I am a single parent and have to watch my account down to the penny. One small error, even in a small amount still turns into a very expensive problem. They pay the largest and then they hit you with many (many) fees, which then makes the account so mixed up that there is no end in sight for the fees. Please help consumers. These bank practices are no different than the greed that has been felt by consumers already thanks to wall street and ins. Co's.
