

CHAPTER 5

NONMONETARY ELIGIBILITY

IN GENERAL

Along with monetary requirements, each state's UI law requires workers to meet nonmonetary requirements. Federal law mandates some of these requirements. The general rule is that workers must have lost their jobs through no fault of their own and must be able, available, and actively seeking work. By examining the worker's current attachment to the labor force, these provisions delineate the type of risk covered by UI law – primarily, unemployment caused by economic conditions.

This chapter is organized from the perspective of a worker experiencing the claim process. First, the state would determine if there are any issues related to the worker becoming unemployed. Second, issues related to week-by-week eligibility would be explored. Third, the state would explore whether the worker received any “deductible income” causing a reduction in benefits payable.

Caution: Nonmonetary requirements are, in large part, based on how a state interprets its law. Two states may have identical laws, but may interpret them quite differently.

Usage Note: There is often a distinction between issues that result in disqualification and issues that result in weeks of ineligibility. A disqualified worker has no right to benefits until s/he requalifies, usually by obtaining new work or by serving a set disqualification period. In some cases benefits and wage credits may be reduced. An ineligible worker is prohibited from receiving benefits until the condition causing the ineligibility ceases to exist. Eligibility issues are generally determined on a week-by-week basis.

SEPARATIONS

VOLUNTARILY LEAVING WORK—Since the UI program is designed to compensate wage loss due to lack of work, voluntarily leaving work without good cause is an obvious reason for disqualification from benefits. All states have such provisions.

In most states, disqualification is based on the circumstances of separation from the most recent employment. These disqualification provisions may be phrased in terms such as “has left his most recent work voluntarily without good cause.” In a few states the agency looks to the causes of all separations within a specified period. A worker who is not disqualified for leaving work voluntarily with good cause is not necessarily eligible to receive benefits. For example, if the worker left because of illness or to take care of illness in the family, the worker may not be able to or available for work. This ineligibility would generally last only until the individual was again able and available.

NONMONETARY ELIGIBILITY

Good Cause for Voluntarily Leaving—In all states workers who leave their work voluntarily must have good cause if they are not to be disqualified.

In many states, good cause is explicitly restricted to good cause connected with the work, attributable to the employer, or involving fault on the part of the employer. However, in a state where good cause is not explicitly linked to the work, the state may interpret its law to include good personal cause or it may limit it to good cause related to work. Since a state law limiting good cause to the work is more restrictive, it may contain specific exceptions that are not necessary in states recognizing good personal cause. (For example, an explicit provision not disqualifying a person who quits to accompany a spouse to a new job might not be necessary in a state which recognizes good personal cause; it would be necessary in a state restricting good cause to that related to the work.)

The following table identifies states that restrict good cause for quitting to reasons connected to work.

- 1/ Only for certain military spouses; in AR and WA the provision applies to all military spouses; MT - mandatory military transfer of the individual's spouse
- 2/ Separations due to compulsory retirement addressed under the misconduct section of the rules; separations considered a discharge for reasons other than misconduct
- 3/ Limited to pregnancy, personal compelling emergency
- 4/ In CA, KS - if spouse was transferred or accepted new work at a location beyond a reasonable commuting distance
- 5/ CO law has special disqualification provisions for these issues; moving with spouse expressed as moving to maintain contiguity with another person or persons; individuals who quit to marry or quit to follow their spouse disqualified for up to 25 weeks
- 6/ Leave work upon advice of physician to care for spouse, child, or parent who is in poor physical health
- 7/ ME defines 'spouse' as a person to whom the claimant is legally married, or a person to whom the claimant was legally married within fourteen (14) days of arrival at the new place of residence
- 8/ Leaving was caused by the illness or disability of immediate family member and took all precautions to protect employment status and promptly request reemployment when again able to resume work
- 9/ MD law has special disqualification provisions for this issue; law specifies that individuals who quit to move with spouse disqualified until they earn 15 times their WBA
- 10/ Urgent, compelling, and necessitous if due to poor health of spouse or to recover from an ailment
- 11/ Only if claimant and spouse have the same employer
- 12/ MT - If individual or child of individual is a victim of sexual assault or stalking or individual is protecting child from sexual assault or stalking
- 13/ NE - If individual leaves employment because of workplace harassment on the basis of race, sex, or age
- 14/ Compelling family circumstances
- 15/ NC law has special disqualification provisions for this issue; quitting to move with spouse results in disqualification until individuals had employment for 5 weeks
- 16/ If undue family hardship resulting from working hours
- 17/ If worker is outside the US and loses sponsorship
- 18/ OH - If individual is inducted into the US armed forces within 30 days after separation, or 180 days after separation if date of induction is delayed solely at discretion of armed forces
- 19/ OH law has special disqualification provisions for these issues; quitting to marry or quitting to perform marital, domestic, or filial obligations results in disqualification until individuals earn $60 or ½ AWW, if less
- 20/ Medically certified illness of claimant's child
- 21/ OR - Only if alternatives are pursued; TX - If individual's spouse is terminally ill, as medically documented, provided no reasonable alternative was available
- 22/ Must notify employer and try to resolve the issue before leaving; must inform employer of limitation before leaving
- 23/ Only if reason for move was circumstances beyond spouse's control and there were insurmountable economic circumstances
- 24/ If reason was necessitous and compelling and claimant exhausted all available alternatives
- 25/ RI law has special disqualification provisions for this issue only individuals who quit to follow a spouse who has retired are disqualified until they worked for 8 weeks and earned 20 times the minimum wage
- 26/ TX law has special disqualification provisions for this issue; individuals who quit to move with spouse disqualified for 6-25 weeks
- 27/ Case law includes caring for ill and enfeebled parents, need for ongoing care; doctor's note in all cases; must look to whether the claimant would be available and able to work
- 28/ Uses a responsible person test such as: Would failure to move break up the marriage/family?
- 29/ WA - For illness, death, or disability of a member of claimant's immediate family only if claimant pursued all reasonable alternatives to preserve employment
- 30/ WV law has special disqualification provisions for these issues; law specifies that individuals who quit to marry or to perform marital, domestic, or filial obligations disqualified until they worked 30 days in insured employment
- 31/ Claimant unable to work due to health of member of immediate family (must be available); or, if quit because of shift change which results in loss of child care, must be available for work on original shift

Other Good Cause Provisions—Several states also specify various circumstances relating to work separations that, by statute, require a determination that the worker left with good cause. Arizona and Connecticut do not disqualify a worker for voluntarily leaving because of transportation difficulties. Several states do not disqualify workers for voluntarily leaving if they left work to accompany their spouse to a place from which it is impractical to commute. Arizona does not disqualify unemancipated minors for voluntarily leaving if they left work to accompany their parent to a place from which it is impractical to commute. Colorado does not disqualify a worker who was absent from work due to an authorized and approved voluntary leave of absence. North Carolina does not disqualify a worker for leaving work due to a unilateral and permanent reduction in full time work hours of more than 20% or reduction in pay of more than 15% and does not deny benefits to a worker based on separation from work resulting from undue family hardship when a worker is unable to accept a particular job because the individual is unable to obtain adequate childcare or elder care. In Arkansas and Utah, if an employer announces a pending reduction in force and asks for volunteers, individuals who participate are not disqualified; any incentives received are reportable as receipt of other remuneration. Illinois does not deny a worker benefits for giving false statements or for failure to disclose information if the previous benefits are being recouped or recovered. In Maine, if the employer announced in writing to employees that it planned to reduce the workforce through a layoff or reduction in force and that employees may offer to be among those included in the layoff or the reduction in force and the claimant offered to be included and was accepted thereby ending the employment relationship, the individual is not subject to disqualification.

