DFG/NEH Bilateral Symposia and Workshops
November 2008 Deadline
Contact: odh@neh.gov

American School of Classical Studies at Athens -- Princeton, NJ
The "Big Digs" Go Digital: Sharing Opportunities and Challenges for Large-Scale German and American Excavations
Jack Davis, Project Director
Outright: $22,776
To support: A joint three-day workshop with the Deutsches Archaeologisches Institut, Abteilung Athen (DFG request: 14,158 euros) on the application of digital technologies to better preserve, study, and make accessible the data from large-scale, long-term archaeological digs.

New York University -- New York, NY
Epigraphic Interoperability Workshops
Thomas Elliott, Project Director
Outright: $11,390
To support: Two joint workshops in collaboration with Heidelberg University (DFG request: 5,270 euros) to develop interoperability between the Epigraphische Datenbank Heidelberg (EDH), the Pleiades digital gazetteer, and the "born-digital" epigraphic publications conforming to the EpiDoc/TEI encoding standards.

Tufts University -- Medford, MA
New methods for working with old languages: Corpus Linguistics and the future of Textual Scholarship
Gregory Crane, Project Director
Outright: $50,133
To support: Two joint workshops in collaboration with Humboldt University in Berlin (DFG request: 32,200 euros) on the state of the art in digital classics, exploring potential exchanges with other humanities fields, and detailing new areas of research.

University of Virginia -- Charlottesville, VA
Digital Music Notation Data Model and Prototype Delivery System
Erin Mayhood, Project Director
Outright: $44,164
To support: Two joint workshops in collaboration with the University of Paderborn in Detmold (DFG request: 31,279 euros) towards developing a music notation data model (based on TEI) and prototype delivery system.