Comments:

It is an abomination that the US government that is suppose to govern for the people has allowed the banking interests to set the policies the government should enforce. Since when is making corporations rich at the expense of everyday individuals the rules of government agencies. Allowing banking corporations to keep charging ridiculous overdraft fees for something no one ever signed up for is highway robbery. I know politicians enjoy donations from this powerful group but could we allow people to keep the money the work hard for and just deny transactions if they are going to cause an overdraft?

Thanks for your attention.