Some states treat a worker's quitting to attend school as a voluntary quit. See section on Students, page 5-29 of this chapter.

Louisiana does not apply the voluntarily leaving disqualification if a worker left part-time or interim employment in order to protect full-time or regular employment. A similar Wisconsin provision says the disqualification will not be applied to a worker who leaves part-time work because of the loss of a full-time job that makes it economically unfeasible to continue the part-time work. Colorado does not disqualify a worker who quits a job outside his/her regular apprenticeable trade to return to work in the regular apprenticeable trade.

Colorado also does not disqualify workers who leave a job because of personal harassment unrelated to the work. In addition, Colorado does not disqualify workers who have separated from employment because they were physically or mentally unable to perform the work.

Nebraska also includes the following as good cause for voluntarily quitting: accepting a voluntary layoff to avoid bumping another worker, leaving employment as a result of being directed to perform an illegal act, because of unlawful discrimination on the basis of race, sex, or age, because of unsafe working conditions, because the employer required the employee to relocate, to accompany a spouse to the spouse's employment in a different city, or voluntarily leaving as a construction worker to accept previously secured work in the construction industry if certain other conditions are met, or equity and good conscience demand a finding of good cause.

Good Cause - Relation to Other Laws—California and Michigan specify that a worker leaves a job with good cause if an employer deprived the individual of equal employment opportunities not based on bona fide occupational qualifications. Colorado, Kansas, and Utah do not disqualify a worker for voluntarily leaving if the individual was instructed or requested to perform a service or commit an act in the course of duties which is in violation of an ordinance or statute. Also, Colorado, Kansas, Michigan, and Utah do not disqualify a worker for voluntarily leaving due to hazardous working conditions.

Good Cause and Labor Arrangements—Several state laws explicitly address separations that occur under collective bargaining agreements. California, Colorado, and Illinois do not disqualify a worker who, under a collective bargaining agreement, elected to be laid off in place of an employee with less seniority. Iowa has a similar provision which does not require a collective bargaining agreement to be in place.

Delaware and New York do not disqualify workers for voluntarily leaving if under a collective bargaining agreement or written employer plan they exercise their option to be separated, with the employer's consent for a temporary period when there is a temporary layoff because of lack of work. Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, and Tennessee specify that a worker will not be denied benefits for voluntarily leaving if s/he exercises his/her option of accepting a layoff pursuant to a union contract, or an established employer plan, program, or policy. Georgia and Tennessee permit the worker, because of lack of work, to accept a separation from employment. In Tennessee, however, a worker will be disqualified for a separation due to accepting a program providing incentives for voluntarily terminating employment.

Kentucky does not disqualify workers for voluntarily leaving if they are separated due to a labor management contract or agreement or an established employer plan, program or policy that permits the employer to close the plant or facility for vacation or maintenance. Also, Kentucky does not disqualify workers for voluntarily leaving their next most recent work which was concurrent with the most recent work, or for leaving work that was 100 miles (one-way) from home to accept work less than 100 miles away, or if the worker left part-time work to accept the most recent suitable work.

Oregon does not disqualify workers for voluntarily leaving if they cease to work or fail to accept work when a collective bargaining agreement between their bargaining unit and their employer are in effect and the employer unilaterally modifies the amount of wages payable under the agreement, in breach of the agreement. Oregon does not disqualify workers for voluntarily leaving work and deems them to be laid off if: the worker works under a collective bargaining agreement; the worker elects to be laid off when the employer has decided to lay off employees; and if the worker is placed on the referral list under the collective bargaining agreement.

In Wisconsin, the voluntarily leaving disqualification will not apply to a worker who terminates work with a labor organization which causes the employee to lose seniority rights granted under a union agreement, and if the termination results in a loss of employment with the employer which is a party to that union agreement.

Good Cause and Suitable Work—Several states have provisions prohibiting the application of the voluntary quit provision if the work was determined not to be suitable employment for the worker.

Illinois does not impose a disqualification if the worker accepted new work after separation from other work and, after leaving the new work, the new work is deemed unsuitable. Michigan and Missouri do not disqualify workers for voluntarily leaving if they leave unsuitable work within 28-60 days after beginning the work (Missouri allows 28 days and Michigan 60 days). Minnesota does not disqualify a worker for voluntarily leaving if the accepted employment represents a departure from the individual's customary occupation and experience and the individual left the work within 30 days under specified conditions. New Hampshire allows benefits if a worker, not under disqualification, accepts work that would not have been suitable and terminates such employment within 4 weeks. New York provides that voluntarily leaving is not in itself disqualifying if circumstances developed in the course of employment that would have justified the worker in refusing such employment in the first place. North Dakota does not apply the voluntarily leaving disqualification if a worker accepted work which could have been refused with good cause and terminated the employment with the same good cause within the first 10 weeks after starting work. Wisconsin does not apply the voluntarily leaving disqualification if the individual accepts work which could have been refused because of the labor standard provisions and s/he terminates the work within 10 weeks of starting the work.

Colorado does not disqualify if the separation is determined to have been as a result of an unreasonable reduction in pay or as a result of refusing with good cause to work overtime without reasonable advance notice, or as a result of a substantial change in the working conditions.

North Dakota also has a good cause provision for leaving work with the most recent employer to accept a bona fide job offer with a base period employer who laid off the individual and with whom the individual has a demonstrated job attachment. This requires earnings with the base period employer in each of 6 months during the 5 calendar quarters before the calendar quarter in which the individual files a claim for benefits.

Wisconsin will not apply the voluntarily quit disqualification if a worker left to accept a job and earned wages of 4 times the weekly benefit amount, and the work offered average weekly wages at least equal to the wages earned in the most recent computed quarter in the terminated employment, or if the hours of work are the same or greater, or if the worker was offered the opportunity for longer-term employment, or if the position was closer to the individual's home than the terminated employment. Also in Wisconsin, a disqualification will not apply if a worker claiming partial benefits left to accept work offering an average weekly wage greater than the average weekly wage in the work terminated.

Good Cause and Jobs for Temporary Service Employers—Several states contain provisions providing that, if an employee of a temporary service employer fails to be available for future assignments upon completion of the current assignment, the worker shall be deemed to have voluntarily left employment without good cause connected to the work. These states require the employer to provide the worker with notice that the worker must notify the temporary service upon the completion of an assignment and that failure to do so may result in benefit denial.

Period of Disqualification—In most states the disqualification lasts until the worker is again employed and earns a specified amount of wages. In Alaska and Colorado, the disqualification is a fixed number of weeks (in Colorado, only for separations from the most recent employer); the longest period in either of these states is 10 weeks. Nebraska has a disqualification of 12 weeks. Maryland and North Carolina impose fixed duration disqualifications for certain conditions described in the following table.

Reduction of Benefit Rights—In some states, in addition to the postponement of benefits, benefit rights are reduced, usually equal in extent to the weeks of benefit postponement imposed as described in the table below.

