The Regional Archives at NARA's Pacific Alaska Region (Seattle) is:

- Part of the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA), the Federal agency that, by law, preserves and provides access to permanently valuable, noncurrent Federal records with historical, legal, or fiscal value.
- One of 14 NARA facilities where the public has access to Federal archival records.
- A depository and center for research in historical records from Federal agencies and courts in the Pacific Northwest including Idaho, Oregon, and Washington.
- A center for genealogical research.
- A sponsor of programs that educate the public about archives, history, genealogy, and related subjects.
- A partner with colleges and universities, historical and genealogical societies, museums, and other archives.
- A host for student interns, school groups, and others who want to learn more about archives.
- A national resource in a local setting.

We have:

- Over 34,000 cubic feet of historical records dating from about 1850 to the 1990s, among them photographs, maps, and architectural drawings, created or received by nearly 100 Federal agencies, including Federal courts.

We serve:

- Anyone who needs historical information created or received by the Federal Government—historians, genealogists, veterans, lawyers, scholars, Government officials, environmentalists, students, and others.

Our records are:

- Diverse in content, covering the Pacific Northwest, including maritime activities, forestry, land and water use, Native Americans, immigration and citizenship, and domestic conditions during World Wars I and II.
- Filled with historic names, among them Washington territorial governor Isaac Stevens, Indian agent

Edwin Chalcraft, labor activist Marie Equi, and World War II-era civil rights activists Gordon Hirabayashi and Minoru Yashui.

- Unique evidence of the impact of Federal policies and programs in the Pacific Northwest.

If you plan to do research in original records:

- Call before visiting to insure that records are available—206-526-6501.
- Bring identification such as a driver's license, passport, or student ID so that we can issue you a researcher's card.
- Plan on leaving your personal belongings in a locker. Laptop computers are permitted. Their carrying cases must be put in a locker.

Our microfilm holdings are:

- Of genealogical interest—Federal population censuses for all States, 1790–1930; some pre-1900 military service and pension records, and bounty land warrant applications; selected passenger arrival records and indexes for vessels arriving at various U.S. ports, naturalization records for Oregon and Washington; and some land records from Idaho, Oregon, and Washington.
- Of general historical interest—Territorial papers from various Federal agencies; the Mathew Brady Collection of Civil War photographs; German records captured at the end of World War II; records of U.S. diplomatic missions, the Revolutionary and Civil Wars, the U.S. Supreme Court, and the early administration of Indian affairs; records documenting the unexplained loss of Navy flight 19 in the Bermuda Triangle, 1945; documentation of the Axis Powers' looting of assets, 1933–45; and studies of UFOs undertaken by Project Blue Book.

If you plan to do microfilm or genealogy research:

- Expect to use our self-service microfilm research room with the aid of volunteers and staff.

The National Archives and Records Administration

ensures, for citizens and Federal officials, ready access to essential evidence that documents the rights of American citizens, the actions of Federal officials, and the national experience. We establish policies and procedures for managing U.S. Government records and assist Federal agencies in documenting their activities, administering records management programs, scheduling records, and retiring noncurrent records. We appraise, accession, arrange, describe, preserve, and provide access to the essential documentation of the three branches of Government; manage the Presidential Libraries system; and publish the laws, regulations, and Presidential and other public documents. We also administer the Information Security Oversight Office, which manages Federal classification and declassification policies, and the National Historical Publications and Records Commission, which makes grants nationwide to help nonprofit organizations identify, preserve, and provide access to materials that document American history.
