About Us

The Massachusetts Health Sciences

Library Network is a statewide professional association of individuals dedicated to the enhancement of knowledge-based health information services and resources for the health care community and the people of Massachusetts.

Membership is open to any individual working in the health sciences field.

Our mission is to serve as the leading resource to information professionals in the health sciences for education, networking and advocacy.

Currently MAHSLIN has more than 110 members representing 100+ libraries from hospitals, medical schools, pharmaceutical companies, insurance carriers, government and medical commercial vendors in Massachusetts.

Membership Benefits

Networking: MAHSLIN is a forum for the exchange of ideas, experience and services. It is also the foundation for developing new friendships. Members receive a quarterly newsletter, participate in the MAHSLIN listserv, and are invited to attend the annual conference each April.

Education: MAHSLIN provides continuing education opportunities in issues relating to information resources and services, information technology, and the role of information centers in health care policy and reform. Members receive free or discounted rates.

Resource Sharing: MAHSLIN provides a basis for resource sharing through interlibrary loan and group purchasing of electronic resources. We also promote cooperative activities with other library associations and consortia.

Leadership: MAHSLIN provides leadership for developing innovative information services and advanced management skills for members. It recognizes, supports, and advocates for the professional role of the health information specialist. There are also many opportunities for volunteer leadership within the organization.