1/ Minimum employment or wages to requalify for benefits

2/ Separation preceding the most recent separation may be considered if: last employment not considered bona fide work, AL; when employment or time period subsequent to separation does not satisfy potential disqualification, AK, FL, IA, MD, MA, MO, OH, and UT; in LA, to base period or last employer; to most recent previous separation if last work was a voluntary quit and was not in usual trade or intermittent, ME; disqualification applicable to last 30-day employing unit or during 240 hours, VA; if employment was less than 30 days unless on an additional claim, DC, SD, and WV; reduction or forfeiture of benefits applicable to separations from any BP employer, KY and NE; any employer with whom the individual earned 8 x WBA, ND, and 10 x WBA, TN

3/ In AK, disqualification is terminated if claimant returns to work and earns at least 8 x WBA. In MT, disqualification is terminated after claimant attends school for 3 consecutive months and is otherwise eligible. In MD, the duration disqualification imposed unless a valid compelling or necessitous circumstance exists; NC, the agency may reduce permanent disqualification to 5 weeks, with a corresponding reduction in total benefits; NC, if an employer gives notice of future work separation, a disqualification of 4 weeks imposed if the worker establishes good cause for his failure to work out the notice

4/ In ME, disqualified for duration of unemployment and until claimant earns 6 x WBA if voluntarily retired; In NV, disqualified for W+4 to enter self employment, and for 10 weeks to seek better employment; CT, voluntary retiree disqualified for the duration of unemployment and until 40 x WBA is earned

5/ NE, a disqualification for the week of separation plus one week if claimant leaves to accept a better job; NE, the number of weeks chargeable to employer involved if less; disqualification begins with week following filing of claim, TX

6/ OH, if claimant left work for compelling domestic circumstances, can requalify by earning the lesser of ½ of AWW or $60, in covered employment

7/ VT, disqualified for 1-6 weeks if claimant left work due to health reasons; WI, disqualification for week of termination + 4 weeks if claimant refuses transfer to a job paying less than 2/3 of wage rate

NONMONETARY ELIGIBILITY

DISCHARGE FOR MISCONDUCT CONNECTED WITH THE WORK—Provisions for disqualification for discharge for misconduct (which may be called a discharge for “just cause” or “a disqualifying act”) follow a pattern similar to that for voluntary leaving. Many states provide for heavier disqualification in the case of discharge for a dishonest or a criminal act, or other acts of aggravated misconduct. (See “Disqualifications for Gross Misconduct” immediately following this section.) Some laws define misconduct in such terms as:

- Deliberate misconduct in willful disregard of the employing unit's interest (Connecticut, Massachusetts, Missouri, Rhode Island, South Dakota and Washington).
- Participation in an illegal strike as determined under state or federal laws. Each instance of an absence for 1 day or 2 consecutive days without either good cause or notice to the employer that could have reasonably been provided (Connecticut).
- Failure to obey orders, rules or instructions or for failure to discharge the duties for which the individual was employed (Georgia).
- A violation of duty reasonably owed the employer as a condition of employment. The failure of the employee to notify the employer of an absence, and under certain conditions, repeated absences resulting in absence from work of 3 days or longer (Kansas).
- A legitimate activity in connection with labor organizations or failure to join a company union shall not be construed as misconduct (Kentucky).
- A culpable breach of the employee’s duties or obligations to the employer or a pattern of irresponsible behavior, which in either case manifests a disregard for a material interest of the employer (Maine and Missouri).
- Absence from work due to incarceration for 2 workdays for conviction of a criminal offense (Maine).
- Absenteeism or tardiness if it violates the employer’s attendance policy and the claimant knew about the policy in advance (Missouri and Virginia).
- Discharge or temporary suspension for willful misconduct connected with the work (Pennsylvania).
- A willful and deliberate violation of a standard or regulation by an employee of an employer licensed or certified by Virginia, which violation would cause the employer to be sanctioned or have its license or certification suspended (Virginia).
- Any action that places others in danger or an intentional violation of employer policy or law, but does not include an act that responds to an unconscionable act of the employer (Texas).

Detailed interpretations of what constitutes misconduct have been developed in each state's benefit decisions. In determining what constitutes misconduct, many states rely on the definition established in the 1941 Wisconsin Supreme Court Case, Boynton Cab Co. v. Neubeck:

“Misconduct . . . is limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of his employee, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree as to manifest an equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer’s interest or of the employee’s duties and obligations to his employer.”

Illegal Drugs and Alcohol—The following table represents states having provisions in their UI law dealing specifically with alcohol and/or illegal drugs and testing for alcohol or illegal drugs.

Table 5-5: STATES WITH DRUG AND/OR ALCOHOL PROVISIONS
State	Workers Will Be Disqualified:
AL	For testing positive for illegal drugs after being warned of possible dismissal; or for refusing to undergo drug testing, or for knowingly altering a blood or urine specimen
AK	Reporting to work under the influence of drugs/alcohol, consumption on the employer's premises during work hours violation of employer's policy as long as policy meet statutory requirements
AZ	For refusing to undergo drug or alcohol testing, or having been tested positive for drugs or alcohol
AR	For drinking on the job or reporting for work while under the influence of intoxicants, including a controlled substance; if discharged for testing positive for an illegal drug; for being rejected for offered employment as a direct result of failing to appear for or pass a USDOT qualified drug screen
CA	If discharged for chronic absenteeism due to intoxication, reporting to work while intoxicated, using intoxicants on the job, or gross neglect of duty while intoxicated, when any of these incidents is caused by an irresistible compulsion to use intoxicants; also disqualified if individual quit for reasons caused by an irresistible compulsion to use intoxicants
CT	If discharged or suspended due to being disqualified under state or federal law from performing work for which hired as a result of a drug or alcohol testing program mandated and conducted by such law
FL	For drug use, as evidenced by a positive, confirmed drug test
GA	For violating an employer's drug free workplace policy
KS	For refusing to undergo drug or alcohol testing, for having been tested positive for drugs or alcohol, or for failing a pre-employment drug screen
KY	For reporting to work under the influence of drugs/alcohol, or consuming them on employer's premises during working hours
LA	For the use of illegal drugs, on or off the job
MI	For refusing to undergo drug or alcohol testing, or having been tested positive for drugs or alcohol
MO	Zero tolerance policy on drug/alcohol use; positive pre-employment drug/alcohol test is considered misconduct
NH	If an individual is discharged for intoxication or use of drugs which interferes with work, 4-26 weeks
OK	For refusing to undergo drug or alcohol testing, or having been tested positive for drugs or alcohol
OR	For failure or refusal to take a drug or alcohol test as required by employer's written policy; being under the influence of intoxicants while performing services for the employer; possessing a drug unlawfully; testing positive for alcohol or an unlawful drug in connection with employment; or refusing to enter into/violating terms of a last-chance agreement with employer; not disqualified if participating in a recognized rehabilitation program within 10 days of separation
PA	For failure to submit and/or pass a drug test conducted pursuant to an employer's established substance abuse policy, provided that the drug test is not requested or implemented in violation of the law or of a collective bargaining agreement
SC	For failure or refusal to take a drug test or submitting to a drug test which tests positive for illegal drugs or legal drugs used unlawfully
VA	For drug use, as evidenced by a positive, confirmed drug test

Disqualification for discharge for misconduct, as for voluntary leaving, is usually based on the circumstances of separation from the most recent employment. However, as indicated in the following table, a few state laws require consideration of the reasons for separation from employment other than the most recent.

