

Synthesis – Morning

Key Themes

- Value in multi-stakeholder processes
 - Clear purpose for stakeholder involvement
 - Composition
 - Clearly defined participant roles and responsibilities
 - Articulated structure of who (i.e., workgroups, etc.) does what

Key Themes

- Current BTS has attributes & strengths (that must be sustained)
- BTS & Annex 12: good for Annex 12; bad for BTS
- Goals (end-points) must be clearly articulated by the Parties (that is, the U.S. and Canada)
 - To which stakeholders can respond and act to address
 - Goals drive structuring an approp. forum

Key Themes

- Whatever the vehicle (i.e., approach, process, etc), it must factor in overarching goals
 - Tangible; viable; and, pertinent
- Steps 1, 2, 3, and 4: all are important; must articulate who is responsible and accountable for each

Key Themes

- Is it appropriate to assume that the BTS model is transferable to new & emerging chemicals?
- BTS evolution
 - Why evolve BTS (in conjunction with Annex 12)?
 - Why not let BTS finish; and then begin anew with a differently structured multi-stakeholder forum?
- Assessment of stakeholders
- Respect stakeholder capacities vis-à-vis ability to participate

Key Themes

- Whatever paradigm emerges, it must maintain the relational capital, the trust foundation established over last 10 years
