

CHART 12

Manufacturing, health care and social assistance, and retail trade together accounted for 51 percent of all reported occupational injuries in private industry in 2005.

A total of 1.3 million injuries, or 32 percent, occurred in goods-producing industries, which employed nearly 21 percent of the private-sector workforce covered by this survey.

A total of 2.7 million injuries, or 68 percent, occurred in service-providing industries, which employed 79 percent of the workforce.

Percent of nonfatal occupational injuries, by industry, 2005

Source: U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, U.S. Department of Labor, October, 2006