Federal law permits cancellation of wage credits for only three reasons: misconduct in connection with the work, fraud in connection with a claim, or receipt of disqualifying income. The severity of the cancellation penalty depends mainly on the presence or absence of additional wage credits during the base period. If the wage credits canceled extend beyond the base period for the current benefit year, the individual may not be monetarily eligible in the subsequent benefit year.

NONMONETARY ELIGIBILITY

Period of Disqualification—Some states have a variable disqualification for discharge for misconduct. In some states the range is small, for example, the week of occurrence plus 3 to 7 weeks. In others, the range is large, 5 to 26 weeks. Some states provide a fixed disqualification, and others disqualify for the duration of the unemployment, or longer. Some states reduce or cancel all of the worker's benefit rights. Some states provide for disqualification for disciplinary suspensions.

WI			7 weeks elapsed and 14 x WBA	Benefit rights based on any work involved canceled
WY			12 x WBA

KEY: W = Week of discharge or week of suspension, WF = Week of filing
 "Equal" indicates a reduction equal to the WBA multiplied by the number of weeks of disqualification.

<sup>2/</sup> Disqualification pertains only to last separation unless indicated. In AL, the preceding separation may be considered if last employment is not considered bona fide work; in FL, ID, MD, MA, MO, OH, RI and UT, a previous employer may be considered if the work with the separating employer does not satisfy a potential disqualification; VA, disqualification is applicable to last employing unit for which claimant has worked 30 days or 240 hours; DC, SD, and WV, disqualification is applicable to last 30-day employing unit on new claims and to most recent employer on additional claims; any employer with whom the individual earned 8 x WBA, ND; 10 x WBA, TN; NE, reduction or forfeiture of benefits applicable to separations from any BP employer; NJ provided the period of disqualification has not elapsed prior to the date of claim.
<sup>3/</sup> FL, both the term and the duration-of-unemployment disqualifications are imposed. AK and AR, the disqualification is terminated if claimant returns to work and earns 8 x WBA. NH, disqualification is terminated if either condition is satisfied. NC, the agency may reduce permanent disqualification to a time certain, but not less than 5 weeks. When permanent disqualification changed to time certain, benefits are reduced by an amount equal to the number of weeks of disqualification x WBA. Also, an individual will be disqualified for substantial fault on the part of the claimant that is connected with work but not rising to the level of misconduct. The disqualification will vary from 4-13 weeks depending on the circumstances.
<sup>4/</sup> WV benefit reduction is restored if individual returns to covered employment for at least 30 days within BY.

Disqualification for Gross Misconduct—Some states provide heavier disqualifications for certain types of misconduct. For purposes of this section, all of these heavier disqualifications will be considered “gross misconduct,” even if the state’s law does not specifically use this term.

In a few states, the disqualification for gross misconduct runs for 1 year; in other states, for the duration of the worker’s unemployment; and in most of the states, wage credits are canceled in whole or in part, on either a mandatory or optional basis. The definitions of gross misconduct are in such terms as:

- Discharge for dishonesty or an act constituting a crime or a felony in connection with the worker’s work, if such a worker is convicted or signs a statement admitting the act (Florida, Illinois, Indiana, New Hampshire, Nevada, New York, Oregon, Utah, and Washington).
- Discharge for a dishonest or criminal act in connection with the work (Alabama).
- Discharge for dishonesty, intoxication including a controlled substance, or willful violation of safety rules (Arkansas).
- A deliberate act or negligence or carelessness of such a degree as to manifest culpability, wrongful intent or evil design (Colorado).
- Assault, bodily injury, property loss or damage amounting to at least $2,000; theft, sabotage, embezzlement or falsification of employer’s records (Georgia).
- Conduct evincing extreme, willful or wanton misconduct (Kansas).

NONMONETARY ELIGIBILITY

- Misconduct that has impaired the rights, property or reputation of a base-period employer (Louisiana).
- Conviction of a felony or misdemeanor in connection with the work (Maine and Utah).
- Deliberate and willful disregard of standards of behavior showing gross indifference to the employer's interests (Maryland).
- Assault, theft, or sabotage (Michigan).
- Any act that would constitute a gross misdemeanor or felony (Minnesota).
- Gross, flagrant, willful or unlawful misconduct (Nebraska).

Only Maryland includes a disciplinary suspension in the definition of gross misconduct.

1/ In AL, disqualification applies to other than most recent separation from bona fide work only if employer files timely notice alleging disqualifying act. Disqualification is applicable to other than last separation, as indicated: from beginning of BP, LA and MI. In OH applies if unemployed because of dishonesty or felony in connection with employment, and in MO, within base period of a claim. In NY, no days of unemployment deemed to occur for following 12 months if claimant is convicted or signs statement admitting felonious act in connection with employment. Also, any remuneration paid to the claimant by the affected employer prior to loss of employment due to the criminal act may not be used to establish entitlement to a subsequent, valid claim. In WV, reduction or forfeiture of benefits is applicable to either most recent work or last 30-day employing unit. In NJ, any base period employer.

2/ In IL and IN, wage credits are cancelled if gross misconduct constitutes a felony or misdemeanor and is admitted by the individual or has resulted in conviction in a court of competent jurisdiction.

3/ MD also has provision for aggravated misconduct, which consists of either physical assault or property loss or damage so serious and with malice that the gross misconduct penalty is not sufficient. Disqualification is for duration of unemployment and earnings of at least 30 x WBA.

4/ Option is taken by the agency to cancel all or part of wages depends on seriousness of misconduct. The only wage credits canceled are those based on work-connected misconduct, MO.

5/ In NH, if discharged for arson, sabotage, felony, or dishonesty, all prior wage credits are canceled. In NV, if worker is discharged, and admits in writing or under oath, or is convicted, for assault, arson, sabotage, grand larceny, embezzlement, or wanton destruction of property in connection with work, wage credits from that employer are canceled.

LABOR DISPUTES

Unlike many other eligibility provisions, those related to labor disputes do not question whether the unemployment is incurred through fault on the part of the individual worker. Instead, they are more in the nature of an exclusion from coverage. This exclusion rests in part on an effort to maintain a neutral position in regard to the dispute. The principle of “neutrality” is reflected in the type of denial imposed in all of the state laws. The denial is always a postponement of benefits; there is no reduction or cancellation of benefit rights. In almost all states, the denial period is indefinite and geared to the continuation of the dispute-induced stoppage or to the progress of the dispute.

Definition of Labor Dispute—State laws use different terms to describe labor disputes. In addition to labor dispute, these terms include trade dispute, strike, “strike and lockout,” or “strike or other bona fide labor dispute.” Except for Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, and Minnesota, state laws do not define these terms. Some states exclude the following from their denials:

- Employer lockouts, presumably to avoid penalizing workers for the employer's action.
- Disputes resulting from the employer's failure to conform to the provisions of a labor contract.
- Disputes caused by the employer's failure to conform to any state or federal law relating to wages, hours, working conditions, or collective bargaining.
- Disputes where the employees are protesting substandard working conditions.

Location of the Dispute—Usually a worker is not denied unless the labor dispute is in the establishment in which the worker was last employed. Exceptions to this are found in the following states:

- Idaho (omits this provision).
- North Carolina, Oregon, Texas and Virginia – deny workers at any other premises that the employer operates if the dispute makes it impossible for the employer to conduct work normally at such premises.
- Michigan – deny at any establishment within the United States functionally integrated with the striking establishment or owned by the same employing unit.

