique development necessary to improve NOAA services (weather warnings and forecasts, solar-terrestrial services, climate predictions, and marine services); and the understanding of environmental systems necessary for national policy formulation (e.g., long term climate change, acid rain and ozone issues) and the enhanced use of ocean resources (e.g., fisheries, and water quality). An increase is proposed to improve measurements and research on climate and air quality, and to enhance atmospheric prediction and observation technologies. Funding to support Presidential initiatives is also proposed for the Global Learning and Observations to Benefit the Environment program, the Climate and Global Change program, and the High Performance Computing and Communications programs.

National Weather Service.—These programs provide timely and accurate meteorologic, hydrologic, and oceanographic warnings, forecasts, and planning information to ensure the safety of the population, mitigate property losses, and improve the economic efficiency of the Nation. NOAA will continue the NWS operational transition necessary to assimilate the new technologies and the associated work force restructuring for future operations.

National Environmental Satellite, Data, and Information Service.—These programs provide for operation of environmental polar-orbiting and geostationary satellites; and for the collection and archiving of global environmental data and information; and services for distribution to users in commerce, industry, agriculture, science and engineering, the general public and Federal, State and local agencies. Funds are also requested for the Department of Commerce's continued participation in the tri-agency converged polar satellite program.

Program Support.—These programs provide for overall NOAA management, NOAA's share of the regional Administrative Support Centers, and aircraft to support NOAA missions. In 1997, the Administration will propose legislation abolishing the NOAA Corps as a uniformed service and authorizing the current Officers to be converted to civilian service.

Facilities.—This program provides for minor repair and modification to existing facilities; facilities planning and design; and environmental compliance. In 1996 and 1997, these funds were appropriated in the "Construction" account for the above purposes, construction and acquisition of new facilities, and additions to existing facilities. The funds for construction and acquisition of new facilities and additions to existing facilities are requested in the "Capital Assets Acquisition" account for FY 1998 and the outyears.

Fleet Maintenance and Planning.—This program provides for the repair and maintenance of vessels, including related equipment to maintain the existing fleet and for the planning of future modernization. In 1996 and 1997, these funds were appropriated in the "Fleet Modernization, Shipbuilding and Conversion" account for the above purposes, construction, leasing, or conversion of vessels. When funds are required for the construction, leasing, or conversion of vessels, they will be requested in the "Capital Assets Acquisition" account.

Foreign Fishing Observer Fund.—This fund is financed through collections from foreign vessel owners who fish within the U.S. Exclusive Economic Zone. Collections to the fund are used by the Secretary of Commerce to pay the salaries of observers and program support personnel and the costs of data management and analysis of the observer program. The observers collect scientific information on the foreign catch and monitor compliance with provisions of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976 as amended.

GOES Satellite Contingency Fund.—This fund was established in 1992 to cover the procurement of gap filler satellites, launch vehicles, payments to foreign governments and other related costs for the successful completion of the GOES I-M series of spacecraft. All funds will be expended by the end of 1997.

Aircraft Procurement and Modernization.—This fund was established in 1994 to cover the procurement of a high altitude research jet aircraft. All funds will be expended by the end of 1997.

The creation of the Capital Assets Acquisition Account responds to the requirements of the Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act of 1994 and the Information Technology Management Reform Act of 1996 and represents capital projects contained formerly in the "Operations, Research, and Facilities" account and the "Construction" account within the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). Placing these projects in this account is consistent with the Administration's fixed asset policy by seeking advanced appropriations for multi-year projects. The Administration supports full funding as part of an ongoing attempt to improve cost and performance of agency procurements. The Administration's goal is to ensure that capital assets support the core/priority mission of the agency; the assets have demonstrated a projected return on investment that is clearly articulated; cost-benefits of acquisition have been evaluated; and that implementation helps ensure accountability.

Note: Funding included in this account is for acquisition only. Operations funding associated with these programs is requested in the "Operations, Research, and Facilities" account.

