

From: Jason Phillips
Subject: Electronic Fund Transfers

Comments:

Bank of America ripped me off for more then $400 by loaning me $7, they arranged the transaction in order from least to greatest and 3 initial transactions came though one for $1 another for $2 and another for $3.99 they charged me $30 for each of those and deducted the funds from that, I went down to the bank the next day and deposited $150 not knowing I had overdraft form the day before but the domino effect was already underway within the next 2 days they had tallied 13 ISF fees on debit card transactions totaling $400 , the initial amount they loaned me was $7 they charged me $400 for this, my bank should have a positive balance of $150 but had a negative balance for more then 6 mos of $250 , I just abandoned the account, it was robbery. I had even gone into the bank the week before to cancel this overdraft service and was assured by them that it was but I was only lied to by the bank rep. They stole $400 from me at the same time they received billions in free money from tax payers.