Period of Denial—In most states the denial period ends when the “stoppage of work because of a labor dispute” ends or the stoppage ceases to be caused by the labor dispute. In other states, the denial period lasts while the labor dispute is in “active progress.” In others, the denial period lasts while the workers' unemployment is a result of a labor dispute.

A few state laws allow workers to terminate the denial period by showing that the labor dispute (or the stoppage of work) is no longer the cause of their unemployment:

- In Indiana, the denial ends following termination of employment with the employer involved in the dispute.
- In Michigan, the denial ends if a worker works in at least 2 consecutive calendar weeks, and earns wages in each week of at least the weekly benefit amount based on employment with the employer involved in the labor dispute.

NONMONETARY ELIGIBILITY

- In Missouri, the denial ends following the bona fide employment of the worker for at least the major part of each of 2 weeks.
- In New Hampshire, the denial ends 2 weeks after the dispute is ended even if the stoppage of work continues.
- In Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Utah, a worker may receive benefits if, during a stoppage of work resulting from a labor dispute, the worker obtains employment with another employer and earns a specified amount of wages. However, wages earned with the employer involved in the dispute cannot be used while the stoppage of work continues.
- In contrast, some state’s laws extend the denial for the period of time necessary for the employer to resume normal operations (Arkansas, Colorado, North Carolina, and Tennessee). Others extend the denial period to shutdown and start up operations (Michigan and Virginia).
- In New York, a worker is denied for 7 consecutive weeks due to unemployment because of a strike, lockout or concerted activity not authorized or sanctioned by the collective bargaining unit in the establishment where such individual was employed.

Exclusion of Individual Workers—Most states provide that individual workers are not denied under the labor dispute provisions if they and others of the same grade or class are not participating in the dispute, financing it, or directly interested in it.

1/ As long as unemployment is caused by the existence of a labor dispute.

2/ See text preceding table for details.

3/ By judicial construction of statutory language.

4/ Dispute is not disqualifying: in CO, unless the lockout results from demands of employees, as distinguished from an employer effort to deprive the employees of some advantage they already possess; in OH, if the individual was laid off and not recalled prior to the dispute, if separated prior to the dispute; if obtained bona fide job with another employer while the dispute was in progress; in IL, if the recognized or certified collective bargaining representative of the locked out employees refuses to meet under reasonable conditions with the employer to discuss the lockout issues, or there is a final adjudication under the NLRA that during the lockout period such representative has refused to bargain in good faith with the employer over the lockout issues, or if the lockout resulted as a direct consequence of a violation by such representative of the provisions of an existing collective bargaining agreement; in OR, if the individual was laid off prior to the dispute and did not work more than 7 days during the 21 calendar days immediately prior to the dispute, or if his/her position was filled and the individual unilaterally abandons the dispute to seek reemployment with the employer; in TN, if the claimant was indefinitely separated prior to the dispute and otherwise eligible; in UT, if the employer was involved in fomenting the strike; in VT, if the employer brought about the lockout in order to gain concessions from the employees.

5/ Disqualification ceases: in GA, when operations have been resumed but individual has not been reemployed; in MA, within 1 week following termination of dispute if individual is not recalled to work. In WV, if the stoppage of work continues longer than 4 weeks after the termination of the labor dispute, there is a rebuttable presumption that the stoppage is not due to the labor dispute and the burden is on the employer to show otherwise.

6/ Applies only to individual, not to others of the same grade or class.

7/ As long as unemployment is caused by claimant's stoppage of work which exists because of labor dispute. Failure or refusal to cross picket line or to accept and perform available and customary work in the establishment constitutes participation and interest.

8/ Denial is not applicable if employees are required to accept wages, hours, or other conditions substantially less favorable than those prevailing in the locality or are denied the right of collective bargaining.

9/ Disqualification neither limited to 1 week for individuals not participating in nor directly interested in dispute.

10/ In NJ, individuals locked out of employment by their employer can collect benefits if they were not on strike immediately prior to the lockout and are directed by their union leadership to work under the preexisting terms and conditions of employment.

NONSEPARATIONS

ABILITY TO WORK—Only minor variations exist in state laws setting forth the requirements concerning ability to work. A few states specify that a worker must be physically able, or mentally and physically able to work. Evidence of ability to work is the filing of claims and registration for work at a public employment office, required under most state laws. Missouri goes one step further requiring, by law, every individual receiving benefits to report to the nearest office in person at least once every 4 weeks.

Several states have added a proviso that no worker who has filed a claim and has registered for work shall be considered ineligible during an uninterrupted period of unemployment because of illness or disability, so long as no work, which is suitable but for the disability, is offered and refused. These provisions are not to be confused with the special programs in six states for temporary disability benefits.

AVAILABILITY FOR WORK—Availability for work is often translated to mean being ready, willing, and able to work. Meeting the requirement of registration for work at a public employment office is considered as some evidence of availability. Nonavailability may be evidence by substantial restrictions upon the kind or conditions of otherwise suitable work that a worker can or will accept, or by his refusal of a referral to suitable work made by the employment service or of an offer of suitable work made by an employer. A determination that a worker is unable to work or is unavailable for work applies to the time at which notice is given of unemployment or for the period for which benefits are being claimed.

The availability-for-work provisions are more varied than the ability-to-work provisions. Some states provide that a worker must be available for work; some for suitable work; and others for work in the worker's usual occupation or for which the worker is reasonably fitted by training and experience.

The following table indicates claimants who are not ineligible due to illness or disability (occurring after the claim is filed and after registering for work) as long as no refusal of suitable work occurs after the beginning of the illness or disability.

Table 5-9: STATES WITH SPECIAL PROVISION FOR ILLNESS OR DISABILITY
Alaska 1/	Delaware	Hawaii	Idaho 2/
Maryland	Massachusetts 3/	Montana	Nevada
North Dakota 4/	Tennessee	Vermont
1/ Waiver may not exceed 6 consecutive weeks 2/ Only if no suitable work was available that would have paid wages greater than one-half of the individual's WBA 3/ Provision applicable for 3 weeks only in a BY 4/ Only if illness not covered by workers' compensation

Vacations—Georgia and West Virginia specify the conditions under which workers on vacations are deemed unavailable or unemployed, and Georgia limits to 2 weeks in any calendar year the period of unavailability of workers who are not paid while on a vacation provided in an employment contract or by employer-established custom or policy. Mississippi considers a worker unavailable for work during a holiday or vacation period. North Carolina considers as unavailable a worker whose unemployment is found to be caused by a vacation for a period of 2 weeks or less in a calendar year.

In Nebraska and New Jersey, no worker is deemed unavailable for work solely because they are on vacation without pay if the vacation is not the result of the workers own action as distinguished from any collective bargaining or other action beyond the individual's control. Under New York law, an agreement by a worker or the individual's union or representative to a shutdown for vacation purposes is not of itself considered a withdrawal from the labor market or unavailability during the time of such vacation shutdown. Other provisions relating to eligibility during vacation periods, although not specifically stated in terms of availability, are made in Virginia, where a worker is eligible for benefits only if a bona fide vacation is found not to be; and in Washington, where it is specifically provided that a cessation of operations by an employer for the purpose of granting vacations shall not be construed to be a voluntary quit or voluntary unemployment. Tennessee does not deny benefits during unemployment caused by a plant shutdown for vacation, providing the individual does not receive vacation pay. However, workers who receive regular wages for a vacation under terms of a labor-management agreement will have their weekly benefit amount reduced by the amount of the wages received, but only if work will be available for the workers with the employer at the end of the vacation period.