The projects included in this account support NOAA's operational mission across all line offices. In particular, projects related to the National Weather Service modernization and on-going operations are included. Increased funds are proposed for deployment of Advanced Weather Interactive Processing System, as well as current and follow-on series of geostationary satellites. Funds are also requested for new construction of a Fisheries laboratory in Santa Cruz, California, and a new facility at the Goddard Space Flight Center.

This fund was established in 1995 and was financed through collections from fees under the North Pacific Research plan. Collections from the fund were to be used by the Secretary of Commerce to pay the salaries of observers and other programmatic expenses. The observers were to collect scientific information on the fishermen's catch and monitor compliance with the provisions of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976, as amended. The fee was repealed in 1996 and monies collected were returned.

An amount equal to 30 percent of the gross receipts from customs duties on imported fishery products is transferred to the Department of Commerce annually.

The American Fisheries Promotion Act (AFPA) of 1980 authorized a grants program for fisheries research and development projects and a National Fisheries Research and Development Program to be carried out with Saltonstall-Kennedy (S–K) funds. These funds are used to enhance the productivity and improve the sustainable yield of domestic marine fisheries resources.

Fisheries Promotional Fund.—The Fish and Seafood Promotion Act of 1986 (Title II of Public Law 99–659) provided for the establishment of the National Seafood Promotional Council and the Fisheries Promotional Fund to carry out the provisions of the Act. The National Council was terminated on December 31, 1991. Reauthorization is not proposed and any activity will be limited to the administration of unobligated balances and contract monitoring from previous years' appropriations.

The Oil Pollution Act of 1990 stipulated that sums recovered from awards or settlements for natural resource damages to NOAA trust resources shall be retained in a revolving trust account to permit NOAA to carry out (1) oil and hazardous materials contingency planning and response, (2) natural resource damage assessment, and (3) restoration or replacement of injured or lost natural resources. For a comprehensive description of the Prince William Sound Restoration Program, refer to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Natural Resource Damage Assessment account. The 1997 and 1998 estimates of budget authority transferred from other accounts are preliminary and subject to change. NOAA will utilize funds transferred to this account to respond to hazardous materials spills in the coastal and marine environments, by conducting damage assessments, providing scientific support during litigation, and using recovered damages to restore injured resources.

Prior to the enactment of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990, a portion of Office operating costs were recovered through user fee revenues. This Act directed a significant increase in user fees to the point where the Office is now fully fee funded. Legislation to reauthorize PTO programs in 1998 will be proposed.

Fees in 1997 are estimated to be $717 million of which $54 million will be held in reserve in the PTO Fee Surcharge Fund. Fees in 1998 are estimated to be $748 million of which $92 million will be held in reserve.

An Information Technology Plan provides for the automation of the majority of the functions and operations of the Office in the 1990's. The 1997 funds provide for the continued implementation of the Automated Patent and the Automated Trademark Systems. Automation resources are distributed among the patent, trademark, and information dissemination business areas.

Patent business.—This activity includes all functions in the patent examination pipeline. It provides for the pre-examination processing of patent applications, including applications filed under the Patent Cooperation Treaty, examination of applications to determine inventor entitlements to a patent for the claimed invention, post-examination processing including patent printing and quasi-judicial review in appeal and interference proceedings. In addition to these duties, the classification, documentation and search systems, and the maintenance of a scientific and technical library are integral parts of application processing.

The 1998 program level supports pre-examination, Patent Cooperation Treaty, examination, and post-examination processing.

Key patent application workload and performance data (excluding design patent applications) are:

Trademark business.—This activity provides for the examination of applications to determine whether the statutory criteria for the Federal registration of the trademark or service mark have been met. When the criteria are met, a registration is printed and issued to the applicant. Examination also includes inter partes proceedings involving oppositions, cancellations, and interferences.

