Major Leadership Election Contests in the Senate, 94th - 110th Congresses

Summary

This report contains data on elections in the Democratic and Republican party conferences for principal congressional leaders within each party from the 94th through the 110th Congresses (1975-2007). It reflects actual balloting. Also identified are the six Senators who have served as Presidents pro tempore of the Senate, the two who have served as deputy Presidents pro tempore, and the three Senators who have served as President pro tempore emeritus. These are largely positions of honor, for which there is no formal election in either party conference.

Other tables provide the names and states of the candidates for each major party office, the Congress(es) in which they were running, and the votes they received. Also noted are Senators elected with no opposition.

In numerous instances, leaders were selected without opposition. In cases where published accounts did not mention contests for a particular office, it was assumed there was only one candidate. The data do not include notices of announced candidacies that were abandoned before conference voting took place.

This report will be updated as necessary.

Major Leadership Election Contests In the Senate, 94th - 110th Congresses

Introduction

This report contains balloting data on the elections in the Democratic and Republican party conferences for principal congressional leaders from the 94th through the 110th Congresses (1975-2007). Table 1 identifies the seven Senators who have served as Presidents pro tempore of the Senate. This position is generally reserved for the majority party Senator with the party's longest continuous Senate service, but there is no formal election in either party conference for the position. Table 2 identifies the two Senators who have been designated to the honorary position of President pro tempore emeritus, and Table 3 identifies the three Senators who have been elected to the honorary position of deputy President pro tempore, positions for which there is no formal election by either party.

The other tables provide the names and states of the candidates for each major party office, the Congress(es) in which they ran, and the votes they received. Also noted are Senators elected with no opposition. Although most conference balloting took place prior to the convening of a new Congress, in some cases leadership elections were held to fill vacancies during a Congress. After the commencement of the 107th Congress, the majority party switched, thus causing changes in the positions of majority leader and majority whip.

Tables 4-13 provide data on elections for the positions of:

- Senate Democratic Floor Leaders and Conference Chairmen
- Senate Republican Floor Leaders
- Senate Democratic Whips
- Senate Republican Whips
- Senate Democratic Conference Vice Chair
- Senate Republican Conference Chairmen
- Senate Democratic Conference Secretaries
- Senate Republican Policy Committee Chairmen
- Senate Republican Conference Secretaries
- Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee Chairmen
- National Republican Senatorial Committee Chairmen

In numerous instances, leaders were selected without opposition. Where races were contested, most were decided after one ballot. However, in the 99th Congress, it took four ballots to elect the Republican floor leader and two ballots to elect the Republican whip. In the 102nd and 104th Congresses, two ballots were needed to elect the chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee. When published accounts did not mention a contest for a particular office, it was assumed there was only one candidate. The data do not include notices of announced candidacies that were abandoned before conference voting took place.

The sources for this report include various editions of Congressional Quarterly Weekly Reports, Congressional Staff Directories, and press accounts.

- a. The President pro tempore of the Senate is one of only three legislative officers established by the U.S. Constitution. The other two are the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Vice President of the United States, who also serves as President of the Senate. The Constitution designates the President pro tempore to serve in the Vice President's absence. The Senate generally elects by resolution a specified Senator president pro tempore. These resolutions are usually agreed to by voice vote. On rare occasions, the minority has offered an amendment naming its candidate. Such an amendment is normally defeated by voice vote. The President pro tempore is not reelected at the beginning of a Congress unless party control changes, or the Senator serving as President pro tempore has been elected to a new Senate term. Prior to 1890, the Senate elected a President pro tempore whenever the Vice President was not in attendance. When the Vice President returned, the President pro tempore lost his place. When the Vice President was again absent, the Senate elected a President pro tempore, in many instances the same Senator who had previously occupied the office. By the standing order agreed to on March 12, 1890, the Senate declared that the President pro tempore shall hold the office during "the pleasure of the Senate and until another is elected, and shall execute the duties thereof during all future absences of the Vice President until the Senate does otherwise order." Contemporary Presidents pro tempore now serve as long as their party holds a majority in the Senate.

- b. Senator Young was elected to serve as President pro tempore for one day prior to his Senate retirement. His party was in the minority at the time. Senator Magnuson then resumed the presidency pro tempore for the balance of the 96th Congress.
- c. Senator Byrd was elected President pro tempore for the 107th Congress when the Democrats regained control of the Senate on June 6, 2001.

110 th	Ted Stevens	R-AK	Jan. 4, 2007- present

- a. When the Senate party control changed in June 2001, Senator Thurmond, who had been Senate President pro tempore, was designated President pro tempore emeritus. See “Thanking and Electing Strom Thurmond President Pro Tempore Emeritus,” Congressional Record, daily edition, vol. 147, June 6, 2001, p. S5844.
- b. The Senate designated Senator Byrd President pro tempore emeritus after the convening of the 108th Congress and the election of Senator Stevens as President pro tempore. See “Thanks to the Honorable Robert C. Byrd and His Designation as President Pro Tempore Emeritus,” Congressional Record, daily edition, vol. 149, January 15, 2003, p. S843.

100 th	George J. Mitchell <sup>b</sup>	D — ME	Jan. 28, 1987- Nov. 29, 1988 <sup>c</sup>

- a. Pursuant to S.Res. 17, agreed to January 10, 1977, the Senate established (effective January 5, 1977) the post of deputy President pro tempore of the Senate to be held by “any Member of the Senate who has held the Office of President of the United States or Vice President of the United States.” Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota held this position until his death on January 13, 1978. See “Establishment of the Office of Deputy President Pro Tempore of the Senate, and for Other Purposes,” Congressional Record, vol. 123, Jan. 10, 1977, p. 457.
- b. On January 28, 1987, the Senate agreed to S. Res. 90, authorizing the Senate to designate a Senator to serve as deputy President pro tempore during the 100th Congress, in addition to Senators who held such office under the authority of S. Res. 17, 95th Congress. Accordingly, on the same date the Senate agreed to S. Res. 91, designating Senator George J. Mitchell of Maine deputy President pro tempore. See “Designation of a Deputy President Pro Tempore of the Senate and Designating Senator George J. Mitchell As Deputy President Pro Tempore of the Senate,” Congressional Record, vol. 133, Jan. 28, 1987, pp. 2167-2168.
- c. On November 29, 1988, Senator Mitchell was elected majority leader for the 101st Congress.
