

USPHS Excellence in Public Health Pharmacy Practice Award
2006 Recipients

Amanda Reynolds

Bernard J. Dunn School of Pharmacy, Shenandoah University

The 2005-2006 Public Health Pharmacy Practice Award is presented to Amanda Reynolds from Shenandoah University for her work in providing weight control education in a rural community.

Dawn K. Harris

Butler University College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences

Dawn has been integral in planning activities that reach out to the community. She is involved with diabetes and blood pressure screenings especially at local churches in underserved population areas.

Katie M. Greener

Creighton University School of Pharmacy and Health Professions

Katie Greener led the development of a patient education brochure on hypertension for Native Americans. The result is attractive, professional, informative, understandable, and culturally sensitive.

Stephanie L. Hon

Duquesne University Mylan School of Pharmacy

Stephanie L. Hon for recognition of her outstanding volunteer contributions to patient safety, public awareness of heartburn, and drug abuse outreach to high school students.

Leina M. Morale

Long Island University, Arnold & Marie Schwartz College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences

For her vision and effort in organizing and coordinating the “Diabetes & Hypertension Awareness Day,” Leina Morales is commended for service to the community.

Eric Garcia

Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences, School of Pharmacy-Boston

The award recipient has participated in public health service that supports the goals of the U.S. Public Health Services as designated in “Healthy People 2010”.

Martha A. Kuhn

Oregon State University College of Pharmacy

In recognition of outstanding work promoting the delivery of comprehensive pharmacy services to a medically underserved population through the Multnomah County Health Department Clinics.

Tracy L. Frazier

Purdue University School of Pharmacy

Tracy Frazier has contributed to the public health through her work to promote medication adherence within an indigent patient population.

Mary Andrawis

South Dakota State University

Mary Andrawis is the recipient of this award for her unusually strong interest and performance within the increasingly important area of Public Health.

Daniel Leslie

Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center School of Pharmacy

In recognition of his leadership in eliminating health disparities through improved access to immunizations and through student-initiated outreach programs serving businesses and underserved populations

Leanna Pugliese

University of Arizona College of Pharmacy

For outstanding leadership in presenting an AIDS Awareness Week 2005 community event that greatly enhanced the understanding among local healthcare providers of complex HIV/AIDS issues.

Amanda J. Boeckel

University of Buffalo School of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences

She has organized community-based health care fairs for seniors, focused on Medicare Part-D and understanding their medications, in the greater Buffalo area

Ni-Chi Wu

University of California, San Diego, Skaggs School of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences

Ni-Chi Wu is presented this award in recognition of her efforts to provide public health and prevention services to the medically underserved in San Diego.

Christina Noelle Tremblay

University of Houston College of Pharmacy

Christina Tremblay is awarded the Excellence in Public Health Pharmacy Practice Award for outstanding leadership and service in promoting the goals stated in “Healthy People 2010”.

Jessica Purcell

University of Iowa College of Pharmacy

Jessica Purcell worked on smoking cessation initiatives during her PharmD-MPH dual degree program, focusing on a program implementing brief smoking cessation interventions in community pharmacies.

Amol D. Joshi

University of Maryland School of Pharmacy

In recognition of outstanding leadership and excellence in promoting awareness of public health issues to the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy community and for service to the under-represented communities.

Alyssa Greedy

University of Missouri Kansas City School of Pharmacy

Alyssa has demonstrated leadership by assisting medically indigent patients receive medications free of charge and has assisted raising awareness about breast cancer and poison prevention.

Kristen Edwards Proulx

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Kristen Proulx founded an organization focusing on prevention of cardiovascular disease. This organization enables pharmacy students to interact with patients, teaching them about heart disease prevention and treatment.

Lauren Fields

University of Pittsburgh School of Pharmacy

Lauren Fields improved access to, and the appropriateness of, medications prescribed for a population of underserved patients seen at an urban free clinic.

Ryan J. Attwood

University of Rhode Island

Ryan personally recruited and trained pharmacy students to provide and assist access to affordable medications to the uninsured

Rhonda M. Garner

University of Tennessee College of Pharmacy

Through her leadership with the ASP Wellness Committee and SNPhA, Rhonda M. Garner has greatly improved the lives of those in the Memphis community.

Francisco Arlindo Azevedo

University of the Pacific, Thomas J. Long School of Pharmacy & Health Sciences

Francisco Arlindo Azevedo has displayed excellence in public health pharmacy practice, serving America in innovative ways, addressing the challenges of diabetes, cancer, and cardiovascular disease.

Jennifer Riddell

University of Washington

Jenny Riddell has demonstrated through her outstanding educational and extracurricular activities a strong and continued commitment to reducing health disparities in medically underserved areas.

Julie Bartell

University of Wisconsin-Madison School of Pharmacy

Presented for significant volunteer health contributions to Madison homeless and for ambitious health-oriented community outreach.

Eric J. Willcox

University of Wyoming School of Pharmacy

This honor should go to Mr. Willcox because of his repeated demonstration of outstanding performance outside the classroom, both with student groups and independently, working toward the goals of 'Healthy People 2010'.

Jessica Sterling Gruber

Washington State University, College of Pharmacy

Jessica Gruber, Doctor of Pharmacy candidate, is proactive in promoting the profession of pharmacy and educating the community on health and medication safety.

Ashley L. Reed

West Virginia University School of Pharmacy

Ashley Reed is chairperson of the Heartburn Awareness Challenge, which assists patients in managing their heartburn and increases public awareness of the pharmacist's role in heartburn care.

Danielle I. Nwigwe

Xavier University College of Pharmacy

Danielle Nwigwe has devoted many hours in assisting in pharmacy service delivery among a post-storm population in New Orleans left relatively deficient in medical care services.