Nebraska provides that a worker is considered employed when wages are received for a specific time in which the vacation is actually taken during a time of temporary layoff or plant shutdown and that vacation pay be prorated in an amount reasonably attributable to each week claimed and considered payable with respect to that week.

Locality—Alabama, Michigan, Ohio, and South Carolina require that workers be available for work in a locality where their base-period wages were earned, or in a locality where similar work is available or where suitable work is normally performed. Illinois and Utah consider workers to be unavailable if, after separation from their most recent work, they move to and remain in a locality where opportunities for work are substantially less favorable than those in the locality they left. Arizona and Utah require that, at the time they file a claim, workers be a resident of their state or of another state or foreign country that has entered into reciprocal arrangements with the state. Oregon, Utah and Virginia consider workers unavailable for work if they leave their normal labor market area for the major portion of a week unless the worker can establish that they conducted a bona fide search for work in the labor market area where they spent the major part of the week.

Availability During Training—The FUTA requires, as a condition for employers in a state to receive credit against the federal tax, that all state laws provide that compensation shall not be denied to an otherwise eligible worker for any week during which s/he is attending a training course with the approval of the state agency. Also, all state laws must provide that trade allowances not be denied to an otherwise eligible individual for any week during which he is in training approved under the Trade Act of 1974, because of leaving unsuitable employment to enter such training. In addition, the state law must provide that workers in training not be held ineligible or disqualified for being unavailable for work, for failing to make an active search for work, or for failing to accept an offer of, or for refusal of, suitable work.

Federal law does not specify the criteria that states must use in approving training. Although some state laws have set forth the standards to be used, many do not specify the types of training that are approvable. Generally, approved training is limited to vocational or basic education training, thereby excluding regularly enrolled students from collecting benefits under the approved training provision.

Some states, in addition to providing regular benefits while the worker attends an industrial retraining or other vocational training course, provide for an extended duration of benefits while the worker remains in training/retraining. See Chapter 4 concerning programs for extended duration.

While in almost all states the participation of workers in approved training courses is voluntary, in the District of Columbia, Idaho, Missouri, and Washington, a worker may be required to accept such training. The department in Indiana is directed to provide job counseling or training to a worker who remains unemployed for at least 4 weeks. Also in Indiana, the board determines manner and duration.

Availability for Part-Time Work—Many states require workers to be available for full-time work. Other states allow workers to be available for part-time work under certain conditions. The following table indicates those states paying workers who seek only part-time employment. Please note that considerable differences may exist between states in the same category.

Michigan and West Virginia require that a worker be available for full-time work. Pennsylvania considers a worker ineligible for benefits for any week in which his unemployment is due to failure to accept an offer of suitable full-time work in order to pursue seasonal or part-time work.

Note: Since most state laws do not specify whether the worker must be available for full-time or part-time work, the above table should be used with caution. The table is based on information provided to the Department.

ACTIVELY SEEKING WORK—In addition to registration for work at a local employment office, all states, whether by law or practice (except Pennsylvania), require that a worker be actively seeking work or making a reasonable effort to obtain work. Pennsylvania requires that the claimant be able and available for suitable work and not refuse suitable work when offered. Those states which apply actively seeking work through practice are Alaska, Arizona, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, Puerto Rico, South Dakota, Tennessee, and Texas.

REFUSAL OF WORK—All state laws address refusals of work, although they vary concerning the extent of the disqualification imposed. The FUTA provides that all state laws must also look at the labor market and certain labor standards. Specifically, benefits will not be denied to any otherwise eligible individual for refusing to accept new work if:

- The position offered is vacant due directly to a strike, lockout, or other labor dispute;
- The wages, hours, or other conditions of the work offered are substantially less favorable to the individual than those prevailing for similar work in the locality; or
- If as a condition of being employed the individual would be required to join a company union or to resign from or refrain from joining any bona fide labor organization.

Criteria for Suitable Work—All states look at whether the work refused was suitable. When state laws list the criteria for suitability, they usually address the degree of risk to a worker's health, safety, and morals; the physical fitness and prior training, experience and earnings; the length of unemployment and prospects for securing local work in a customary occupation; and the distance of the available work from the worker's residence. Delaware and New York make no reference to the suitability of work offered but provide for disqualification for refusals of work for which a worker is reasonably fitted. South Carolina specifies that whether work is suitable must be based on a standard of reasonableness as it relates to the particular worker involved.

These criteria are modified in some states to include other stipulations:

Distance—In Alabama and West Virginia, no work is unsuitable because of distance if it is in substantially the same locality as the last regular employment which the worker left voluntarily without good cause connected with the employment; in Indiana, work under substantially the same terms and conditions under which the worker was employed by a base-period employer, which is within the prior training and experience and physical capacity to perform, is suitable work unless a bona fide change in residence makes such work unsuitable because of the distance involved. Delaware, New York and Ohio provide that no refusal to accept employment shall be disqualifying if it is at an unreasonable distance from the worker's residence or the expense of travel to and from work is substantially greater than that in the former employment, unless provision is made for such expense.

Personal/Family Reasons—Maine does not disqualify a worker for refusal of suitable work if he refuses a position on a shift, the greater part of which falls between midnight and 5 a.m., and he is prevented from accepting the job because of family obligations. Maine excludes from suitable work a job the worker previously vacated if the reasons for leaving have not been removed or changed; in addition, if a claimant has refused work for a necessitous and compelling reason, the disqualification will be terminated when the claimant is again able and available for work. New Hampshire does not disqualify a worker who is the only available adult to care for an ill, infirm, or physically or mentally disabled family member if the individual is unable or unavailable for suitable, permanent full-time work in a given shift; in addition, New Hampshire does not impose a disqualification for refusing to accept new work if the worker is unable to accept work during the hours of a particular shift because of the family obligations described above. Wisconsin does not disqualify a worker who accepts work, which could have been refused with good cause, and then terminates with good cause within 10 weeks after starting the job. North Carolina does not deny benefits to a worker for refusing a job resulting from undue family hardship when the individual cannot accept a particular job because the individual is unable to obtain adequate childcare or elder care.

Connecticut does not deem work suitable if as a condition of being employed, the worker would be required to agree not to leave the position if recalled by his previous employer. In Louisiana a worker may refuse work if the remuneration from the employer is below 60 percent of the individual's highest rate of pay in the base period. In Wisconsin a worker has a good cause during the first six weeks of unemployment for refusing work at a lower grade of skill or significantly lower rate of pay than one or more recent jobs.

Union/Collective Bargaining Issues—Ohio and New York do not consider suitable any work a worker is not required to accept pursuant to a labor-management agreement. In Illinois a worker will not be disqualified if the position offered by an employing unit is a transfer to other work and the acceptance would separate a worker currently performing the work. Iowa does not disqualify a worker for failure to apply for or accept suitable work if the individual left work in lieu of exercising a right to bump or oust an employee with less seniority. In Oregon a worker will not be disqualified for refusal of suitable work if the employer unilaterally modified the amount of wages agreed upon by the individual's collective bargaining unit and the employer. In Pennsylvania a worker will not be disqualified for refusal of suitable work when the work is offered by his employer, and the worker is not required to accept the offer pursuant to terms of a union contract or agreement or an established employer plan, program or policy. In New York a worker not subject to recall or who did not obtain employment through a union hall and is still unemployed after receiving 13 weeks of benefits is required to accept employment that the worker is capable of doing, provided the employment would result in a quarterly wage not less than 80 percent of the high quarter in the base period or the wages prevailing for similar work in the locality, whichever is less.

