

Troy Stabenow, Missouri

Troy Stabenow is an Assistant Federal Public Defender from the Western District of Missouri. Troy received his Bachelor of Science in Foreign Service from Georgetown University in 1994. He was commissioned in the US Army and took a three year educational delay to attend law school at the University of Iowa College of Law. After receiving his JD in 1997, Troy entered Active duty as a member of the US Army JAG Corps. Following airborne training and an assignment in Korea, Troy was selected as a roving prosecutor for the 1st Infantry Division in the German state of Bavaria. Two years later he was selected to be the head prosecutor for the 1st Armored Division, located in the German states of Hesse and the Rhineland-Palatinate. In 2003, Troy left Germany and became the senior defense attorney for Fort Riley, Kansas. Troy is the author of Deconstructing the Myth of Careful Study: A Primer On The Flawed Progression of the Child Pornography Guidelines, and is currently writing a primer for defense attorneys on how to challenge unreasonable supervised release conditions for sexual offense clients.

John Chun, New York

John H. Chun is counsel at Quinn Emanuel Urquhard Oliver & Hedges LLP where his practice focuses on complex commercial and structured finance litigation and white collar criminal defense. Prior to joining the firm, Mr. Chun served as an Assistant Federal Defender Public Defender in the District of Maryland between 2003-2007 where he represented clients in all stages of federal criminal proceedings, including numerous jury trials and appeals. Prior to serving as an AFPD, Mr. Chun was associated with the law firms of Morvillo Abramowitz Grand Iason & Silberberg, P.C. and Willkie Farr & Gallagher, where his practice focused on white collar criminal defense, SEC enforcement proceedings, and complex commercial litigation. Mr. Chun previously served as a law clerk to the Honorable Thomas J. Meskill of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. He is a 1997 graduate of Fordham University School of Law (magna cum laude), where he was a senior articles editor of the Fordham Law Review.

Greg Gilchrist, New York

Gregory Gilchrist is a member of Arnold & Porter LLP's litigation practice group. His practice focuses on white collar criminal defense and complex commercial litigation. He has represented individuals, corporations, and public officials in criminal and civil proceedings. He has also represented individuals in congressional investigations. Prior to joining the firm, Mr. Gilchrist served as an Assistant Federal Public Defender in the District of Maryland. In that capacity, he successfully defended clients accused of or investigated for obstruction of justice, false statements, tax fraud, healthcare fraud, mail and wire fraud, as well as numerous other federal felony offenses. Mr. Gilchrist represented subjects and targets of grand jury investigations and also handled all stages of indicted cases from discovery, motions practice, plea negotiation, trial, sentencing and appeal. He tried over ten cases to verdict in bench and jury trials. Before serving as a federal public defender, Mr. Gilchrist worked for law firms in San Francisco and Washington, DC. In private practice he focused on criminal defense, professional liability defense, and complex commercial litigation. Mr. Gilchrist clerked for the Honorable Robert H. Henry on the US Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit. He graduated in 1998 from Columbia Law School, where he was an articles editor for the Columbia Law Review.
