

Submitted by:
Tonya Martin
8575 E Raymond Street
Indianapolis, IN 46239
317-532-8904

Making Scarves for the Homeless

Raymond Park students are learning how to crochet scarves to donate to a local organization that brings warmth to the homeless in the Indianapolis area. Approximately fifty students spent much of their lunchtime learning the basics of crocheting and diligently worked on creating their gifts. Jane Ledbetter, a community volunteer, donated her time to help teach students. All of the yarn was donated by Irvington 1st Advent and New Palestine Christian which are two local churches. The students had so much fun and felt so good about their projects that it is the intent to duplicate the project again in February!

Jane Ledbetter teaches two Raymond Park students how to crochet their scarves for the homeless.

Tonya Marti, Library Media Center Specialist, learn aside a Raymond Park Student