Duration of Unemployment—A few states provide for changing the definition of suitable work as the duration of the individual's unemployment grows. The suitability of the offered wage is the factor states have chosen to alter. For example, Florida requires the agency, in developing rules to determine the suitability of work, to consider the duration of the individual's unemployment and the wage rates available. In addition, Florida law specifies that, after a worker has received 25 weeks of benefits in a single year, suitable work will be a job that pays the minimum wage and is 120 percent or more of the individual's weekly benefit amount.

Idaho law merely requires workers to be willing to expand their job search beyond their normal trade or occupation and to accept work at a lower rate of pay in order to remain eligible for benefits as the length of their unemployment grows. Louisiana will not disqualify a worker for refusing suitable work if the offered work pays less than 60 percent of the individual's highest rate of pay in the base period. Utah considers all earnings in the base year, not just earnings from the most recent employer, in the determination of suitable work and specifies that the agency will be more prone to consider work suitable the longer the worker is unemployed and less likely that the worker will secure local work in his or her customary occupation. Wyoming will apply the refusal-of-suitable work disqualification if, after 4 weeks of unemployment, the individual failed to apply for and accept suitable work other than his customary occupation offering at least 50 percent of the compensation earned in his or her previous occupation.

Georgia specifies that, after a worker has received 10 weeks of benefits, no work will be considered unsuitable if it pays wages equal to at least 66 percent of the individual's highest quarter earnings in the base period and is at least equal to the federal or state minimum wage.

Iowa law specifies that work is suitable if it meets the other criteria in the law and the gross weekly wage of the offered work bears the following relationship to the individual's high-quarter average weekly wage: (1) 100 percent during the first 5 weeks of unemployment; (2) 75 percent from the 6th through the 12th week of unemployment; (3) 70 percent from the 13th through the 18th week of unemployment; and (4) 65 percent after the 18th week of unemployment. No individual, however, is required to accept a job paying below the federal minimum wage.

After 12 weeks of unemployment, Maine no longer considers the individual's prior wage in determining whether work is suitable. In Michigan, an individual will be denied benefits for refusing an offer of suitable work paying at least 70% of the gross pay rate received immediately before becoming unemployed. After 8 weeks of unemployment, Mississippi law specifies that work is suitable if the offered employment pays the minimum wage or higher and the wage is that prevailing for the individual's customary occupation or similar work in the locality. Montana, after 13 weeks of unemployment, specifies that a suitable work offer need only include wages equal to 75 percent of the individual's earnings in his previous customary insured work, but not less than the federal minimum wage. North Dakota law specifies that after a worker has received 18 weeks of benefits, suitable work will be any work that pays wages equal to the maximum weekly benefit amount, providing that consideration is given to the degree of risk involved to the individual's health, safety, morals, his physical fitness and the distance of the work from his residence.

Period of Disqualification—Some states disqualify for a specified number of weeks (3 to 20) any workers who refuse suitable work; others postpone benefits for a variable number of weeks, with the maximum ranging from 1 to 12.

NONMONETARY ELIGIBILITY

More than half the states disqualify, for the duration of the unemployment or longer, workers who refuse suitable work. Most of these specify an amount that the worker must earn, or a period of time the worker must work to remove the disqualification.

The relationship between availability for work and refusal of suitable work was pointed out in the discussion of availability. The state of Wisconsin's provisions for suitable work recognize this relationship by stating: "If the commission determines that . . . a failure to accept suitable work has occurred with good cause, but that the employee is unable to work or unavailable for work, he shall be ineligible for the week in which such failure occurred and while such inability or unavailability continues."

Of the states that reduce potential benefits for refusal of suitable work, the majority provide for reduction by an amount equal to the number of weeks of benefits postponed.

 “Equal” indicates reduction equal to WBA multiplied by number of weeks of disqualification.

1/ Minimum employment or wages required to requalify for benefits.
2/ In AR, weeks of disqualification must be weeks in which claimant is otherwise eligible or earns wages equal to WBA; in CA, it must be weeks in which claimant meets reporting and registration requirements. Also, agency may add 1-8 weeks for successive disqualification.
3/ In FL, both term and duration of unemployment disqualifications are imposed. Aliens who refuse resettlement or relocation employment are disqualified 1-17 weeks, or reduction by not more than 5 weeks. In MI, claimant may be eligible for benefits based on wage credits earned subsequent to refusal. In MD, either disqualification may be imposed at discretion of agency.
4/ In NC, disqualification may run into next BY which begins within 12 months after end of current year. Also, a permanent disqualification may be reduced to a time certain disqualification, but not less than 5 weeks, with a corresponding reduction in benefits (weeks of disqualification x WBA).
5/ And wages at 27.5% of state AWW in each week, OH.
6/ An individual who refuses an offer of work due to illness, death of a family member or other circumstances beyond the individual’s control will be disqualified for the week of occurrence, OK.
7/ Until a worker obtains work not of a casual or temporary nature; however, if work refused was casual or temporary, then disqualification is for an equal period of time, PA.
8/ Plus such additional weeks as offer remains open, WV.

SPECIAL GROUPS

All state laws contain provisions addressing special groups of workers. The FUTA requires the denial of benefits under certain circumstances to professional athletes, some aliens and school personnel while it also prohibits states from denying benefits solely on the basis of pregnancy or the termination of pregnancy. Like the FUTA provisions, most of these special provisions restrict benefits more than the usual disqualification provisions.

STUDENTS—Most states exclude from coverage service performed by students for educational institutions. In addition, many states have special provisions limiting the benefit rights of students who have had covered employment. In some of these states, the disqualification is for the duration of the unemployment; in others, during attendance at school or during the school term.

Many states disqualify workers during school attendance and some states extend the disqualification to vacation periods.

 NOTE: Unless otherwise indicated, state is applying its voluntary quit or availability provisions.

SCHOOL PERSONNEL—FUTA law requires states to deny benefits to instructional, research or principal administrative employees of educational institutions between successive academic years or terms, or, when an agreement so provides, between two regular but not successive terms, if the individual performed such instructional, research or administrative services in the first year or term and has a contract or a reasonable assurance of performing such services in the second year or term. The denial also applies to vacation or holiday periods within school years or terms.

FUTA permits a state, at its option, to deny benefits between successive academic years or terms to other employees of a school or by an educational service agency who perform services to or on behalf of an educational institution if the individual performed services (other than the three types described above) in the one year or term and has a reasonable assurance or a contract to perform services in the second year or term. The option for denial of benefits also applies to vacation or holiday periods within school years or terms. However, FUTA requires states to pay benefits retroactively to school personnel performing these “other” services if they were given a reasonable assurance of reemployment but were not, in fact, rehired when the new school term or year began.

Kansas also applies a between and within-terms denial to school bus drivers not employed by governmental entities, nonprofit organizations or Indian tribes. Arizona has a similar disqualification which applies to school bus contractors.

Alaska provides state interim benefits, if money is appropriated from the general fund, to nonprofessional employees of educational institutions who are noncertified and provide compensated services to a school district for teaching indigenous languages if the individual's benefits are reduced or denied under the between terms or during vacation period provisions of the law.

