I need to know my balance before I go shopping for what I'm in need of. my balance lets say is 80.00 on my debit card. I make a few purchases that day, I'm covered because I don't go over 80 only spent $70. I'm in the red now because the federal credit union decided to charge me a $14.00 fee for a balance inquiry. So my spending the $70 actually ended up costing me $35. on the two purchases. My bank can't tell me what bank they paid on my behalf. Something is wrong with that picture. Washington Mutual Bank pays another institution without my permission. Is that fair to me ?