The 1998 funding allows for pendency efforts in trademark examination and anticipates a continued increase in the receipt of applications. The PTO plans to improve the performance of the current Trademark search system by expanding the systems ability to support a greater number of concurrent users; the PTO will continue plans to transition to the Trademark Information System.

Key trademark application workload and performance data are:

Information dissemination business.—Materials and services which assist in the examination of patent and trademark applications and in the transfer of technological information are provided in this activity and include maintenance of the public search rooms; copies of patents, trademark registrations, and official documents; assignment of patent and trademark rights. In 1998, information dissemination business will depend on reengineering efforts, contractor support, and automation initiatives to provide more effective use of resources to meet the increasing requirements within base programs.

Policy.—Legislative, executive, policy, and legal functions of the Office are supported in this activity. Funds in 1998 will provide for the executive leadership of the Office; for the provision of legal services, including litigation and the registration of patent attorneys and agents; and for the development and implementation of intellectual property policies and proposals in the U.S. and abroad.

The Technology Administration (TA) is the focal point for civilian technology and competitiveness issues within the Administration. TA is the primary agency within the Federal Government with the sole mission to work in partnership with the private sector to improve U.S. industrial competitiveness and to exercise leadership as the private sector's advocate.

The Under Secretary for Technology oversees three agencies within TA: the Office of Technology Policy (OTP), the National Institute of Standards and Technology, and the National Technical Information Service.

The Under Secretary and the Office of Technology Policy are responsible for coordinating a National technology policy. The Under Secretary fulfills this role in part by chairing the high-level coordinating committee overseeing the Partnership for a New Generation of Vehicles Initiative (PNGV), a unique Government-wide, 10-year partnership between the Federal Government and the big three automakers. The Under Secretary also chairs the Civilian Industrial Technology Committee (CIT) within the President's National Science and Technology Council. The CIT pursues industry defined and led activities relating to research and development in the areas of materials, construction and building, manufacturing infrastructure, electronics and automotive technologies.

OTP works to promote technology development and commercialization by hosting round tables and conferences to determine best practices, by evaluating the effectiveness of Government-industry partnerships, and by incorporating the results of this research into Federal policy recommendations and annual reports to Congress. OTP administers the National Medal of Technology, a Presidential award program that celebrates America's spirit of innovation and recognizes excellence in technological innovation and commercialization.

In addition, in international policy, OTP will continue to represent the U.S. position on the Investment and Industrial Science and Technology Working Group of the Asian Pacific Economic Cooperation as well as continuing to monitor and negotiate Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) in the U.S. Government's international science and technology agreements. In 1998, TA proposes to establish two new programs with the offset coming from the end of the U.S.-Israel Science and Technology program. These two initiatives totaling $2,025,000 will support the Administration's foreign policy activities around the world as well as foster development of the indigenous technology assets of regions around the Nation with the establishing of the Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Technology (EPSCoT).

TA also houses the Office of Air and Space Commercialization which provides advice and counsel for promoting economic conditions that foster commercial space development and provides assistance in coordinating the Department's activities related to the commercial space industry, encouraging private sector investment in space.

The National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) is responsible for the measurement foundation which supports U.S. industry, government, and scientific establishments. NIST's intramural research program is funded by the Scientific and Technical Research and Services appropriation.

Measurement and engineering research and standards.—

*Electronics and electrical engineering.—*This includes infrastructure research efforts to support the fundamental electronic technologies of semiconductors, magnetics, and superconductors; information and communications technologies, such as fiber optics, photonics, microwaves, and video; electrical power systems; the advanced manufacturing of electronics products; electronic measurement instrumentation; and provision of the physical standards for electricity.

*Manufacturing engineering.—*This encompasses research in high precision dimensional measurement and precision engineering; robotics and intelligent machines; manufacturing data description, data administration, and information processing; and advanced sensors for manufacturing processes.

