

A close-up view of the spool-like proteins, called histones, that tightly package DNA in chromosomes. Without such packaging, the DNA would not fit into the cell's nucleus.