PROFESSIONAL ATHLETES—FUTA requires states to deny benefits to a worker between two successive sport seasons if substantially all of the worker’s services in the first season consist of participating in or preparing to participate in sports or athletic events and the worker has a reasonable assurance of performing similar services in the second season.

NONMONETARY ELIGIBILITY

ALIENS—FUTA requires denial of benefits to certain aliens. Benefits may not be paid based on service performed by an alien unless the alien is one who (1) was lawfully admitted for permanent residence at the time the services were performed and for which the wages paid are used as wage credits; (2) was lawfully present in the United States to perform the services for which the wages paid are used as wages credits; or (3) was permanently residing in the United States “under color of law,” including one lawfully present in the United States under provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act. (Note that aliens must also be legally authorized to work to be considered available for work.)

To avoid discriminating against certain groups in the administration of this provision, federal law requires that the information designed to identify ineligible aliens must be requested of all workers. Whether or not the individual is in an acceptable alien status is determined by a preponderance of the evidence.

DEDUCTIBLE INCOME

Almost all state laws provide that a worker will not receive UI for any week during which the worker is receiving or is seeking benefits under any federal or other state UI law. A few states specifically mention benefits under the Federal Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act. Under most of the laws, no disqualification is imposed if it is finally determined that the worker is ineligible under the other law. The intent is to prevent duplicate payment of benefits for the same week. These disqualifications apply only to the week in which or for which the other payment is received.

Most states have statutory provisions that a worker is ineligible for any week during which such worker receives or has received certain other types of remuneration such as wages in lieu of notice, dismissal wages, worker's compensation for temporary partial disability, holiday and vacation pay, back pay, and benefits under a supplemental unemployment benefit plan. In many states if the payment concerned is less than the weekly benefit amount, the worker receives the difference; in other states no benefits are payable for a week of such payments regardless of the amount of payment. A few states provide for rounding the resultant benefits, like payments for weeks of partial unemployment, to half dollar or dollar amounts. Tennessee provides for a denial of benefits for a separation due to claimant's acceptance of an employer's program providing incentives to employees for voluntarily terminating their employment.

Wages in Lieu of Notice and Dismissal Payments—A considerable number of states consider wages in lieu of notice to be deductible income. Many states have the same provision for receipt of dismissal payments as for receipt of wages in lieu of notice. The state laws use a variety of terms such as dismissal allowance, dismissal payments, dismissal wages, separation allowances, termination allowances, severance payments, or some combination of these terms. In many states all dismissal payments are included as wages for contribution purposes, as they are under the FUTA. Other states exclude dismissal payments which the employer is not legally required to make. To the extent that dismissal payments are included in taxable wages for contribution purposes, workers receiving such payments may be considered not unemployed, or not totally unemployed, for the weeks concerned. Some states have so ruled in general counsel opinions and benefit decisions. However, under rulings in some states, workers who received dismissal payments have been held to be unemployed because the payments were not made for the period following their separation from work but, instead, with respect to their prior service.

Worker's Compensation Payments—Nearly half the state laws list worker's compensation under any state or federal law as disqualifying income. Some disqualify for the week concerned; the others consider worker's compensation deductible income and reduce unemployment benefits payable by the amount of the worker's compensation payments. A few states reduce the unemployment benefit only if the worker's compensation payment is for temporary partial disability, the type of worker's compensation payment that a worker most likely could receive while certifying ability to work.

Vacation Pay, Holiday Pay, and Back Pay—Many states consider workers receiving vacation pay as not eligible for benefits; several other states hold workers eligible for benefits if they are on a vacation without pay through no fault of their own. In practically all states, as under the FUTA, vacation pay is considered wages for contribution purposes--in a few states, in the statutory definition of wages; in others, in official explanations, general counsel or attorney general opinions, interpretations, regulations, or other publications of the state agency. Thus a worker receiving vacation pay equal to his weekly benefit amount would, by definition, not be unemployed and would not be eligible for benefits. Some of the explanations point out that vacation pay is considered wages because the employment relationship is not discontinued, and others emphasize that a worker on vacation is not available for work. Vacation payments made at the time of severance of the employment relationship, rather than during a regular vacation shutdown, are considered disqualifying income in some states only if such payments are required under contract and are allocated to specified weeks; in other states such payments, made voluntarily or in accordance with a contract, are not considered disqualifying income.

Retirement Payments—FUTA requires states to reduce the weekly benefit amount of any individual by the amount, allocated weekly, of any “....governmental or other pension, retirement or retired pay, annuity, or any other similar periodic payment which is based on the previous work of such individual...” This requirement applies only to payments made under a plan maintained or contributed to by a base-period or chargeable employer which affected eligibility for or increased the amount of the retirement pay. States are permitted to reduce benefits on less than a dollar-for-dollar basis by taking into account the contributions made by the worker to the plan in question. (This effectively means the FUTA requirement is limited to 100% employer financed pensions.) Also, the requirement applies only to those payments made on a periodic (as opposed to lump-sum) basis. As a result, the states may have to choose from a variety of options in creating a retirement pay provision.

Effect of Social Security Payments—Social Security payments are sometimes treated differently from retirement payments in general. The following table indicates the extent, if any, by which the weekly benefit amount is reduced due to receipt of Social Security payments.

Supplemental Unemployment Payments—A supplemental unemployment payment plan is a system whereby, under a contract, payments are made from an employer-financed trust fund to his workers. The purpose is to provide the worker, while unemployed, with a combined UI and supplemental unemployment benefit payment amounting to a specified proportion of his weekly earnings while employed.

There are two major types of such plans: (1) those (of the Ford-General Motors type) under which the worker has no vested interest and is eligible for payments only if he is laid off by the company; and (2) those under which the worker has a vested interest and may collect if he is out of work for other reasons, such as illness or permanent separation.

NONMONETARY ELIGIBILITY

All states except New Mexico, Puerto Rico, South Carolina and South Dakota have taken action on the question of permitting supplementation in regard to plans of the Ford-General Motors type. Of the states that have taken action, all permit supplementation without affecting UI payments.

In 48 states permitting supplementation, an interpretive ruling was made either by the attorney general (27 states) or by the employment security agency (10 states); in Maine, supplementation is permitted as a result of a Superior Court decision and, in the remaining 10 states<sup>1</sup> by amendment of the UI statutes.

Some supplemental unemployment benefit plans of the Ford-General Motor type provide for alternative payments or substitute private payments in a state in which a ruling not permitting supplementation is issued. These payments may be made in amounts equal to three or four times the regular weekly private benefit after two or three weekly payments of state UI benefits without supplementation; in lump sums when the layoff ends or the state benefits are exhausted (whichever is earlier); or through alternative payment arrangements to be worked out, depending on the particular supplemental unemployment benefit plan.

Relationship with Other Statutory Provisions—The eleven states<sup>2</sup> which have no provision for any type of disqualifying income except pensions and the larger number which have only two or three types do not necessarily allow benefits to all workers in receipt of the types of payments concerned. When they do not pay benefits to such workers, they rely upon the general able-and-available provisions or the definition of unemployment. Many workers receiving worker's compensation, other than those receiving weekly allowances for dismemberment, are not able to work in terms of the UI law. However, receipt of worker's compensation for injuries in employment does not automatically disqualify an unemployed worker for unemployment benefits. Many states consider that evidence of injury with loss of employment is relevant only as it serves notice that a condition of ineligibility may exist and that a worker may not be able to work and may not be available for work.