*Chemical science and technology.—*This covers fundamental investigations of measurement-based phenomena related to the composition and behavior of chemical and biochemical systems. This research includes developing and improving measurement capability and quantitative understanding of the underlying physical principles of measurement science.

*Physics.—*This includes investigation of the structure and dynamics of atoms, molecules, and micro- or nanoscale structures and the development of high performance sensors, instrumentation, measurement methods, and standards for time, frequency, and optical and ionizing radiation.

*Materials science and engineering.—*This covers research in materials characterization, nondestructive evaluation, metallurgy, polymers, and ceramics and addresses the measurement, standards and technological issues required to stimulate the more effective production and use of materials.

*Building and fire research.—*This includes research and development of technologies to predict, measure, and test the performance of construction materials, components, systems, and practices, and to investigate the scientific principles that govern the phenomena of fire initiation, propagation, and suppression.

*Computer science and applied mathematics.—*This includes development and demonstration of evaluation techniques, testing methods, and standards to enable usable, reliable, and interoperable computer and telecommunications systems; and provides leadership and collaborative research in the application and use of mathematics, statistics and computer science, and support of computing and telecommunications services.

Technology assistance.—This area provides a central source of information and assistance for U.S. industry, academia, and government regarding national and international standardization certification, and conformity assessment activities and provides, on a reimbursable basis, centralized access to critically needed services, including Standard Reference Materials, Standard Reference Data, calibration and legal metrology services, and laboratory accreditation programs.

National Quality Program.—This extends U.S. competitiveness through quality technology development, information transfer, and administration of the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award. At industry's request, the award program will be extended to include the categories of health care and education in 1998.

Research support activities.—This area groups centrally managed activities which provide support to all other NIST programs. This support includes competence development in NIST mission-oriented areas of research, high caliber postdoctoral scientists and engineers, and computing support for research programs.

This appropriation supports the extension of technology to American industry and fosters the development of broad-based high-risk technology by industry.

Extramural programs.

Advanced technology program.—The ATP is the focus of a national effort to help accelerate the commercialization of broad-based, high risk technologies with significant commercial potential. The ATP is a merit-based, rigorously competitive, cost-shared partnership program which provides assistance to U.S. businesses and joint R&D ventures to help them improve their competitive position. The program resources will be used for general and focused technology areas chosen in cooperation with industry and having significant potential for stimulating U.S. economic growth.

Manufacturing extension partnership.—The MEP program emphasizes NIST's role in transferring developed technologies to small- and medium-sized business through Government-industry partnerships and extension services and by improving the competitiveness of existing American business.

The National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) is the principal executive branch adviser to the President on domestic and international communications policy. Additionally, it manages the Federal Government's use of the radio frequency spectrum and performs extensive research in telecommunications sciences.

Domestic and international policies.—

*Domestic policies.—*In 1998, NTIA will continue to develop and advocate policies to improve and expand domestic telecommunications services and markets. NTIA will also participate in relevant Congressional action, interagency and FCC proceedings to advocate greater competition in service markets in order to provide lower prices and better services to consumers. NTIA will focus on developing events in the domestic common carrier industry, including formulation of policies to preserve and advance universal telephone service. NTIA will also develop and implement policies required to safeguard personal privacy on the NII and GII and work with foreign governments to prevent disruption to commerce to and from the United States.

*International policies.—*In 1998, NTIA will continue to develop and advocate policies for the advancement of U.S. interests in the international telecommunications regulatory and policy areas. NTIA will place particular emphasis on the U.S. preparatory process for the ITU's 1998 Plenipotentiary Conference. NTIA will continue its advocacy of U.S. interests in other international and regional fora affecting telecommunications standards, infrastructure development and market access. NTIA also will represent executive branch concerns related to international telecommunications regulation before the FCC. In coordination with the Department of State and the FCC, the agency will continue to discharge statutory responsibilities for oversight of the Communications Satellite Corporation (COMSAT) in its role as U.S. Signatory to INTELSAT and INMARSAT as these two organizations consider options for restructuring.

