

Avi Nachmany

Twenty one years ago, Avi Nachmany co-founded Strategic Insight (SI), an investment management industry think-tank and data resource. Today, SI studies and technologies are shared with management companies overseeing about 90% of the U.S. mutual fund industry's assets, as well as international investment managers, industry regulators, The Investment Company Institute, accounting and consulting firms, and other financial services companies.

Avi guides SI research and consulting, and contributes to the firm's technologies, including Strategic Insight Simfund databases, used for mutual fund business intelligence, fund flow trend and their determinants, and fee analysis and reports to fund trustees.

Avi was raised in a farming village in Israel, studied Chemistry at Tel Aviv University, and received an MBA, with distinction, from New York University's Stern School of Business in 1985. Avi lives with his wife and three children in New York City.