Spectrum Management.—

*Spectrum plans and policies.—*In 1998, NTIA will continue to manage and resolve problems associated with the government's spectrum. In coordination with the FCC, NTIA will conduct long-range strategic and federal private sector planning; prepare for, participate in, and implement results of regional, national, and international conferences on spectrum use and allocation; and identify solutions to deficiencies in the emergency communications planning process in support of the National Communication System (NCS). NTIA will maintain the openness program that allows the private sector to obtain information on the Federal Government's spectrum use, comment on spectrum sharing issues, and provide information on innovative radio communications developments.

*Spectrum management, analysis and operations.—*In 1998, NTIA will continue to authorize frequency assignments, review and certify spectrum for proposed Federal radio communications systems, conduct frequency band studies, and operate automated data facilities to support these operations. NTIA will continue designing an automated Federal spectrum management system to improve the process of authorizing Federal frequency usage.

Telecommunication Sciences Research.—

*Spectrum research and analysis.—*In 1998, NTIA will resolve certain frequency management problems by measuring environmental radio signals. The agency will study and characterize the propagation of radio waves in outdoor, man-made environments for personal communications services (PCS); and study/characterize the transmission channel for within-building, wireless local area networks.

*Systems and networks research and analysis.—*In 1998, NTIA will prepare and coordinate proposed domestic and international telecommunications standards, develop and demonstrate user-friendly ways to access the performance of industry and Government telecommunications networks, evaluate future technologies that may facilitate competition in the U.S. telecommunications industry, promote international trade opportunities for U.S. telecommunications firms and improve the cost effectiveness of Government telecommunications use.

(1) the closed shipyard historically built military vessels and responsible entities now seek to reopen it as an internationally competitive commercial shipyard;

(2)(A) the closed shipyard has been designated by the President as a public-private partnership project; or

(B) has a reuse plan approved by the Navy in which commercial shipbuilding and repair are primary activities and has a revolving economic conversion fund approved by the Department of Defense; and

(3) the State in which the shipyard is located, and each other involved State, or a State-chartered agency, is making a significant financial investment in the overall cost of reactivation and modernization as its contribution to the reactivation and modernization project, in addition to the funds required by subsection (d)(2) of this section.

(b) WAIVERS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of title XI of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936 (46 App. U.S.C. 1271 et seq.), the Secretary shall not apply the requirements of section 1104A(d) of that Act when issuing a guarantee or a commitment to guarantee an obligation under this section.

(c) CONDITIONS.—The Secretary shall impose such conditions on the issuance of a guarantee or a commitment to guarantee under this section as are necessary to protect the interests of the United States from the risk of a default. The Secretary shall consider the interdependency of such shipyard modernization and reactivation projects and related vessel loan guarantee requests pending under title XI of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936 (46 App. U.S.C. 1271 et seq.) before issuing a guarantee of a commitment to guarantee under this section.

No federally appropriated funds shall be available for this purpose. The funds deposited into that financing account shall be held and applied by the Secretary in accordance with the provisions of the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 (2 U.S.C. 661a et seq.), except that, unless the Secretary shall have earlier paid an obligee or been required to pay an obligee pursuant to the terms of a loan guarantee, the funds deposited in that financing account shall be returned, upon the expiration of the Secretary's loan guarantee, to the State, States, or State-chartered agency which originally provided the funds to the Secretary.

(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law or regulation, the cost (as that term is defined by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 (2 U.S.C. 661a et seq.)) of a guarantee or commitment to guarantee issued under this section—

(A) may only be determined with reference to the merits of the specific closed shipyard reactivation project which is the subject of that guarantee or commitment to guarantee, without reference to any other project, type of project, or averaged risk; and

(B) may not be used in determining the cost of any other project, type of project, or averaged risk applicable to guarantees or commitments to guarantee issued under title XI of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936 (46 App. U.S.C. 1271 et seq.).
